Baptist Church

The services were quite well attended with the Pastor ministering both morning and evening. Special music provided was in the form of a mixed quartette and a solo.

Young Peoples was held Friday night with the subject discussed by one of the sponsors "WHAT ARE YOU WORTH". After the meeting, the Young People with their sponsors gathered at the parsonage for refreshments and a time of fellowship.

There is keen interest manifested in the services to be held in the Church with Bishop Pillai of Madras, India. Converted from Hinduism to Christ, Dr. Pillai is able to explain the difference between eastern religion and a living Christ.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gayner Bartnock on the birth of a daughter.

TV Talk

CBC advertising slogan says the network has "North America's Most Varied Television Schedule" and this week's programming seems intent on proving it. There's everything from the Mars Brothers in Renata Tebaldi, from Stanley Cup play-offs in the Canadian National Steeplechase.

The Grand National, one of the world's oldest and most challenging horse races will be run for the 118th year this weekend at Aintree, England. The steeplechase is run over a gruelling distance of 4 miles, 856 yards and includes two water jumps and 30 fences. A filmed account of this racing classic will be shown on CBC television, Sunday, March 28, at 4:30 p.m.

That night at 10:00 p.m. the controversial "THE MORE HAS BEEN EVEN DAYS will present "Strike! Men Against Computers". This special report concerns North America's first real showdown with automation, the nine month old Toronto newspaper printers' strike. Prepared by Larry Zolf, the program follows the strike from its inception to the present.

The Marx Brothers, the zaniest group that ever deflated a dowager, embarrassed an aristocrat or upset an opera, will be minted Monday at 8:00 p.m. by Wayne and Shuster on THE SHOW OF THE WEEK. John and Frank will look at some of the greatest nuts around in Horsefeathers, Duck Soup, A Night at the Opera and other Marxian classics.

Although no one yet knows who'll finish in 1st, 2nd and 3rd spots in the NHL, it is known that the semi-finals will start on April 1st & that all games will be telecast beginning one half-hour after the opening face off and all final games will be telecast in their entirety.

M.D. Council Considers South Cleaning Plant

SEDGEWICK — All seven councillors were present for a regular meeting of the Flagstaff Municipal District held in the Board Room on March 16th.

The minutes of three meetings held in February were presented, and after some discussion were approved. Also presented and approved was the monthly financial statement.

Mr. Wilson, Field Crops Commissioner for Alberta, and a delegation from Forestberg attended the meeting to discuss the establishment of a Seed Cleaning Plant at Forestberg. Mr. Wilson seemed of the opinion that the area served by this plant would make it an uneconomical venture, and said that if the move were made there would have to be a guarantee of a depreciation reserve fund. Local representatives were of the opinion that it would be a paying proposition, and Council inferred that it was prepared to guarantee the depreciation reserve fund.

The resignation of C. Lyle Reed, shop mechanic, was received with regret. Mr. Reed is leaving the district.

Fire extinguishers have been ordered for each piece of Municipal equipment, them to be a part of such equipment from now on.

Present at the meeting was a delegation from Alberta Government Telephones, who informed Council that all underground cables for the new phone system would be laid on the road allowances, so the cost of the off-road laying was financially prohibitive. The work in this project will commence in June, and any damage to culverts etc. would be paid for by the Government. There is to be no lines laid on shoulders of roads without express permission from the Flagstaff Council for that Division.

Forestberg had made application to have their village policeman sworn in by the Municipality so that he could handle any necessary rural cases. This also was tabled.

After a meeting with members of the County of Painstarth, Council and farmers involved, it was decided that Flagstaff would retain gravel deposits on S.E. 34-40-16.

Councillors Blats and Morgan reported on the meeting they attended at Red Deer, of the Rural Fire Protection Association.

Research was received from Flagstaff Lodge and Flagstaff-Beaver Auxiliary Hospital, indicating they are doing well financially, and that requisitions, if any, would be very small this year.

The Farm Purchase Advisory Committee has been disbanded, and in future the entire Council will act as this committee, to process applications to purchase land through the Credit Act.

Council has been informed by hospital authorities that from April 1st the Government would pay on Out-Patients at hospitals.

F. U. A. District 8 presented a resolution that the M.D. be taken all roads in the district opposite dedicated roads, to cut down the frequency of accidents. Council was also informed that from now on F. U. A. dues will not be collected through Municipal offices.

Application was received from Associated Engineers to have about 4 1/2 acres on the site of the Killam Auction Market sub-divided for the site of a Feed Mill. The Engineers were informed that there were some $1850.00 in back taxes owing on this land and that until these were paid permission would not be granted.

As many councillors as possible were urged to attend the annual meeting of Associated M. D's to be held in Edmonton.

By-Law 318 was passed, to allow for a 99-foot road allowance South of Section 33, Part of N.W. of 34-42-16, North of Section 3 and 4 of S. E. of 4-43-16.

Council decided that the same $7 percent road ban for 1965 would prevail wherever required.

Local Man Wins Honors At Edmonton Stock Show

The bull won the Junior Futurity Champion; the Grand Champion Inter-Breed Futurity; and the Junior and Grand Champion Hereford show exhibit.

For winning the Grand Champion Hereford Mr. Berg received the $1,000 Edmonton Exhibition Association prize.

Mr. Berg says that full credit must be given to his assistant, Fred Nelson, who was in charge of showing the animal while his father was in hospital recovering from a car accident.

In the cattle sale the bull, which was raised at Mr. Berg's Bonanza Ranch near Forestburg, was sold to Harold Paul of Edmonton and Ed Larson of Ponoka for $1578.66. These men are well known Registered Cattle Breeders.

The 4th Annual meeting of the Lougheed Credit Union Ltd. Group was held in the Legion Hut on Feb. 26, 1965. Although there was very little in attendance it was felt by all it was a very informative and interesting meeting.

SPRING — IN THE TWENTIES

By the last week in March farmer's mind naturally turns to the problem connected with seeding operations. They have already snapped out which field will go into wheat, which, oats, and barley, also flax. And most important, the KIND of seed, especially wheat, which is, (And always has been) the major grain sowed on our Prairies.

Another important job when preparing for seeding is the "Treating" of the seed, to prevent different diseases in the grain. In the early days, we used "Bluestone" which dissolved in cold water, poured on the piles of grain in the bin, and, then with a scoop-shovel, it was turned over and over, until it was thoroughly mixed. Formaldehyde was also used for some grains

The women have been "Housing" through seed catalogues for some time planning bigger and better gardens than ever.

In the early days, before the tractor pushed our faithful horses into oblivion, the harnesses were all brought out, examined carefully for breaks and weak spots, repaired & oiled, and hung up on the „Harness peys" to dry. The plow was completely overhauled, shares sharpened, and sometimes, a new tongue replaced the old one, which has become rather weak looking.

Then the all-important drill is "Gone over" from end to end, every possibly weak or worn part either repaired or replaced. Also, every wheel on every implement is well greased. It was considered poor management on the part of the farmer to have to stop, maybe right in the best seeding weather, to do any major repair job on his machinery.

The horses were not over-looked either. Earlier, the ones that have been wintering outside must, if not all winter, are brought in "groomed and combed", hooves trimmed, and fed extra. The "Clyde" or part "Clyde" always grew a surplus amount of long hair around their shins and on their hooves. This had to be all gotten rid of by "Shearing", and, of course, any horse, but especially the nervous Clyde became almost unmanageable when the "Operation" took place. It took at least two men to hand-e one horse at the time, and even then they had to be most careful to keep from being kicked, or even "Stepped".

So, for safety's sake, the men used a "Twitch", (a rather cruel method of putting a noose, (Made of rope) over the upper lip, tying the end of the rope to the rafters of the barn. Every horse-owner knows how tender horse's lip are, so, while the men did the shearing, the poor horse was so concerned with that "Twitch" around his tender lip, they usually paid little attention to the torch burning off the hair.

My late Husband, whose many good qualities included a "Tender heart" suffered, I think, almost as much as did the horse. He ALWAYS dreaded that job, and was glad when it was all over.

After every piece of job was accomplished, the men were noticeably getting "More on e ge" as the days went by, and ready to be "Up's at it". More often than not, though, just when they figured, "Well, another day or so and we should be on the land, maybe the next morning the ground would be white with snow. There was nothing gained, however by "Rantin' 'N Ravin" so possibly another 3 or 4 days would go by.

The men always maintained that as long as there was snow to be found somewhere, anywhere, the hollows or on the North side of hills, DON'T START SEEDING, which seemed good policy.

However, eventually the time came when (Literally speaking) "The fling went up" and every farmer was at the job from daylight to dark. Wheat especially, when normally taken ups slowly days to mature, if sowed reasonably early, stood a better chance of maturing before the sometimes early Fall frosts.

The garden patch had been Fall plowed in Oct. of the previous year, but before the men went on the field, the d ar was run over it, then the harrow. My husband always marked rows for me by harrowing one section of the harrows up, s de-down and marking it this way from end to end, making the job of sowing the seed much easier for me. Our garden always looked like a huge flower bed when he had done this.

The potatoes, (in our part of the country, were put in the ground any time after the 24th of May, the 24th being the deadline.

I am sure every farmer knows that farming a ONE of the most unpredictable GAMBLES on earth However, we optimistically go on the gra n using every precaution nown to man to insure a good crop, but we all depend on the elements of the weather, whether or not we harvest a GOOD crop. (Or any crop at all, for that matter)

Many of the farmers at that time kept enough horses and help, (Ourselves included), that it was possible, once seeding started, to work in "Re-lays", from "Sun up Sun down", changing horses and men about every four hours. Then, neither men nor horses became too tired.

True, it was a most "Hectic" time. The days were long, at times, tempers flared. For the women, there were the three BIG meals as well as lunches to prepare, m lking and separating to do twice daily, extras to feed, (Sometimes stray animals to chase out of the gra n field) clucking hens and incubators to set and tend, a big garden to sow, children to get off to school, as well as butter to churn and bread to bake. All the added now I find myself asking the same question, and wonder if one reason could be, then, there weren't so many clubs or organizations or other diversions to turn to that there is today.

"What a BORE life must have been. What a MOTONOUS existance." I hear some of our younger folks entaine. I am aware that "All work and no play makes Johnnie a dull boy", but we had our days. (Rainy days during seed time and harvest) when we could get together for a good, social's time. There was the Annual picnic the last of June, at the little old school, there were ball games ever-ings, after the rush time was over, not to forget the weekly trips to town on Saturday evenings, where we met neighbors for a chat and maybe an ice cream or coffee. The Church Services were always well attended by old and young, (In our district, at least).

The Winter time was the farmers' holiday time. After EVERYTHING was made ready for those long, cold, snowy months ahead, we could relax, have a BIG s gh, and plan for parties, sleigh rides, skating parties etc., a time when we really got to know our neighbors And there was no age limit. Both young and old a ke used to attend most of these social gatherings.

But Spring and Fall on the prairie farms were times of long, tiring days, days of honest toil, days when men and women and older to keeping the home reasonably tidy and clean, doing the always huge washing, (By hand) and ironing with those old-fashioned "Sad irons".

However, we managed real well, and occasionally found time to go into town, (This on Saturday evenings, usually) also, visit at a neighbor's home sometimes. Sunday were ALWAYS a Day for men and beast to rest.

Ironically, there were just the 24 hours in a day THEN, same as NOW Therefore, JUST HOW DID WE DO IT? Frankly as I look back children literally "Took the bit in their teeth", and accomplished what had to be done, never questioning otherwise. They were taught that "Every day of toil is an every day blessing", thankful for the amount of health and strength allotted to them to accomplish each task as it came up.

WARM BREATH OF SPRING: Spring has sprung, and pretty Diane Carter, of North Surrey, B.C., was anxious to get a start on her suntan. A hardy young lady, she waited for the first warm spell, grabbed her bikini, and headed for a beach near her west coast home. Most men would agree this beach couldn't look better even though the water never looked colder.

What's All The Fuss About?

All this fuss about the use of nausen gas in South Viet Nam has a false ring. The condemnation of its use comes from quarters living in past ages, and it surprises some that Humanitarians have not raised the question from a strictly humanitarian point of view. Nausia gas, or tear gas if you will, is not the same deadly poisonous gas used so successfully by the German army in the First World War. This gas killed as it was intended to do, and was a foul and inhuman method of human destruction. Nausea gas, on the other hand has no such capabilities. It is intended to render the victim hors de combat. While it may cause nausea and slight sickness while putting the victim out of action, it in no way endangers life. In the meantime, he may be taken as a prisoner and kept out of action for the duration, when he once again becomes an active citizen.

Now on the face of it, what is really wrong with such a procedure? What is so devastating about it? Is it not after all a humanitarian method of momentarily depleting the active forces of the enemy?

It will be remembered by many the skill of the British Tommy in the use of the bayonet, who along with their Canadian Allies earned an "enviable" reputation for its ruthless use in hand-to-hand combat. Stories were told about the bayonet becoming stuck through constriction of muscles, and a merciful bullet being fired to release it, and at the same time putting the victim out of misery.

War is war, no matter in what language you put it, and is a dirty game wherever carried on, under any circumstances, and we do not condone it under any conditions, but when it becomes necessary, then it must be fought successfully. The more humanitarian it can become, the better for mankind as a whole.

Rendering soldiers temporarily helpless where no permanent injury is involved, while affecting his capture, seems far more humanitarian than actually killing him. While the U.S. move may be psychologically inopportune, it brings to the attention of the world that there is a way to fight without killing. It is a safe bet that those rendered helpless by nausea gas and live to carry on, prefer that to a bullet or a bayonet.

Nyet! Nyet!

If you can interpret, Nyet means "No" in any language, and its most recent use by the Russian Indochina emissary sent for Prime Minister Pearson's proposal for the Vietnamese fiasco. While we in the West looked upon the suggestion as having a good deal of merit, it was obvious that the communists would reject any such ides, for while they advocate the complete withdrawal of U.S. troops and aid they reserve the right to assist the other side. Their rejection of the proposal is in itself a tacit admission that outside help is essential for the Viet Cong only. While retaining the right to assist wherever influence may help its cause, the communist world condemns the same activities in others. In other words what is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander. In this regard the so-called pacifists have the same weakness in that their activities are directed mostly, if not entirely, to one side of the conflict. This is natural to a degree, for their theories get short shrift from the communist world. The world today is faced with two entirely estranged ideologies, neither one of which can live peacefully with the other. The entire situation may be summed up in the philosophy of peaceful coexistance, which while some think is possible, times and events prove otherwise. The dedication of communism to its ideals cannot be matched by the West, and until the Western world becomes dedicated to the theories of democracy and a Christian way of life to the same extent, it will continue to be pushed around. A belief is worth fighting for and a conviction is worth preserving.

Late Spring And Wheat Production!

There now remains little doubt that this spring will be a late one so far as agriculture is concerned. The old Indian Chief's prediction that there would be green grass in March is assured of being a poor guess. Unseasonable weather for this time in March with the morning temperatures near the 20 below mark is slowing down the sun's bounden duty to produce melting snow, and no matter how fast she works from here on in, work in the grain fields will be behind schedule. The likely net result of the situation will be a reduction in wheat seeding with the resultant increase in the production of coarse grains. This would appear to be a logical step in any case, following a long and severe winter in which all available feed supplies were consumed. These supplies must be replenished and the only way to do so is to produce it. However it is still a long way to May 24th, the traditional date for completion of wheat seeding, and a lot can happen between now and then. Generous final payments on last year's wheat are now coming through and this in itself is incentive enough to keep production up. That on top of foreign buying may be enough to induce wheat seeding, but the fact should not be lost that feed requirements are now essential to the local economy.

Our Changing Techniques!

OUR CHANGING TECHNIQUES

We live in a continually changing society, and methods of trying to bring attention to bear on existing situations have changed right along with the times. It seems the vogue today to stage a public demonstration on almost anything, mostly designed to protest rarely in appreciation. The thinking seems to be that by making a public mass appearance, the populace will get on the band wagon in sympathy. This is working ideally in the case of the Southern Negroes, who are slowly but surely arousing public opinion in their favor. Here we find a just cause being taken up by other ethnic groups, with the probable result that the Negro will hereafter enjoy more rights than ever before. However in most cases demonstrations have no substantial favorable result except to cause annoyance to the rest of us, for in most cases they have a selfish beginning. The same theory works for the groups who picket places of business, simply because that business wishes to carry on, and will hire men who want to work.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Cost Of Bilingualism

OTTAWA — The high cost of being bilingual is getting through to the Federal Government.

The cost is partly in dollars and cents. The Federal Translation Bureau, for example, will cost a million dollars more this year than it did five years ago.

With over 400 employees, it has almost grown to the status of a major department of Government. But even this is not enough if Ottawa is going to make the two official languages equal in fact as well as in name.

Here for short present translation facilities fall. This was shown recently when the House of Commons had to suspend debate on the Canada Pension Plan for four days while translators did a "rush job" on 15 million words of Englishonly reports from the Senate-Commons pension committee.

The crisis was provoked by Rest Casgrain's little band of Creditistes who had previously won victories on such things as a bilingual members' parliamentary cafeteria and translation of Beaverbrook's parliamentary Hansard. Perm, have hamstrung her every procedural hassle.

The Creditistes showed little interest in the mother phrases of the pension plan. Their man on the Senate-Commons Committee attended only six of the 51 sittings of the Committee and said little when he was there. Although elaborate simultaneous translation facilities had been laid on, the Committee was conducted almost entirely in English.

But suddenly Creditiste interest was awakened and they demanded the Committe reports before passing the bill.

There was a tussle in Cabinet and the Ministers who rated the Pension Plan above bilingualism were temporarily ascendant. They told the Commons that the translation would take four to six weeks and would kill the Pension Plan bill at least for the time being.

But the Creditistes, in full cry for the rights of French, brushed this argument aside and were joined by the Conservatives and even the New Democrats who are at least as anxious as the Liberals to get the Pension Plan in operation.

Against this combination, hemmed in by his own bilingual polley, Prime Minister Pearson backed down, overruled the Pension Plan faction of his Cabinet and shelved the bill until translation was ready. It took four days rather than four weeks.

There is a new precedent as a result. No longer can French translation of any kind of documents await the convenience of translators, sometimes coming months after production of the English version.

So the Government will have to schedule its business in the Commons to take into account the time taken for translation.

When the Glassco commission was appointed in 1962, most of the commissioners felt it was no part of their job to study the broad problem of bilingualism. But one member, Eugene Therrien, leaned his own dissenting report calling for more bilingualism in the Civil Service.

"In Canada," he wrote, "the cost of bilingualism should not be considered, and still less admitted, to be an obstacle, any more than the cost of bilingualism or trilingualism is no considered in Belgium, Switzerland or South Africa.

Whether the Government counts the cost of bilingualism as an obstacle or not, it must count the cost, in time as well as money.

This year, Government translators will have to turn 11 million words from one language into the other. When it comes to technical subjects like the Canada Pension Plan, a translator sometimes works a whole day on one page.

SUGAR AND SPICE
By Bill Smiley

DON'T KNOCK THE TEENS

A columnist on a big city daily recently fired a salvo at high school students. He's intrepid journalist gave them both barrels, with no holds barred, as an Irishman might put it.

He had been speaking to groups of high school students from middle and upper-income homes. He took a very dim view of the kids, suggesting that they haven't learned manners, have no sense of adventure are terribly sheltered, terribly staid, terribly and, and empty.

I'm sorry he received this impression of today's youth. It is not at all the one I have received in five years as a high school teacher, and several years as a parent of teenagers.

In the same column, he managed to convey the idea that he was none of these things of which he accused the students, that he was, in fact, a hell of a fella who had lived life to the full.

Let's face the charges, one by one. Had manners. My personal experience is that their manners, on the whole, are better than those of their parents. They can be crass, when they are inconsiderate, but generally they are more sensitive to the feelings of others than are adults.

No sense of adventure? He's all wet. One of my students headed across the continent on a bicycle. Others plan to go to Africa or Asia for the Peace Corps. Another swiped his old man's car, picked up two sidekicks and took off for Mexico. He's gone on two hay last summer and hitchhiked to Quebec, after I expressly forbidden the jaunt.

Mr. G. Seward lost his purse at the Legion Hall on Friday night and was found last week by Donald Smiley, on the street in front of the bank building where it had been buried under the snow.

There are two months of the year in Alberta that are very peculiar. You never know where they belong. These months are October and March. Here we were a few days ago kidding ourselves that spring had arrived and along comes a terrific Northester that swept the snow up over the roads and fences and smothers the coal bin in the twinkling of an eye.

The Badminton Court at the Sedgewick Community Hall is being very well patronized and a ping-pong table has been added to the attract as at the hall.

The Killam Co-op held their annual meeting on March 30th and voted to apply the surplus of some $6300 on new shares rather than to pay it out in dividends.

The Sedgewick Ladies' Hockey Club timers hockey team, disguised as Wheat Kingsters journeyed to Viking for the annual tussle in spite of a 11-7 defeat the boys report a wonderful time, and look forward to the return game this week.

A group of ladies at Strome have started taking first aid lessons with one class in the afternoon and one in the evening. If any of you gents break a leg or arm just hurry over and you should be well taken care of.

Last Friday evening shortly after dinner the town of Lougheed was aroused by the fire siren. It was the chasing risk beans, but fortunately little damage was done though had the response not been prompt it might have endangered the rotting risk.

The Killam Indian Hockey team and one guest enjoyed the hockey game in the city, when tickets and lunch were paid for by the Club.

FINAL DAY OF HOME DESIGN SCHOOL

A rose has — mama; a plank house — how nice; a yellow shed — cheerful sight; in the same yard — oh, no!

Now can we let this happen to our beautiful countryside? Whether we live in town or on a farm we must learn to think of every building and the landscape as a unit.

It is not only in color that we are at fault. Texture of materials must also be considered. Brick, stucco, knotty pine panelling and cedar siding all have individual beauty but when put together may give your home the look of a poorly-planned patchwork quilt. This exterior view of your home gives the impression to the rest on the street of the people living within.

Is the interior of your abode executed with any more care? Are those pictures placed at the right height on the wall and does that orange cushion do anything for the other colours in the room?

An exciting room like you have seen only in magazines isn't impossible to attain. You can learn how to combine color, textures and lines to thrill your family and your friends.

Come to here Miss Dianne Hammer, Home Design Specialist with the Alberta Department of Agriculture. Miss Hammer has her Bachelor of Interior Design from the University of Manitoba and has some very clever decorating ideas to share with you.

Everyone is welcome!

Sources Of Farm Credit

The following information, compiled by Alberta's Farm Credit Administrator K. Taylor, is designed to help farmers decide which of the various credit plans best fit their individual needs.

The Farm Credit Corporation, a federal government agency, provides loans for any agricultural purpose at 6 per cent interest. The maximum loan is $40,000 and repayment can be spread over thirty years. Loans secured on land only cannot exceed 75 per cent of the appraised productive value. In some cases, however, part of the loan may be secured on livestock and equipment. The Corporation has approximately 45 representatives in the province.

The Alberta Farm Purchase Board, established by agreement between county councils and the government of Alberta, lends money for the purchase of farm lands. The maximum amount which can be financed under this scheme is $24,000 or 80 per cent of the purchase price. The interest rate of 5 per cent includes life insurance on the purchaser. The loan must be repaid within 30 years. Further information is available from municipal and county offices.

The Veterans Land Act provides for loans (5 per cent on the initial loan and 5 per cent on subsequent loans) to veterans who satisfy the minimum service requirements. These loans can be used to buy land, buildings, livestock and equipment. The maximum initial loan is $6,000 which must be repaid within 25 years. The VLA holds title to the property until the loan has been repaid.

The Industrial Development Bank of Canada usually makes agricultural loans to farmers who do not qualify under federal and provincial farm loan schemes. Often these farmers or companies already have one or more economic production units or are considered to be entering agricultural pursuits of a specialized nature. The current rate of interest on IDB loans is 7 per cent. Offices are located in Calgary and Edmonton and periodic advertised visits are made to other areas in the province. Some mortgages and trust companies also make long-term loans available to farmers. Rates may be slightly higher but conditions are less restricted.

Farm Improvement Loans for equipment, livestock, buildings and other improvements are available through chartered banks. Interest is 5 per cent and terms of repayment extend up to 10 years in some cases. The borrower is expected to pay from 20 to 40 per cent in down payment. The maximum loan under this scheme is $15,000.

Under the Provincial Farm Home Improvement Loans Act, some up to $2,000 are available at 5 per cent interest for improvements to the home. These loans are processed by treasury branches and terms of repayment may extend up to 10 years.

Chartered banks and treasury branches are the major sources of short term credit. They provide farm credit for operating expenses and other items at 6 per cent interest. Repayment terms may be extended over two or three years.

Babey 'Not Happy' With Budget

FUA President Paul Babey is not happy with the provincial budget brought down Wednesday evening, at least where agriculture is concerned.

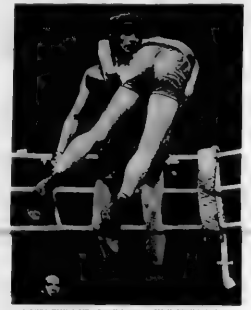
In a statement released today, Mr. Babey said that this was a "do nothing for agriculture" budget, in that no allocation was made for research into the problems of agricultural products marketing.

"This is where the biggest disappointment is" stated Mr. Babey. "The provincial government has admitted there are serious problems in the marketing of agricultural commodities, yet they do nothing about them".

"In our submission in January, the FUA brought before the Cabinet the serious situation developing in the industry where even the viable farmer is being gradually shoved into invisible positions, because of deteriorating prices for farm products coupled with continuously increasing costs of production.

"It is very disappointing to learn that no attempt is to be made to research this situation; to find out more about causes, affects, and possible solutions. Our provincial government has spent substantial funds for research into production methods only. We of the FUA feel it is not too much to ask that some money be spent to study the marketing of agricultural products.

"Even though agriculture is in a real crisis today, the allotment to be applied through the Department of Agriculture is no larger than 1.6 percent of total estimates. In relation to the total of estimated expenditure by the Province in the fiscal year, the money to be spent on the agricultural sector of Alberta's economy is less than it was the year before. This can not have much appeal to an industry floundering in a swamp of soft prices, or to a province with more than 8% percent of its economy heavily afloat in that swamp."



DOWN THEN UP. Swedish boxer Kjell Lindblad, in a welterweight bout in Stockholm, proved himself not only a capable fighter but a well-mannered sportsman as well. Reasoning that it was he who knocked Rolf Pettersson down, he decided he should also pick him up. This he did, carrying the unconscious Pettersson from the ring.

APRIL 4TH To 10TH
Just as surely as the spring season threw a young man's fancy, it brings the inevitable Stanley Cup playoffs to television viewers. For hockey fans it's a great season with the games televised virtually every second day; the best players involved in the national mayhem it's a season for frustration, for many regular programs will have to be cancelled in order to accomodate the hockey fans.
While the final standings are not yet confirmed at this writing it is definite that Toronto will be fourth, Chicago third and Detroit and Montreal will fight down to the wire for first. Since that is so the first two games in the semi-final A and B series will be played in Detroit on April 1st and 4th and in Montreal on April 1st and 3rd. The 2nd and 4th games in these series will be played in Chicago and Toronto Tuesday, April 6th and Thursday April 8th. If the two Canadian teams meet each other it is a fairly safe assumption that the CBC will telecast all their games rather than those between Detroit and Chicago. If however, Montreal meets Chicago and Toronto tees off on Detroit the network will probably alternate between telecasts of Bush series. In any case, viewers can look forward to, or dread as the case may be, hockey telecasts virtually every Tuesday, Thurs., Sat. and Sunday for at least the next three weeks.

Pasture Study Here

A pasture research grant totaling $43,700 has been awarded the Department of Agricultural Economics at the University of Alberta by the ARDA. The purpose of the two year grant, according to Dr. H. C. Love, Project Director, is to examine the costs and possible benefits of improving public lands for increased grazing capacity in Alberta.

The pressure on grazing lands in the Province is rising. During the ten year period 1951-61, the number of head of grazing livestock in Alberta increased by 55 percent. The problem is further complicated by the fact that with population increases, Canadians eat more beef annually.

The first phase of this study will examine pasture problems in the Province from the viewpoint of the individual farmer or rancher in order to assist provincial administrators in estimating the demand for public grazing lands and the need for increased development. Phase two will provide provincial administrators with much of the information needed to allocate public funds for the development of grazing land in the five grazing areas of the Province. Concurrently an investigation will be conducted on the cost of improvements as they relate to the benefits to be gained from each grazing region.

Dr. Wayne Fuller of Iowa State University will visit the University of Alberta during the week of Mar. 27th to assist with the planning of this project. Dr. Fuller is internationally famous statistician whose specialty is in the area of designing survey projects which will yield the greatest amount of reliable information in the most efficient manner.

DO YOU KNOW?

That—fewer hours of labour have been lost due to legal work-stoppages in Alberta during the past 25 years than in any other province.

That—The Province of Alberta was the first province to establish Schools for Nursing Aides and has produced 4,000 graduates since the war. (1965 figures)

That—Alberta is still the only "rail-free" province in Canada. Annual loss would be around 25 million dollars if rails became established lines.

That—Social Credit believes that social and economic security are not enemies, Freedom of the individual is essential.

The Bible Today

On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the arrival of Prophet Harris in the Ivory Coast, the Bible Society has published an illustrated leaflet containing the record in Acts chapter 2 concerning Simon the Sorcerer and the Ethiopian Eunuch.

Prophet Harris had an amazing influence on the people. Like the Apostles, he attached fetish and magic. People who had lived for generations in bondage to their fetish burned them at his word.

Prophet Harris depended completely on his Bible, which he always carried with him; those who met him said that it permeated his talking and thinking. The multitude of churches that grew up and remained for years after his departure always displayed a Bible in the place of honor, although reverence was there at that time anyone able to read it.

The President of the Ivory Coast recently declared that the Prophet played a role of prime importance in freeing the region from wicked customs of fetishism.

It is hoped that this anniversary edition of 250,000 copies will encourage the people of this region to acquire a complete copy of the Bible and read the Scriptures.

PREVENTING CALF SCOURS

Calostrum, a cow's first milk, is probably the most important factor in preventing calf scours.

Dr. H. N. Vance of the Alberta Veterinary Services Branch says that a calf which does not suck within a few hours of birth is "marked" for scours. Scientists have shown that colostrum's valuable protection is lost after the gut has become the calf is no longer able to absorb those properties which provide immunity

Calf scour losses in Alberta last year were probably the highest ever. Undoubtedly the weather played an important part but many factors which contribute to calf scours can be controlled by the owner.

Dr. Vance advises cattlemen to watch their calves carefully this spring and to make sure that they begin sucking as soon as possible. He says serious outbreaks of scours can be prevented by calving the cows in a clean, dry area, by refraining from adding new animals to the herd just before or during calving and by contacting a veterinarian as soon as any cases are noticed.

ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR BULLETIN:

Who to nominate for the special Junior Citizen GROUP AWARD (and why)

There are two ways to nominate enterprising youngsters you know for Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards. You can nominate either an individual or a whole group.

Last year, your weekly newspaper editors received an increased number of individual nominations. However, the number of group nominations received was disappointing.

We know that there are scores of enterprising groups of young people around our province who deserve recognition, and adults who wish to see them get it. So please don't hesitate to nominate!

Who to nominate? That's easy! It may be a cub, scout or guide troop, or similar organized group. Or simply two or more youngsters who have performed an act of heroism or initiative on their own. Good citizenship takes endless forms. If you feel that a group of young people between the ages of 6 and 16 years deserves special recognition for any act of merit since August 1964, please give the details to the editor of this newspaper. Remember - all groups nominated will receive a certificate of recognition.

The Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Program is sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies, with the co-operation of Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors.

From every direction come wails of alarm that students will try anything: hot cars, drinks, drugs, sex. And this mess says they're no sense of adventure! What they have is too much of it.

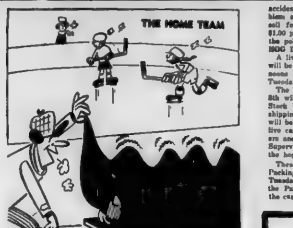
Terribly sheltered, he says. Nonsense. We try to shelter them from the sordid, the baneful, the evil, as we see them. But the only teenager who is sheltered in the age is a kid who lives in a trapper's shack in the wilderness with two maiden aunts and is kept chained to the wall until he's 20. They're a lot less sheltered than I was at that age, and a lot better able to cope with reality, as a result.

Terribly timid, he says. Peppy-cock. They're confoundedly, I'll admit, as far as finds and fashions go. But I seriously think I'd call those writhing, screaming maniacs at the Beatle show timid. They're almost as unstable as their idols were, swooning over Sinatra. Or their grannies willing over Bing Crosby.

Terribly sad, he says. Baloney. Admitted, they can be deeply touched, because the hearts are not yet hardened. They can be terribly sad, sometimes. But they can be wildly exultant, too. How long is it since you've been truly joyful, Jack? The kids are much more human emotionally, than adults, because they have not learned those grown-up barriers: the control, the stiff upper lip, the smothering of the flame.

And he claims they are empty. Empty of what? Dishonesty, greed, self-illusion, cruelty, selfishness, ruthlessness? I'm afraid he's right. But they're full of a lot of things that have pretty well gone out of style with adults: play, love, joy, fun, unselfishness, honesty, ideal-ism, loyalty.

Don't worry, I'm not soft on teenagers. I have two of my own, and sometimes they drive me right up the wall, across the ceiling and down the other side. I teach about 140 of them daily, and there are days when I could go into class with a tommy gun and toss them all down. But they're people. And if I have to associate with people, I think I'd as soon associate with them as with any other class of the species.



"Okay, men, quit stalling! Let's have the first line out there!"

How Long Did It Take To Court Your Wife?
Did you just happen to see her, walk up to her, ask her to marry you and call in the minister . . . right on the spot —
PERHAPS NOT . . . it probably took a lot of calls, and trips, movies, flowers, candies, and a lot of putting-your-best-foot forward tactics. You had to "sell" yourself. She had to know all about you!
IT'S THE SAME WITH ADVERTISING of time . . . you've got to win their confidence . . . you can't "woo" customers with one Ad . . . you've got to "Sell on Them" over a period and be convincing.

Baptist Church

The regular WMS meeting was held at the church on Thursday evening with twelve ladies present. Mrs. Danielson read the Scripture and led in the devotional portion of the meeting. Mrs. Cyr presented the missionary sketch, and Jean Sorenson gave the devotion entitled "Our Children in The Lord's Service". Our President led the business session with plans made for approximately twelve ladies to attend Spring Rally at Forintosh. A committee was appointed to be in charge of group participation for an evening of entertainment at the auxiliary hospital. Mrs. Edith Burtosch was elected to fill the office of treasurer, which was left vacant with the death of Mrs. Hilda Ostenson. Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Bargeveen and assistant Mrs. Kvill.

The Young People reported a good time of skating, volley ball and fellowship on Friday evening.

The Sunday School Superintendent has asked the question "What is the most expensive piece of furniture in the church today?" Many answers have been received, such as — electric organ, the cross, the Bible, offering plate, but as yet the correct one has not come in. What do you think it is?

Dr. K. C. Pillai of Madras, India, and Bishop of the Indian Orthodox Church, was our guest speaker on Sunday and is conducting meetings Monday through Thursday. His explanations of many portions of the Bible prove most enlightening. Also they are made from a different approach as seen through Eastern interpretation.

FINAL PAYMENTS HIGHEST EVER

The Canadian Wheat Board has announced the final payment on wheat marketed during the 1963-64 crop year. The total amount is $271,994,256.

It should be noted that prices are at the seaboard or the Lakehead. Farm prices will be less freight and handling charges amounting in Alberta to a deduction of 16 to 32 cents a bushel according to location.

This is the highest per bushel final payment, the highest total price and the largest total payment made by the Wheat Board in its twenty-three years of operation.

Commenting in the payments, Mr. Harrold said: "This record payment of $72 million dollars will be a real lift to the Canadian economy and of great benefit to Western farmers. It is evidence of the good work done by the Canadian Wheat Board and of the advantages of an orderly system of marketing which can take advantage, for the farmer, of every sales opportunity that arises.

It must be remembered, however, that this large payment was due mainly to a record crop and higher than normal sales in the same year. It is not an indication the farmer's income is permanently increased. Sales of this magnitude will not likely be maintained and farmers' costs of production are steadily mounting.

F. U. A. President Paul Babey Speaks

Speaking to an FUA Sub District meeting at Wahing in the Provincial Electoral District of No. FUA President Paul Babey, drew attention to the facts of voting behavior in elections. He contrasted regulations under which people are sele ted for public office with the procedure set up for holding farm marketing plebiscites.

Mr. Babey said, "While final results of the recent by-election in Edson are still unofficial, one point is clear. Less than 1 4 of the eligible voters are going to decide who the new MLA is going to be. Will Premier Manning declare the election null and void since none of the candidates have succeeded in receiving a mandate from 51 percent of the eligible voters? These rules are applicable to farmers when they vote on a marketing plan under the Agricultural Products Marketing Act. If this is a fair way of establishing a democratic decision where farmers are concerned, then it should also apply in the Edson by-election.

Man Against Automation!

Those who watched the televised showing of the Toronto Newspapers' quarrel with the International Printers' Union recently came away with mixed feelings, depending of course on which side your sympathy rested. Personally we left the show with the definite feeling that the Union and its members were fighting a losing battle, which we believe time will prove. In the first place the strike was unjustified from an economical standpoint and secondly from a social point of view. Workers who are guaranteed a wage of $174.50 a week are not suffering from underpay, especially when one considers the fringe benefits that go along with this pay. In the second place the Union was fighting social and technological progress, something that man had been attempting to do for years with a positive record of failure. When the first Linotype was installed the workers were opposed, and while not the strong organizations that is today, the Union of time fought the move vigorously. Installation of the first Cotton Gin was opposed and classed as the ruination of the working man. Of course such argument has been proven false, and so the story goes to our modern day.

While there is no attempt here to play down the social and economic implications of our advancing technology, it must be pointed out that the steadily continuing improvement in the employment situation in Canada gives its own answer to the argument that machines displacing workers necessarily means fewer jobs. There has been no slackening in the rate in which industry has been improving efficiency and lowering production costs by technology, yet from 1961 to 1964 the number of Canadians working has increased by over a half million. At the same time the proportion of those without jobs decreased from 7.2 percent to 4.7. In fact the lowest level since 1957. This certainly explodes the myth that automation means fewer jobs. It does not though that the labor force must equip itself with more knowledge and higher skills.

The Toronto newspaper strike clearly points out the fallacy of unjustified strikes, where the sense of moral obligation is given second place to greed and disrespect for technological progress. It points out too, the wrongness of a union in Canada being dictated by selfish union heads in a foreign land. It is time that the ITU got control of their own Canadian union and started running their own affairs. This has been clearly pointed out in the fact that scores and scores of the strikers have crossed the picket lines and gone back to work in spite of the dictates of union heads. An empty stomach and a nagging wife are great persuasive elements.

The Wind Blows Chill!

Whenever one talks about the weather it should be with caution, such as, when the printing ink is wet on the page to press. Otherwise fickle mother nature makes him look rather stupid. However, as this is being written, it appears that the weather has made a change for the better. Temperatures have climbed to the comfortable forties and snow is slowly disappearing. In spite of this the winds still blow chill and it is no time to consider storing away the winter underclothing. In fact it still seems wise to take the old Scotchman's admonition to "nary change a clout until the month of May is out." Nevertheless it is the time of year when hope springs eternal with the prospects of putting another crop in the ground. Before you know it the Crocus, first harbinger of spring will be gracing the living room table, a token of love from adventurous children. Farmers will inject full or grain payment cheques will be frequenting the machine lots in search of better equipment, and young swains will parade the avenues hand in hand with fair ladies. Easter, the season of joyous and sober recollections of our many blessings, will soon be upon us, the snow will disappear and mother nature ill gladden the hearts of all covering the earth with her glorious array of beauty. The song birds will give voice to their joy of living. The burdens of the winter will be forgotten, and all will join nature in her salute to another season. The sunshine always replaces the clouds, and the utter joy of life is there for those who seek it.

Completed Education!

A university education is not for everyone, and the sooner we realize this fact, the better off we will be. Certainly university was not for this writer, simply because he was a shortage of brain material. It is quite possible that Canadians are in danger of losing their sense of proportion where this business of university education is concerned. There has developed a sort of neurosis, in that many who will never make university are fearful that not doing so dooms them to the status of second-class citizens with no capacity for earning potential.

This nonsensical attitude becomes obvious when you realize the basic fact that university is not for everyone. Hundreds in our high schools today are unsuited for campus life for a variety of reasons. In fact many who are not clods, and in fact could probably emerge from technical institutes and such with far better equipment to earn a good living and make a name for themselves. This fact is not something new; it has always been with us. The emphasis on "completed" education is in the wrong place. It should not necessarily be placed on a university education, for they are not the same thing at all. We had better clear our minds on the situation before we develop inbured social divisions and inflict upon the rising generation unwarranted inferiority complexes. A continually rising level of educational attainment is vital to the welfare of Canada to be sure, but for many this does not mean going to university. The sooner we realize this fact and frankly admit it, the better.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Tax Cuts Coming

OTTAWA — Only three weeks ago Prime Minister Pearson was predicting that Finance Minister Gordon might be bringing down his budget before the end of March which perhaps only proves that in any session of Parliament hope has to spring eternal in the breast of a government leader. A few days ago after he made the prediction the Government had moved its sights on to the week before Easter. That hope too has now gone and with it the possibility of a June election.

Mr. Pearson in fact has made it reasonably clear, though not clear enough to break through the clouds of Tory suspicion, that if he has his way there will be no election during 1965. Conservatives contend that this is precisely what he would say if he were planning to pull the rug out from under them. But if there is any rug pulling it seems more probable that it will be the Tories who will do it or to be more precise, one man in the Tory party, Mr. John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker may no longer lead a united party but he has support enough within the party to run short a campaign of skirmishes that would harass the Government to call it a premature Parliament.

It is this fear that has been behind the Government's course of delay in getting Mr. Gordon's budget before the Canadian public. It was this which led it to announce the unprecedented course of introducing a budget at the close of January which would have meant re-introduction of tax changes in the new session which will follow immediately.

All this suggests that there will be tax changes in the budget with the right political flavour in spite of the size of the main spending estimates presented recently to Parliament. With these reaching the unheard total of $8,204 million old age security payments are included and supplementary estimates in past years adding $600 million or more to the total; estimates there has been speculation that Mr. Gordon's total spending for the coming fiscal year might be near the $9 billion mark.

While Mr. Gordon will not try to balance his budget in the coming year the deficit that this would represent before tax changes would make it difficult to justify the reductions. In fact, the figure will not be nearly as high as this forecast. This year's main estimates, prepared in conjunction with a survey of departmental spending programs undertaken by the Treasury Board, will be far nearer to total Government spending for the coming year than they have been in the past. Expecting the possibility of some new Government spending project when it is still unknown at the departmental level, total spending for the year including old age security payments, is not likely to exceed $8.6 billion and may be lower. If this is the case of Mr. Gordon's deficit before tax changes will be about the same level as 1964-65 or in the neighborhood of $150 million.

But Mr. Gordon will not be looking too closely at these budgetary figures. The tax decision will depend on the extent of fiscal interventions which the Finance Minister believes necessary to maintain an adequate growth rate in the economy. There is already indication of a measure of expansion in the program of spending. If early forecasts of the increase in gross national production for 1965 are borne out the Federal Government will be contributing about 17.4 percent to national expenditures compared with about 17.3 percent in 1964.

Some of this expenditure will have a direct and instant impact on the income and spending stream. Of the $8.3 billion shown by the main estimates nearly $4 billion represents salaries and other payments for services, pensions and other welfare payments to individuals. There will be a delayed impact through capital programs which will account for more than $900 million including defence procurement. These expenditures have a multiplying effect on national production.

But if the economic prophets are correct the fiscal impact of Federal Government expenditure alone may not be sufficient. In 1964 Canada's national production increased slightly more than the minimum target set by the Economic Council of Canada if Canadians are to lick the problem of maintaining a low rate of unemployment in face of a rapidly growing labor force. This year, on the basis of early forecasts we will fall below it. If Mr. Gordon accepts the advice implied in both the Economic Council's review and the Bank of Canada, he will give the added stimulus of moderate tax reductions.

The Canada Pension Plan is becoming less and less a dead issue eight months after it made its debut in the House of Commons. But there has been such a long and painful delivery or have emerged finally in the form they first took. Governments make their first contributions to the Pension Fund next January and will receive a year later the first pensions, $10.80 a month for those who have been earning $5000 per year or more. But the final problem of how it will be taxed, has still to be tackled. For employers and employees who are participating in private pension plans there will have to be some form of integration. The process is going to lead to some sticky labor-management relations.

An estimated 4,517,000 Canadians receive cheques from the federal government each month — family allowances 2,712,000; universal old age pensions 999,000; civil servants 262,000; veterans and dependents 178,000; employees of government agencies and proprietary corporations 131,000; members of the armed forces 129,000; old age assistance 106,000; disabled and blind pensioners 41,000; RCMP 9,000.

The three leading classifications of federal government expenditure are: health and welfare 29.4 per cent; defence 19.8 per cent; debt charges 11.2 per cent.

MORE ADVERTISING —

Last week's Canadian Western Hardware and Radio held in the city of Edmonton was a good runaway-up for a lot of the similar shows in Calgary, which city is famous for this type of thing. A lot of the success could be credited to the advertising done by the Edmonton Exhibition Board.

The show's ability to capture such a famous Canadian as Lorne Greene of TV fame was no doubt the result of the advertising advantages produced for the occasion. A press kit, penned on to anyone who would take one, was made up of more than 50 pages of information and details concerning the show. It was bound in a good weight drain cover supplied by CWC, and the cover was fastened to the information sheets with a good weight leather thong. The entire affair was eye-catching and conversation provoking.

Every month the city of Montreal, a great exposure, publishes a beautiful colored magazine on excellent quality paper and distributes stories about Montreal thereby to thousands upon thousands of people throughout the world. It is published in two languages, both in the same magazine. Each of the pictures have captions and explanations in five languages. The cost must be fabulous but it is considered worth all that it costs and more.

Our entire way of living in the present world is geared to advertising and most people depend on one medium or the other or another to supply them with information. It does pay to advertise. The question is, how much more advertising can we stand before we become immune to it? Although the question may never be answered, the fact still remains today that those who advertise most in the business world, get the most results. — Neston News.

Discrimination Against Indians

Candadas critical of American attitudes toward Indians should consider Canadian attitudes towards Indians, states Mrs. R. Johnston, president of the Farm Women's Union of Alberta.

In an article published this week in the FUA official organ, "The Organized Farm," Mrs. Johnston took issue with her fellow citizens who have become absorbed with the fight for civil rights in Alabama, but have forgotten that many native Indians still meet discrimination in Alberta. "The Indians are not different — people are people," she says. "They are a part of our total community, and should be treated as such."

Again this year, the FWUA will be conducting a "Good Citizenship Camp" in co-operation with the Citizenship Branch of the Department of Indian Affairs. The Camp is "an attempt to do something practical to develop better understanding between members of Alberta's cultural minorities, including native people, and members of the majority culture.

The pioneer Camp in this series was held in 1962. This Camp and those which have been held each year since, use facilities made available at the FUA operated Goldeye Leadership Training Centre, 110 miles west of Red Deer, in the Rocky Mountain Foothills. It is hoped there will be 40 students at the Citizenship Camp, to be held the first week of July, 1965.

"All rural people who are hampered by poverty and lack of education find it difficult to adjust to our rapidly changing society," states Mrs. Johnston, in her article. To counter this, she points out, "We will need future leaders. The aim of the FWUA Canadian Citizenship Camp is to provide a camping experience for rural young Canadians of various racial backgrounds, which will enable them to understand themselves, to understand themselves, to understand others, to accept tolerance and to develop their individual leadership abilities.

New Liberal Leader

Mike Maccagno has been appointed acting leader of the Liberal Party of Alberta. At a meeting of the Executive of the Liberal Association in Edmonton today it was unanimously decided to invite Mr. Maccagno to take the position, and he accepted the invitation.

The Liberal Association Executive meeting, attended by 17 persons, passed a motion "that Mike Maccagno, House Leader of the Liberal Party, and Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, be invited to assume the responsibilities of leadership of the Liberal Party of Alberta until a Leadership Convention is held in January 1966.

David McDonald, President of the Association, announced that the Party would be actively looking for a permanent leader to lead the Party to victory in the next provincial election, but that the Executive would not take any sides in the choice of leader.

Mr. Maccagno was born in Florence, Italy and came to Canada in 1926. He first settled in Calgary and then moved to LacLaBiche in 1927. He served on the LacLaBiche School Board for 21 years, and was Mayor of the town for 4 years.

In 1955 he was first elected MLA and was re-elected in 1959 and 1963. In 1963 he was appointed Leader of the Opposition.

He was married in 1935 to Valentine Labau, and has eight children.

The previous provincial leader, Dave Hunter, resigned his leadership last Monday night in order to seek the federal nomination in the federal constituency of Athabasca.

CHEMICAL WEED CONTROL
The herbicide dicamba is recommended for controlling wild and tartary buckwheat, lady's thumb, prostrate knotweed, corn spurry, corn cockle and the top growth of Canada and sow thistle.
W. Lobay, Supervisor of Soils and Weed Control with the Alberta Department of Agriculture advises applying dicamba at the rate of 2 ounces active ingredient per acre to wheat and oat crops when both the grain and the weeds are in the two to three-leaf stage. At this time the weeds are in their most susceptible period while grain is at its most resistant stage. If dicamba is used on crops in the four to six-leaf stage, some damage may occur, particularly if growing conditions are conducive to prolific tillering.
Mr. Lobay reports that tests conducted last year indicate that barley is more susceptible than wheat and oats to dicamba. To avoid damage to barley crops, lower rates must be used which may not be as effective in controlling weed species as the higher ones.
Mr. Lobay suggests 2,4-D ester at rates of 6 to 8 ounces per acre should be considered for buckwheat control in barley crops. When applied as soon as the crop reaches the three-leaf stage this treatment gives good weed suppression. Low volatile forms of 2,4-D give the highest degree of control.
When dicamba susceptible weeds occur in the same field as lambs's quarters, mustard, stinkweed or Russian thistle, all of which are somewhat resistant to dicamba, Mr. Lobay suggests using a mixture of dicamba plus 2,4-D ester MCPA, formulation. Such mixtures, applied at a rate of 3 ounces of dicamba and 6 ounces of amine salt of 2,4-D or MCPA per acre, give good control of weeds susceptible to both components. Dicamba plus MCPA should be considered when buckwheat reaches its most susceptible stage before the grain is in the two to three-leaf stage.
Mr. Lobay advises farmers to buy commercially prepared mixtures rather than to mix them at home. This will avoid any chance of using the wrong chemical proportions.

Tuesday, April 13th it's again the Montreal vs Toronto in the 6th game and on April 15th (if necessary) the seventh and deciding game in the battle between the two Canadian contenders.
If the Toronto-Montreal series ends before the Chicago-Detroit series, CBC will carry the remaining games between Chicago & Detroit.
On a designated day each spring, pub patrons cheer from the banks of England's historic river Thames as dedicated scholars become do-or-die scullers for the glory of Oxford or Cambridge. This year's edition of the boat race will be covered on CBC WORLD OF SPORT, Sat., April 10th at 2:00 p.m.
Bob Hope holds the bill of fare for Tuesday's Bonnie Parade of Stars this year. Friday of this week is Good Friday — a day fittingly commemorated by several inspirational programmes on CBC. Probably the major presentation will be "The Man Called "The King", a dramatization by Dorothy Sayers of the events in the life of Christ from His entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday to his betrayal by Judas and final arrest in the garden on the Mount of Olivas. It will be shown at 8:00 p.m. And runs for 90 minutes.
Another Good Friday program, entitled The Journey, will show how Canadians from coast to coast worship their God. The journey will be telecast at 10:00 p.m.
Other Good Friday special programs are "Behold the Lamb" at 2:00, featuring sacred music by the Arcadia Chapel Choir, and "The Exaltation of Matter" an attempt to show how both labor & art create order out of chaos.

C Smallwood MP, View On Pension

In this report from Parliament Hill I would like to put before you my views regarding the Canada Pension Plan and my reasons for opposing it. I feel that the Government should have waited for the report from the Economic Council before they introduced this plan. In brief, might I say that this plan leaves out the old age pensioners of today, and many thousands who really need assistance.

The following are excerpts from my speech, given in the House of Commons on the evening of March 26th.

"The Government has plunged ahead with reckless haste in this measure.

The Minister was in a state of frenzy immediately after the election to get a plan — some kind of plan before the public.

They brought forward a half-baked version that was immediately shot down in flames by business, the farmers, labour and by the provinces. They came out with another version.

They couldn't sell it to the provinces.

Mr. Lesage got them off the hook by producing a version that was acceptable to the other provinces.

It was accepted because it offered a tremendous fund of $8 billion dollars into which the provinces could dip with no federal control.

This is one of the mysteries of this plan.

What control do we as a Parliament exercise over the disposal of this fund?

As far as I can make out, the answer is none.

Therefore, we are taxing every person in Canada who has a job, or business, or farmer, or fisherman, a total of 3.6 per cent from his payroll cheque in order to set up a huge fund with which the Federal Government could buy the support of the provinces.

People are being taxed twice what they ought to pay in regard to the benefits they are receiving simply so this fund can be established.

I can tell them that many others will only qualify for a few dollars a month.

That is another of the shortcomings of this plan.

It gives to those whose need is less, and gives nothing, or next to nothing, to those whose need is greatest.

The Minister may not be aware of this, but farmers' wives do not generally earn an income that would enable them to qualify.

Therefore, they get nothing.

Surely, in view of these shortcomings it would be simpler, more honest, easier to administer by simply increasing the present flat-rate pension so that at least all who are now pensioners; and those who would otherwise get little, would at least get something?

I understand, also that this plan will require every Canadian to carry a card with a number on it and that that number will be made available to the Income Tax Department which will be collecting the revenues for this plan.

I want to say to the Minister that I come from a long line of Canadians who are not accustomed to carrying a card with a number on it. There are many people in my riding who have had experience in other countries of being required to carry a card having a number and other identifying information.

Those people have seen the use to which such cards can be turned in exercising control over ordinary citizens. They don't like the idea of carrying such a card in a free country. To them it stands for regimentation and bureaucracy.

This card will embody unemployment insurance, national revenue, social security and perhaps other matters.

All the information contained in a file about a person's income tax will be made available to those departments — from the cradle to the grave.

I, and a great many others, fear that the Government by this process is erecting a gigantic system of regimentation and bureaucracy under which no person will be able to call his soul his own.

We know from the Minister of Revenue that the annual cost when this plan gets rolling of administration alone will come to $30 millions.

That is a lot of money.

It will require 3,000 civil servants, above and beyond those now on staff.

These are the figures.

Knowing the propensity of bureaucracy to multiply, I would say that these figures are only preliminary and that they will at least be doubled.

Doesn't that look like regimentation.

As far as I am concerned, Mr. Speaker, this plan is an administrative monstrosity, it leaves out many thousands of Canadians; it does the most for those who need it the least and leaves out those who need the most help and it saddles future generations with a tremendous bureaucratic load in addition to the load Canadians are carrying now in the way of high taxes.

Whether you call it a payroll deduction or something else, it is still a tax at a time when taxes are already too high.

I am therefore compelled to vote against a plan that only covers half the field, leaves out more than two million people and will be costly and cumbersome to administer.

I am afraid that in accepting this plan we face the danger of imposing upon the Canadian people a gigantic system of regimentation which will leave every Canadian at the mercy of a numbered card and government by computer.

The greatest task that we have in this country is the development of our resources.

How can we do this when we are diverting our national income into setting up a system which will give government final and ultimate control over the individual well-being of every citizen of this country?

1964 Alberta Rat Situation

J. B. Gurba, Alberta's Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control reports that 216 premises were infested with Norway rats last year compared to 70 in 1963. Despite this three-fold increase, all infestations were exterminated by the end of 1964 except 18 which are being mopped up as weather and road conditions permit.

Mr. Gurba says the greatest retardation pressure was felt in the County of Vermilion River and in the M.D of Provost. Special efforts where necessary in these districts to bring the situation under control. Ten man days were spent in hatcheries's new control program which had not yet been completely organized was probably responsible for the difficulties encountered in these areas. The losses is clear says Mr. Gurba. Our success in keeping Alberta free of rats since 1960 could easily be wrecked by too much complacency.

In all other districts the situation remained unchanged or improved. Rats were held along the 380 mile front, and confined to a narrow strip along the Saskatchewan border due to the staunch co-operation of local residents. Mr. Gurba reports that about 11 tons of warfarin dry bait and 4,000 quarts of water soluble bait were used to kill an estimated 36,000 migrating rats before they become established.

Seventy-six suspected rat cases were investigated outside the eastern border area. Only three of these turned out to be live rats. There local problems are handled by approximately 250 pest control officers appointed by rural and urban municipalities. According to Mr. Gurba, the vigilance and cooperation of local residents. Mr. Gurba reports that about 11 tons of warfarin dry bait and 4,000 quarts of

Bank of Montreal Review News

MONTREAL — The large program of capital spending planned for this year in Canada should not put undue strain on the economy, according to the Bank of Montreal's Business Review for March, just issued.

However, the B of M warns that if acceleration of the program were to take place, an averse quite likely, it could exert pressure on prices and balance of payments.

The B of M notes that if capital spending plans are achieved, 1965 outlays on construction, machinery and equipment will amount to about $13.5 billion, an increase of 14 per cent more than in 1964.

"This large increase will follow a 10 per cent rise last year which brought total public and private investment to a level that exceeded the previous peak in 1957 for the first time," the bank states and observes that all regions of Canada are expected to share in the increase.

INCREASE POSSIBLE

The B of M points out that these capital spending plans are subject to change. It notes past experience shows that, when business slows down, some of the projects included in first estimates are deferred or "stretched out" during the year and, when business expands, the estimates are often exceeded by a wide margin.

"Last year's estimate at this time indicated, for instance, that capital expenditures would climb 8 per cent," the bank states and recalls that expenditures actually rose 18 percent as business activity continued at a high level through out the year.

"This, with business conditions buoyant the projected increase of nearly 14 percent for 1965 may well be exceeded."

PRESSURE ON PRICES

"At this stage of the business cycle, when total activity has been expanding steadily for over four years, acceleration of a program of this magnitude might exert pressure on prices as well as on the balance of payments," the B of M states.

But, "although capital expenditures now planned for 1965 could represent about 25 percent of the gross national product this would still be well below the peak percentage reached in 1957.

"Furthermore, as the (official) survey points out, productive capacity in the investment supporting industries has grown to such an extent that it should be adequate for the most part to meet requirements of the program currently envisaged."

The bank observes that the Economic Council estimates the average annual growth of capital spending would need to be 8 percent to achieve its overall target for the economy.

"If, therefore, current investment plans are realized and if prices do not rise markedly it would appear that in this area at least the performance of the economy is so far matching the target set by the Council," the B of M review concludes.

20 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH

WHEN ROOSEVELT DIED. It was 20 years ago this month that U.S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, at 63, died of a cerebral hemorrage in Warm Springs, Ga., on April 12, 1945. PANTS COOKED JUST RIGHT

You will notice that the local men's clothing shops are advertising GWG "Never Press" trousers. They are truly what the label says, they never need pressing. Watch for increased use of this new trend. It is called the Delayed Curing process and goes under the trade name of "Koratron" or "Permanu-Press".

With this process the fabric is first shrink-controlled and then dyed before it is made up into the trousers, then the garment itself is put on a form and baked in an oven for a certain length of time. The result is no ironing, no seam puckering and no shrinkage — an invention to save you hours of work.

These "delayed-cure" pants should be washed in warm water, followed by a cold rinse. Never use bleach. Do not wring. Drip dry or dry in the dryer on a warm setting.

Remember to look for fabric blends to get more wash and wear qualities along with the above curing.

Do not expect the life of the garment to be quite as long as untreated ones. Since the creases are permanently set, the abrasion resistance of the garment is lowered. Alterations are impossible also.

HAM STYLES FOR 1965

Are you serving ham for Easter? Hams labelled "fully cooked" need no further cooking. If you wish to serve them hot, heat to 130 internal temperature.

Hams labelled "ready-to-eat" need no further cooking. If you wish to serve hot, do as above.

Whether you select the fully cooked or cook before eating ham, there is a style to satisfy your need.

You may be interested to know that the shankless ham has only the shank bone removed but the semi-boneless ham has both shank and the aitch-bone removed to make it considerably easier to carve.

How much ham do you need? The half ham has no centre slices removed, whereas the hams labelled butt or shank portion do have the centre slices removed.

There are commercial bee colonies in every province of Canada and as far north as the Arctic Circle in the Northwest Territories.

The Bible Today

Bible Society colporteur Elie of Lebanon, reports, "One day I walked towards a young man and shouted him the Bible, 'No,' said he, 'I don't have any money.'

"After thinking a little while he said: 'I have this packet of cigarettes. Let us go sell it and then buy some of those good books!' So he went to a nearby shop and I followed him. He was able to sell his cigarettes. He came out with a radiant face, handed me the money and took some of the Old Testament Portions as well as the four Gospels. As I went on my way I was praising God in times like these that there is still a thirst towards the Word of Life."

In Uruguay our reporter notes that "same colporteurs have started a systematic visiting of banks, public offices and stores with enchanting results. One sold in five months about 2,700 whole Bibles. They can all tell about new and increasing demand for Bibles."

According to the index of average wages and salaries paid in Canadians now earn in less than 30 minutes the same pay for which they worked an hour in 1949.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Smiley

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT!

Watching the world lately,I find it hard to believe that mankind has progressed very far since the day Cain clobbered Abel and began a find that has never lost its popularity — murdering one's brother.

Whether it's Alabama, Hamburg or Harvard, Quite or Quebec, the pattern is the same: clubs swinging, women screaming, shells crashing, blood spurting.

Hammering one's fellow citizen with a billy-club is one of the leading outdoor sports of the generation. It's difficult to believe that all the hatred and viciousness among men is based on color, or religion. The Palestinians and Indians loathe one another. They're the same color, different religions. The Viet Nams and Viet Congs murder each other with mutual relish. Same color and same religion.

In South Africa, whites kick the blacks around. In North Africa the blacks kick whites around. In both cases, religion is nonexistent.

In South America, the rich kick the poor around, andthey all go to the same church. In North America, wives kick their husbands around. Same color; same religion; different sex.

If it isn't racial or religious or sexual, what then is the basis for all the pounding of other people? Is it simply fear that if you don't smash the other fellow's head first, he will kick you in the groin?

Or is it something more simple and primitive, just a savage joy in the letting of blood, in pain and in cruelty?

It's hard to know. An anthropologist will say one thing, a psychologist another. And a good bartender could probably come as close to the truth as either.

It is my experience that the tensions of race, creed and color are completely artificial. It is only when they are fanned by ignorance, fear and malice that they burst into flame, ignored, they dissolve and vanish.

The other day, I was supervising an examination. For something to do I looked down a couple of rows of students and checked off their national origins. They were Swiss, Polish, Dutch, German, Italian, Norwegian, Anglo-Saxon. There were Jews and Roman Catholics and Protestants of all denominations.

They didn't even look as they should have. A red-headed German and a red-headed Jew. A couple of swarthy, black-haired Mediterranean types called Smith and Jones.

And I happen to know there is no hatred, no tension over race or religion or pigmentation, in this group. There is only the normal clash of personalities, based entirely on individual likes and dislikes.

In 1943 I trained at an R. A. F. station in England. On my course were pilots from half a dozen British possessions, from Canada and U. S., from Africa and Australia, from Trinidad and India, and from all over the British Isles.

Color ranged from silver blond Norwegian, through coffee brown Maori Indian from New Zealand to blackest West Indians. Religion was the gamut from agnostic to fervent R. C. from Baptist to Moslem. We were like brothers.

On my 21st birthday, having operated on ankle badly in a rugger game, I couldn't walk to my own birthday party. I was carried to the pub on the shoulders of a magnificent turbaned Sikh from India, a Polish Count, and Australian dairy farmer, and the fiction of a fine old Belgian family. It was my finest hour, when my brothers deposited me gently on the bar.

And it helped convince me that race, religion and color have very little to do with man's inhumanity — or humanity — to man.

MASTITIS! THE DAIRYMAN'S DILEMMA!

Mastitis is defined simply as an inflamation of the udder resulting from any cause. There are therefore as many forms or classes of Mastitis as there are causes. Mastitis ranges in its severity from the subtle, as well as in the milk secreted. The economic importance of the changes have been estimated to cost Alberta dairymen more than $2 million annually through lost milk production, cost of treatment, etc.

Control of Mastitis begins with the recognition or detection of the disease in the herd. Strip-cup-ing has been used for many years as a quick check for signs of abnormal milk. Now, a simple, convenient and practical test for indicating chronic Mastitis in dairy cows has been developed.

The California Mastitis Test, or C.M.T. as it is now referred to, makes it possible for a dairyman to check all the cows in his herd for infection and to treat Mastitis as a herd rather than a cow problem.

According to Dr. G. R. Wheeler, Bacteriologist with the Alberta Veterinary Services Branch, the C.M.T. is based upon the knowledge that Mastitis milk is much higher in the white blood cells (leucocytes) than normal milk. However, C.M.T. readings are not always accurate in the case of fresh or nearly dry cows because their milk is usually high in white blood cells even when infection is not present.

The test procedure consists of adding a small amount of a special reagent to an equal quantity of milk in a specially designed white plastic container. Sodium hydroxide in the reagent reacts with the white cells in Mastitic milk causing a gel like precipitate to form. This reaction does not take place with normal milk. The reagent also contains a color indicator which shows if the milk is alkaline or acid. Dr. Wheeler says most Mastitic milk is distinctly alkaline.

The C.M.T. is an excellent screening test and dairymen can expect to see far more use made of it in the future. It is possible to detect Mastitis problems in the herd from a bulk tank sample of milk. Within the herd, the C.M.T. is used to identify not only the problem cows but the individual problem quarters of those cows. Dairymen who are interested in a Mastitis control program for their herd may obtain further information by writing to the Alberta Veterinary Services Branch in Edmonton.

Baptist Church

The services conducted last week by Dr. K. C. Pillai proved a great inspiration and blessing. Members and pastors from the various denominations of the surrounding towns and district attended the meetings. The Bible customs which are still practised in the Orient, gave new meaning to the familiar passages. The Bible is a living book and far from becoming out-dated. It is more relevant to our day than is generally thought.

Twenty young people gathered for their regular service on Friday night. The president was in charge, with several young people participating. Mrs. Grynaischi commented the devotion on "Commitment".

Rev. Grynaischi ministered on the Sunday services.

Do you know what is the most expensive piece of furniture in the church? The choir robe! It is responsible for the closing of many churches. Sunday evening services and mid-week prayer meeting. A blight of the Sunday School problem. Inaries was a missionary demonstration. The sari (Indian dress). Indian Gods, and skin from the dangerous cobra were displayed.

NATIONAL LEADER HERE ON SAT.

The Honorable Robert Thompson, National Leader of the Social Credit Party, has accepted an invitation to speak in the Constituency, and will be present in the Community Hall at Sedgewick on the evening of Saturday, April 17th. Mr. Thompson comes at the invitation of the Sedgewick-Coronation Young Social Crediters, and has interrupted an extremely busy schedule in order to appear for this gathering.

To the best of our knowledge this is the first time that a national leader has consented to appear locally and the Young Social Crediters are to be commended in their endeavor. This group of young people constitute an active and enterprising number of citizens, and while they are politically affiliated and for the most part are politically concerned, they are nonetheless training themselves in public affairs. In this aspect of their activities they are to be commended, for it is entirely possible that some of them will one day represent us in Parliament and Legislature.

In inviting Mr. Thompson to come here, the Young Social Crediters expect to fill the hall to capacity. We in turn, urge everyone to attend the meeting. It matters little whether or not you agree with the philosophy he advocates or the policies he advances. His presence alone, as a national leader, deserves consideration.

Besides this, we understand the sponsoring group has a bit of real entertainment in store. It should be a good evening.

Stamps Receive Hockey Trophy From A.A.H.A.

ate "D" Trophy.

Mr. Wyker was introduced to the audience by Kenny Stewart, and in his remarks Mr. Wyker congratulated the Club on being the first winner of the award in this newly established category of amateur hockey in Alberta. The beautiful trophy was donated by the Calgary Brewing Co. Team Captain Johnny Geiko accepted the trophy on behalf of the club and thanked Mr. Wyker for the presentation, and congratulating the other players and the club executive for the very satisfying season.

Special trophies in the "D" series to get it off to a good start, were presented Coach Harold Morrison and to Manager, Walter Kensel, by the A.A.H.A.

Not to be outdone by any social group, the local Hardisty Hockey Club, presented awards to the team "Rookie" of the year, Danny Davis, and to the team's Most Valuable Player, Paul Dion. These presentations were made by Pat Madden, team secretary.

Other speakers were Captain John Gaibis, Leo Hendrick and Glen Miller. Receiving special praise was team goalie Vern Miller, who captured the Top Goalie award this year, adding to the Hardisty Stampeders.

The ladies of the town catered to a turkey banquet, and a social was enjoyed by all.

The Hardisty Stampeders captured the Provincial trophy by virtue of successive wins over Wainwright, Daysland and Eschaut. The latter series was played at Hardisty and Vanshell.

Bigger PFRA Dugout Grants

OTTAWA — An increase in the size of grants available for farm dugout construction under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act was announced by Agriculture Minister Harry Hays.

Effective immediately grants are boosted to a maximum of $360 from $250 per dugout. Actual payments to farmers will continue to be based on seven cents per cubic yard of earth excavated.

PFRA officials said it was desirable, particularly in the short grass areas of the Prairies, to encourage an increase in dugout depth, to at least 14 feet. The effect would be to improve water supplies for livestock and to lower dugout construction costs.

Since the PFRA was established in 1935, 15,000 dugouts have been constructed in the Prairie provinces at a total cost to government of $12,006,338. Last year 2,143 were built at a cost of $741,800.

Semi-Apartment Complex Slated For Hardisty

HARDISTY — The town of Hardisty is to have a Motel-Apartment Complex which is expected to be undertaken, and work is due to start on April 15th. The Complex will be located East of St. Anne's Hospital. and it is expected that a new street will be opened up to give access to the property from the North, South and West.

The project will constitute four 5-bedroom apartments built in Motel style to be used as permanent residence and will be fully modern in every respect.

On the same street, two new homes are scheduled for completion this summer, and the Hardisty Town Council is surveying around making plans for further expansion of streets and avenues.

Daysland Discusses Meeting Water

DAYSLAND — A public meeting in Daysland discussed the possibilities of a public water system for the town. The result of the discussions was that the Town Council has proceeded with plans to advertise the project. Surveys have been made and the details of the system may be reviewed in the Notice of Intention published on the Classified Ad page of this edition of the Community Press.

Total expenditure on the project will be in the neighborhood of $141,000.00, and if approved by the ratepayers, work will commence as soon as possible.

Pictured above is the Hardisty Pee Wee Hockey Club who have just completed a very successful season winning all but two games during the winter. The employees from the Interprovincial Pipe Line Pump Station took up a collection among themselves and financed a complete set of uniforms which include helmets and goal equipment. The Coach (Bill Garland) has great hopes for these players as years to come and feels there is definite N H L potential in some of his boys, but says that he is only looking forward to a highly competitive season next year. Easter Choral Concert Draws Large Crowd

KILLAM — The annual Easter Sacred Choral Concert, this year held in Killam, drew the usual capacity audience, to hear the various choirs and individual numbers given by the singers of the area.

Sponsored by the Pilgrimtaff Lodge Auxiliary, the program featured six choirs, interspersed with solos and duets.

Acting as M.C. and giving the welcoming address was Mr. Edward Poe.

The Pentecostal Church Choir opened the program with two numbers, A New Dawn, and Ivory Palaces, following which a devotional period was led by Rev. A. A. Lewis.

Mrs. F. Smith, Forestburg, rendered "I Know My Redeemer Liveth" as a solo, and was followed by the Killam United Church Choir with, Lead Me To Calvary, and The Easter Song. The Merna S.D.A. Choir sang The Redemption Chorus, and Mrs. Orpha Smith and Mr. V. D. Hardy rendered the duet, His Eye Is On The Sparrow.

The Killam and Strome United Church Choirs combined to favor with the personal favorite "Open The Gates of the Temple".

During a short intermission an offering was taken, and throughout the program congregational singing was carried out.

The Sedgewick and Strome United Church Choirs united to give three numbers, Crown Him King Of All; For You And For Me, and Hallelujah Christ Is Risen, following which the choirs strengthened with voices from Lougheed, sang "King of Kings".

The Forestburg United Church Choir pleased the crowd with Send Out Thy Light and Lend Your Heart and Not Your Garment, under the direction of Mrs. Kirk.

Enjoyed were three sacred hymns sung by the mens choirs, and a rendition of The Lord's Prayer by Mr. George Pettifer.

MESSAGE OF EASTER. The mood And message of Easter is captured in this little girl's smile, as she holds her prayer book, and the sunrays softly filter through a stained-glass window, illuminating the church.

ASSURES CANADA'S SUPPORT Despite President Lyndon Johnson's cool response to Prime Minister Lester Pearson's call for a pause in U.S. air attacks against North Vietnam, Mr. Pearson has reconfirmed Canada's support of U.S. policy in Vietnam. At talks with Mr. Johnson at Camp David, Md., Mr. Pearson apparently was convinced that a switch in tactics in Vietnam at this time is not advisable.

The Community Press

"Independent, But Not Necessarily Neutral, In The Public Service"

Established on July 18th, Nineteen Hundred and Eight

Why Did The Fuss Start?

In the issue of the Community Press for April 1st, an editorial was headed, "What's All The Fuss About?" It will be recalled that the article referred to the use of nausea gas in the fighting in Vietnam. While condemning warfare in any form as a means of achievement, we condoned the use of disabling gas against the use of bullets and bayonets, as being more humane.

There was a hue and cry when the news broke, some of it coming from such nations as Britain, who at the outset should have known better, but for the most part it came from communist countries with the inter intent to propagandize the world in American inhumanity and brutality. As time went on and events crystalized into the truth, the picture became clearer and brighter, and the western world has awakened to the fact that Americans are not complete scoundrels after all.

There is gas that disables and there is gas that kills. The former are known as; Vomiting Gases; Tear Gases; Psychochemical Gases; Knockout Gases. These incapacitate the victim for periods of 3 minutes to 2 hours, with varying degrees of discomfort, but no permanent injury. Killing gases, known as: Nerve Gases; Blood Gases; Blister Gases and Choking Gases, on the other hand, kill from within minutes to hours.

The gases that disable, and were used in Vietnam, by the South Vietnamese, were some of the same gases, like tear gas, that we so smugly allow our police forces to use in flushing out law-breakers, and is used throughout the world to control civil disturbances and riots. Such gas was used by the British in Cyprus in 1958; it was used by West Berlin on occasions at the Wall; it has been used by the National Guard in the U.S. and by the Panamanian Government. Britain has distributed this gas to Venezuela, Australia, Malaya, Cyprus, Nigeria, Trinidad, Santa Lucia, Indonesia, Belgium, British Guiana, Gambia, Ghana, Rhodesia, South Africa, Switzerland, Sweden and others. Russia used the same kind of gas against Chinese and other students rioting in Russia. The French are known to have had a large stock of this gas in Vietnam when they were in control there.

It would appear that these disabling gases are pretty well distributed about the world and are used when occasion seems to demand. So again we say, why all the fuss?

Majority Rule

We draw your attention to a letter to the Editor elsewhere on this page, and while withdrawing entirely from direct comment on the letter or the cause of it, the two combined bring to mind a point or two we would like to make on our own.

First to be explored is the matter of whether or not the majority should rule, and if so does it necessarily follow that the majority is always right and that what it advocates is always what it should have, and in fact really wants. Even a majority could be wrong and while we perhaps believe that majorities should be listened to, their policies may be detrimental with harmful results to society in the final analysis. It is even conceivable that a minority could be more correct, and in the end lead society along better paths. There is a growing tendency today to "get on the band wagon" and many will follow any lead that is popular at the moment, with the sometimes and result that policies are foisted on the public which eventually work to their disadvantage, politically, socially, and economically, to say nothing of the spiritual welfare of people. While governments are elected to serve the people, they must not be subjected to the whims of every group advocating whatever comes to mind. That they may reject such policies is their right as legislators. That is why it is so very important that the voting public be extremely cautious in electing men and women of the highest moral and social standards, for it is only in this way that they get the results they really want.

The Stick And The Carrot

Shades of "Teddy" Roosevelt were recalled recently when President Lyndon Johnson spoke to the American people on the U.S. policy in Vietnam and the world as now constituted. It was the late President Roosevelt who made famous the saying, "walk lightly and carry a big stick". President Johnson, in his speech, lightly waved a same kind of stick in affirming American policy in Vietnam, and her hopes for the world. At the end of the stick however he dangled an inviting carrot in the form of a billion dollars in aid from the American people for economic and social re-habilitation of South AND North Vietnam. While re-terming the determination of the U.S. to pursue its objectives in Asia, he certainly left the door wide open for settlement. In offering assistance for development, he stuck fast to previously adopted terms of peaceful settlement. He did in fact throw the gauntlet of responsibility at the opposition, and left it to them to decide the future fate of the areas involved.

Responsibility for maintaining the status quo has weighed heavily on the nations of the world since the ending of active hostilities in 1945. New nations springing into being without the finances and the ability to govern their own affairs, have made heavy demands on the industrial nations of the world, and in the giving of this assistance there must and should be an amount of advice and regulatory restrictions to its use. After all the one who provides the assistance, should also control its use to some extent.

The only hope the world has for peaceful co-existence is for people to realize that to attain the economic and social standards desired, there must be peace, that people may be free from fear and discrimination in their pursuit of affluence and happiness. In these pursuits at least part of the Western civilization stands ready to assist. The rest must follow this lead, for it is only by so doing that emerging nations will ever reach statehood.

EDITOR OF THE ALLISTON HERALD quotes the editor of a "big French paper" as saying, "We want real federalism. I am a federalist. I want to see cooperation among the provinces without dictation from any central government."

* MACDUFF REPORT

OTTAWA — The Throne speech read at the opening of the third session of the 26th Parliament set out a sweeping social welfare program that might become an election manifesto. The document clearly hinted out the order "Left Turn Liberals".

Members of the CCF party were more direct describing the Prime Minister St. Laurent as "Liberals in a hurry".

After examining the welfare program many MP's concluded that the Liberal Party under the leadership of Rt. Hon. L. B. Pearson had not only caught up to the CCFers, not known as the New Democratic Party, but had passed them by.

However, the national leader of the NDP Party, T. C. Douglas, remains to be convinced. After listening to Prime Minister outline many of the progressive measures proposed in the throne speech he cynically observed that for 22 years out of the past 45 Canada had been under Liberal administrations. Now after that long period of Liberal governments, Mr. Pearson was sounding a declaration of war on poverty.

Obviously somewhat indignant that the Liberals had pulled a program out from under his party Mr. Douglas expressed serious doubts that the ambitious measures set out by the Liberals would ever be implemented by the present administration.

The speech from the throne, written by the Liberal Government and read by Gov.-Gen. Vanier certainly outlined a program of action. If promised steps would be taken towards setting up a national medical care plan. It outlined a five-pronged attack on poverty.

Also forecast was the creation of a Company of young Canada (CYC). This group will be a sort of economic social shock force in which the energies and talents of youth will be enlisted, in Canada and also abroad.

Prime Minister Pearson will take direct command of the war on poverty and the campaign to equalize opportunities for all Canadians. Under the Prime Minister will be set up a special secretariat to co-ordinate the new program of economic and welfare legislation.

Mr. Pearson in his contribution to the throne speech debate went into some detail on the new Canada Assistance Plan. It will augment the Canada Pension Plan and provide Federal aid for the poor not now covered by Federal-Provincial programs. It will base welfare payments on needs rather than means.

The plan will encourage co-ordinated approach to public assistance, in place of the existing patchwork of support under every Federal election. They are: the Old Age Assistance Act of 1951; the Blind Persons Act of 1951; the Disabled Persons Act of 1954; and the Unemployment Assistance Act of 1956.

The Prime Minister said that if provinces accept the New Canada Assistance Plan then there will be no longer an income limitation on the assistance available to persons now covered by old age assistance. Federal sharing at present is now limited to half of the $75 a month. Under the proposed new plan payments can be based on the assessment of the recipient's needs.

This change will be of particular benefit to those older people who have had an opportunity to benefit under the Canada Pension Plan. In cases of need, additional assistance will be available. This will apply not only to those aged 65 to 69 but also to the people over 70 who in many provinces have not had access to assistance.

In addition to this major change in the scope for assistance for elderly people the proposals provide for three major extensions of the federal sharing of assistance costs. These will include: assistance to needy mothers; health care services for assistance recipients and the costs of sharing in the strengthening and expansion of welfare services for assistance recipients.

Mr. Pearson has told the House of his Government's plans for eliminating poverty and fully utilizing human resources. First there is the area development program. It will be extended to other areas, which although not having heavy unemployment are defined for the existing designated areas, do have low levels of income. There will be new methods of assisting industrial development in those areas.

Second the Government will be do veloping a series of measures to help persons to qualify for and secure new jobs, to move when they

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Community Press
Sedgewick, Alberta

Dear Sir:

I am quite interested in the advertisements in your paper inserted by the Young Social Creditors and was particularly pleased to note that some 7000 Alberta young people are being trained at our schools under the 4-H program. However was a bit confused to see later on that "Social Credit believes that the proper function of democratic government is to secure for the people the results they want from the management of their public affairs." How does this group of Young Social Creditors relate this statement of fact with the results the people of Alberta are getting. How does it happen that Edmonton and Calgary are denied Sunday Commercial Sports when a majority have indicated they want it? Here was it be democratic to demand that 66 2/3 rd majority is required for (illegible). Do majorities not matter in this case? How come fall and adequate answers are not given to questions of public affairs such as Northland School Area, which the people want? Is it true your government believes in giving the people what they want, or that the government should decide for them WHAT they want, and give that to them? I would like to see one or two of your spees in the Community Press used to answer some of these questions. For instance: Does the Young Social Credit Group believe that majority should rule; does it believe that the people know what they want, and therefore should have it? The answers should be interesting Mr. Editor. Thank you for this space. —Yours, Non-Social Creditor

Dear Sir:

We have been advised that the Kiliam Superintendent will not participate in the 1965 Youth Travel Program. The Centennial Commission did not see fit to include Alberta's quota. However, our application has been placed in the 1966 file and we are assured that should we wish to participate we will be included. — Yours very truly,

M. S. Bruce,
Superintendent of Schools

Dear Sir:

I do wish I could address you by name because the editorial "A Boy and his Dog" has impressed me so much.

We have a press clipping service which delivered to us a copy of this editorial and we are writing to thank you for the wonderful manner in which your remarks support the Easter Seal Campaign. I do wish that these words of yours could be printed in all the newspapers throughout Canada. I am sure that they would have a tremendous impact and awaken people to the needs of crippled youngsters.

A copy of this letter is going to Mr. C. Bradley, our Easter Seal Chairman in Camrose. The Camrose Lions covers your area. If you are ever in Camrose, do drop in and see Mr. Bradley at the Byers Flour Mill. He would be delighted to meet you. Should you be in Edmonton do drop in at our office. I should like to meet you personally.

Thanking you again for the excellence of your article, Yours very sincerely,

E. Donovan Jones,
Executive Director.

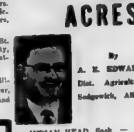
GREEN ACRES

By
A. E. EDWARDS
Dist. Agriculturist
Sedgewick, Alberta



INDIAN HEAD, Sask — If a farmer is willing to accept wide fluctuations in yield and can cope with weeds and an increased insect problem, he is in a position to take chances on continuous wheat cropping. This is the view of E. V. Cordy of CDA's Experimental Farm here.

Continuous wheat has been compared with wheat on summerfallow for the past seven years in experiments at the Experimental Farm in 1963 and 1964 less than three inches of rainfall were reported in the growing season. The difference between the two was unusual seasons are included in the test period.

Continuous wheat averaged 14.3 bushels per acre without fertilizer. Yields increased to 19.3 bushels with 100 pounds of 14-28-0 or with 80 pounds of 27-14-0. Yields ranged from a complete failure in 1961 to 25.5 bushels in 1962. The effect of the fertilized crop exceeded 29 bushels per acre in five of the seven years.

Wheat grown on summerfallow averaged 32.4 bushels per acre when 60 pounds of 11-48-0 were applied with the seed. This is slightly less than the 19.3 bushels for continuous wheat considering that half the land is in fallow. The yields ranged from 15.5 bushels to 41 bushels during the seven years. Even in 1961, 15.5 bushels were produced.

The test plots were moderately infested with wild oats at the start of the project. During the past two years, wild oats have been controlled with chemicals. Wild oats are now present on the continuous wheat plots. An aster of 2,4-D has been used each year to keep annual broadleaf weeds from increasing. This group of plots is relatively free from broadleaf weeds, has few thistles and no couch grass.

Mr. McCready points out that summerfallow has proved to be an excellent method of insuring high crop yields, even in districts where seasonal rainfall is not the limiting factor in crop production.

Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary Hold Short Meeting

SEDGEWICK — The Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary met on the evening of April 5th for a brief business meeting. Mrs. Strosahl reported on the handicraft display held in Killam, and that the Lodge hoped to have more articles ready for display in the fall, and possibly have a small bazaar. So far the ones have been accepted with repair work around the Lodge and they have enjoyed helping Mrs. Strosahl paint the walls of her rooms.

All enjoyed hearing Mr. Ernest Koehl speak on the organization of the Lodge and the projects carried on. He made very helpful suggestions on the work of the Auxiliary and appreciation for the work being done. His talk ended with a quiz and answer period.

The ladies were then invited upstairs to see the coffee cupboard installed by Mr. Klemmer. Over and then to the lounge to see the latest installation, an aquarium of tropical fish. The tank was donated by Mr. Bill Hayes of Sedgewick, and members of the Lodge pooled their resources to purchase the fish, heater and filter for the tank, the seven varieties of tropical fish and other necessary equipment for the fish. To date 2 wee baby guppies had arrived.

A lone communication from the Senior Citizens Home from time to time to enjoy a pleasant time together with lunch.

A delicious lunch was provided and served by Mrs. D. Taylor.

ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR BULLETIN:

Important Message from A. W. Eastly of the Community Press:

How you can help to give enterprising young Albertans the credit they deserve

I'm proud to be one of the many weekly newspaper editors who, every year, receive nominations from readers, for Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards. After all, isn't it true that meritorious conduct on the part of our youngsters deserves to be recognized? This is why I'm glad to hear about young people who you - my readers - believe deserve these Junior Citizen Awards. It may be an individual, or it may be a group of two or more (don't forget, there's a special award for groups).

How do our young people qualify? Well, good citizenship takes endless forms! Physical heroism. Community work. Undertaking exceptional responsibilities in the home. Church work. Going out of one's way to help someone in difficulty. I could go on for several columns! The important thing is, if you know of enterprising youngsters between 6 and 16 years, who have done something worthwhile since August 1964 . . .

Just tell me about them

Be sure to include your own name and address. Nominators of winners are entitled to nominator certificates. Remember, too, all youngsters nominated will receive certificates of recognition. Contact me by letter, phone, or in person!

INCREASED FARM PROSPERITY: If the Federal Government succeeds in implementing the farm program unveiled in the new session of Parliament, there will be a general hike in farm income across Canada. Ottawa promises special help for "family farms," a federal-provincial conference on rural development, expanded regional assistance for low-income rural areas, with a special fund for farm loans, and action to raise income levels of dairy farmers by establishment of a Canadian dairy commission.

MacDuff Report

need to and to get the training they require.

Third, because much of Canada's worst poverty and waste of human resources is rural, the Government proposes to extend the work of A.R.D.A. (Agricultural Rehabilitation & Development Act) by creating a special fund to be available for development projects. The fourth point in the Pre-pronged plan was the proposal to organize Young Canadians in the CYC which the Prime Minister said he expected to be nick-named the "Eager Beavers". And the fifth point is the Canada Assistance Plan.

The surprising 8000 word document left many observers breathless. On a again the Federal Government will be moving into provincial jurisdictions. This will mean more federal-provincial conferences and considerable negotiating behind the scenes.

The throne speech was nearly double the length of the speech that saw the opening of the second session in 1964. That session lasted 249 sitting days — longest in history.

A heavy job that will confront the session of the decennial revision of the Bank Act. It was supposed to take place last year and had to be postponed until the Royal Commission on Banking made its report.

The throne speech also proposed new policies to increase the income of farmers and fishermen. For the farmers there will be special assistance for family farms, establishment of the Canadian Dairy Commission, new national policies on marketing products and farmer movement and marketing arrangements for feed grains.

An expansion of the national fish aries development program would be designed to raise income levels in fishing communities.

With the work before them the M P's may have to sit 14 months or more to complete the throne speech s'hedule. Of course there could be an election fever on next year for dissolution or defeat of the minority government. That, in the words of the Prime Minister "remains to be seen" as he challenged the opposition to unite to defeat his Government.

How Long Did It Take To Court Your Wife?

Did you just happen to see her, walk up to her, ask her to marry you and call in the minister . . . right on the spot —

PERHAPS NOT . . . It probably took a lot of calls, and trips, movies, flowers, candies, and a lot of putting-your-best-foot forward tactics. You had to "sell" yourself. She had to know all about you!

IT'S THE SAME WITH ADVERTISING of time . . . you've got to win their confidence . . . you can't "woo" customers with one Ad . . . you've got to "Call on Them" over a period and be convincing.

CONSISTANT ADVERTISING wins the customers if it's truthful, if it gives helpful information, if it saves shopping steps, if it is backed up with intelligent, courteous and honest values.

LET'S EXAMINE EGGS!

Some of you have been asking if eggs may be frozen right in the shell. This is NOT satisfactory since the eggs crack and frozen yolk becomes gummy unless it is mixed with sugar and salt.

Whole Eggs to be used in Main Course Dishes – Break eggs out of shell and add 1/2 tsp. salt per cup of whole egg. Mix thoroughly with fork, package and freeze.

Whole Eggs to be used in Baking and Desserts – Add 1 2 tsp. sugar per cup of whole eggs.

EGG YOLKS – If used in Mayonnaise add 1/2 tsp. salt to 1/4 cup of yolks

If to be used in Baking and Desserts add 1 2 tsp. sugar to 1/4 cup yolks

Egg Whites – Egg whites may be frozen separately without adding salt or sugar. Simply package and freeze.

Wax or plastic cartons or glass jars are suitable containers for packaging frozen eggs. If smaller quantities are desired, 2 to 4 eggs may be frozen in custard cups, then removed from the cups and the frozen blocks stored in moisture-vapour proof freezer bags. This simplifies measuring as eggs are all ready for recipes.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Avoid wrinkles around the edges of shirt and blouse collars by ironing them from the corners towards the centre back.

Invert a hot bowl over butter too hard to spread. The butter softens but doesn't melt.

Store electrical cords away from heat. Never wind a cord around a hot appliance, or heat an appliance with the cord around it.

FRESH MILK IN POP BOTTLE

Many nutritionists are concerned about the amount of milk young people and teenagers are drinking. A solution, or at least a helping hand, may be on the way.

A Creamery in Fargo, N. D., is packing white and chocolate milk in soft drink bottles, transporting them in 24 bottle packs, and selling them for 10c a bottle.

According to company management, "It's so simple we are almost embarrassed we didn't try it before. We've never seen an item in our business at hot as this one is right now in sales appeal".

Maybe we should try to in Alberta!

LARS LARSON, B.C. BUSINESSMAN, BURIED AT HOPE APRIL 3RD

Lars Larson, retired Hope restaurant man, died from a heart attack at his home at 721 Fraser St. shortly after 9 p.m. Wednesday. He would have been 65 in mid June.

He had suffered a minor attack Sunday.

Lars and his wife, Ellen came to Hope in 1947, and operated the Cariboo Cafe next to the Port Hotel, on property now occupied by Pope Motors. On Feb. 7, 1949, afire completely destroyed the cafe and the old hotel.

Mr. Larson then opened the Good Eats Cafe in premises on Wallace Street where the Woods block now stands and the Hope restaurant in a building which is now part of Dyson's store.

When the Corbett block was built Lars closed the other two cafes and opened a fine new restaurant in the summer of 1955. He called it the Cariboo Cafe.

He operated this business until June 1, 1958 when he sold out to his long-time friend and business associate, Ole Olson. Since then he has contented himself with fishing and traveling.

When he opened the Cariboo Cafe he established a policy of never closing excepting for renovations, and the word soon spread among travellers, and he made the acquaintanceship of thousands of these people.

Prior to coming to Hope, he had been active in the fishing industry at the Coast. Before that he had worked at logging in the Kootenays and had been in partnership with Ole Olson in a logging enterprise at Sicamo City at one time. He and Ole were planning to leave this May for an extended holiday in their native Norway.

He was a popular member of the business community and was widely known for his energetic & generous support of all community endeavours.

For many years he was a member of Hope Lions Club, but withdrew when he retired from business.

He was a member of Fraser view Oddfellows Lodge, A.O.T.S. and a member of the board of stewards of Hope United Church.

He is survived by his wife, Ellen his mother in Vancouver; four brothers, Otto of Salmo, Nelson of Chase, Spud of Langley and Alf of Whalley; three sister, two in Vancouver and Mrs. Brandingen of Sedgewick.

Funeral services were held Sat. April 3rd at Hope United Church.

Hardisty Hi-Lites

(By Mrs. B. Matthews)

Mr. and Mrs. B. Matthews and Bill spent Sunday at the A. M. Hutchinson home at Dukanel.

The Legion Auxiliary met in the Hut on Monday evening. The report on the variety show was most satisfactory. Plans were made for the annual cancer canvass to be held the last week in April. Attention was drawn to the fact that money lost in last fall's theft disclosure is being recovered, and that reorganization with a view to preventing such a thing happening again has been undertaken. The members trust that the canvass for this fine cause will not suffer. Hardisty has an excellent record of giving.

Bedding plant orders are coming in now that spring is really here. It is hoped that more will come.

Homecomes for lunch were Mrs. Margaret McClements and Mrs. J. McClements.

Rusy Bone met at the P. Draper home with Bette Rittsleiter as hostess. Bridge prizes were won by Evelyn Edworthy & Vicki Antonne, while a special Easter door prize went to Jean Garland.

The Legion Bingo for electrical appliances held in the Vista Theatre Wednesday night was a decided success, especially for the lucky winners. The blackout, an electric blanket, went to Mrs. Bethe Chapman of Amisk, the door prize was won by Maurice Manning.

Mr. Wilfred Devitt of Camp Wainright spent a few days with his family here. Mrs. Devitt returned to Wainwright with him for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnsrud of Edgerton were recent visitors with his brother Ing and family.

Mrs. O'Reilly passed away on Friday in Calgary. Mrs. Don Wood had gone to Calgary to be with her mother who had suffered a stroke before her death.

The UCW of St. Paul's Church held their annual Easter Tea and Bake Sale on Saturday attracting the usual good crowd.

Karen Drever spent the week end at her home here.

Mrs. Mildred Frazier has returned from visiting in California.

BABES ARE CHIMPS. Chimps make champion pets, says Kurt Fejzaak of Toronto, as he takes the latest addition to his family for a stroll. In their stroller built for two, Seppi (left) and Heidi relax while an amused crowd looks on. Mr. Fejzaak has five children, but that didn't stop him from adopting the chimpanzees as pets. "They have their own room and everything," he said.

AWARDS AND LOANS TO ALBERTA STUDENTS TO INCREASE

A substantial increase in the amount of awards and loans to Alberta students is anticipated this year following a change in the Student's Assistance Act announced by Education Minister, the Hon. H. H. McKinnon. The Act governs the Queen Elizabeth Education Scholarship Fund. It is administered by the Student's Assistance Board, which also handles the administration of loans under the Canada Student Loans Plan.

During the fiscal year ending March 31 this year, expenditures under the two plans will total approximately $3,900,000 compared with $1,941,000 the previous year.

A total of 11,000 awards and loans were made to students in the 1964-65 fiscal year. The 5,600 provincial awards accounted for $1,940,000 and 1,700 provincial bursaries totalled $700,000. Another 4,500 loans totalling $2,100,000 were approved through the Canada Student Loans Plan.

Under the new regulations assistance has been expanded in several areas. Province of Alberta Matriculation Scholarships and Province of Alberta Undergraduate Scholarships were previously limited to 300 in each category. The ceiling has now been removed and sufficient funds provided to cover every student in both groups with an average of 75 per cent or better. These scholarships are valued at $100 each and may be increased up to $1,250 if financial need exists. Grants are awarded on the basis of the previous year's average and financial need.

Structure of the grant plan has also been changed to enable students with an average of 60 to 69.9 per cent to obtain grants of up to $300. Those with averages over 70 may obtain grants up to $400.

University students may also be considered eligible for loans up to $1,000 per year under the Canada Student Loan Plan, either separately or in conjunction with provincial grant or scholarship.

Increases have also been made for students enrolled in the faculty of graduate studies. Previously 2 provincial fellowships have been offered at $3,600 each. Now six fellowships will be offered. Scholarships to students in the faculty of graduate studies have been increased to 20 from ten. Value of the scholarships has been increased from $2,200 or $2,500 to $2,800 or $3,000 each. Fellowships and scholarships are awarded primarily on academic achievement.

Vocational students will also reap benefits under the changes.

Students taking technical training at one of the provincial institutes of technology, students at agricultural and vocational colleges and student nurses may receive loans up to $1,000 in any school year under the Canada Student Loans Plan. Those not eligible for these loans may obtain a similar loan through the provincial plan. Provincial grants to these students have been increased from $200 to $400 for those standing in the top quarter of the class and from $200 to $300 for those in the second highest quarter of the class. Student nurse grants of $150 are available in addition to loans.

Prizes to vocational students showing high achievement in courses have been increased from 100 to 150 at $50 each. Similarly the number of prizes to agricultural students has been increased from 21 to 34.

Bursaries are available to students at the Banff School of Fine Arts. These have a maximum value of $200 each and are designed to assist students in summer sessions. Total funds available for these awards have been increased from $3,500 to $4,500.

A new section in the provincial plan provides loans up to $600 a year to indentured apprentices and tradesmen. These are available to those attending full time day classes in technical or vocational institutes under the auspices of the provincial Apprenticeship Board.

Beware Of Spring Water Hazards

April and May have warm records for drownings than do the summer months, according to the National Safety League of Canada. For this reason, the League has issued advice which, if followed by early spring campers, could save many lives.

First, NEL said, make sure the boat, motor and safety equipment are in good condition before venturing into waters which are only still clinging to shorelines or remain in open areas. Be careful not to overload the boat.

The Threat Of Unlicensed Varieties

The following statements on the detrimental effects of growing unlicensed varieties of wheat in Western Canada have been prepared by Dr. A. E. Hannah, Director, Research Station, Canada Department of Agriculture, Winnipeg.

The Board of Grain Commissioners report that unlicensed, inferior varieties of wheat are being grown and distributed by a few individuals in the Prairie Provinces. This practice can have far greater repercussions than is realized. First of all, it has the immediate effect of reducing the confidence of customers in high quality Canadian wheat. Secondly, it interferes with the ability of plant science research teams to produce varieties that are suitable for production throughout the prairies. Each variety, to be eligible for the top grades, must have exceptional bread-making quality and good agronomic and disease characteristics. Furthermore, it must have identifying features that permit it to be readily separated from all varieties or lots which are not of good milling or baking quality. Canada's export markets depend heavily on our quality grain.

A grain grower who produces and distributes unlicensed, unrecommended varieties assures that his crop and that of his fellow producers in the area will receive a reduced grade. Moreover, he adds to the problems of the research teams charged with producing suitable varieties to meet regional production problem. The unlikely possibility that such a producer will receive a quick profit does not justify the long-term, harmful effects of growing unlicensed varieties.

All varieties which show promise whether produced in Canada or other countries, are subjected to rigorous tests to determine their value for Canadian conditions. Producers who follow the official wheat variety recommendations for their area will, in the long run, make more

ALBERTA FARM CASH INCOME

Alberta's 1964 farm cash income increased $78 million or 11.6 per cent compared to 1963 but total net income decreased by approximately $26 million during the year.

R. E. English, Agricultural Statistician with the Alberta Farm Economics Branch, reports that last year's gross income from the sale of farm products totalled 806 million compared to $728 million in 1963. Total net income, on the other hand decreased from $323 million in 1963 to less than $297 million in 1964.

Mr. English points out that two factors were responsible for the paradox between the cash and net income statements. These were high farm investment recorded on Dec. 31, 1963 and an increase in product costs in 1964.

Since the Canadian Wheat Board drew wheat required for shipment to Russia in the fall of 1963 from Manitoba and Saskatchewan, the movement of wheat from Alberta was relatively light until after the New Year. Consequently, farm inventory values at the end of 1963 were up $82 million from the previous year.

The other factor contributing to the discrepancy between cash and net incomes was that farm operating and depreciation charges rose from $342 million in 1963 to $380 million in 1964. According to Mr. English this increase amounted to almost $200 for each commercial farm in the province.

Labor income in Canada increased from $17,650,000,000 in 1939 to an estimated $23,980,000,000 in 1964.

From 1961 to 1964 the average wage in manufacturing in Canada rose by $18 to $83 a week.

At Fort Churchill on Hudson Bay the northern lights are visible about 200 nights of the year.

Estimates Of This Years Plantings

OTTAWA — Canadian farmers intend to plant 23.3 million acres to all classes of wheat according to plans at March 1, states a DBS report. This is 5 per cent less than last year's record 29.7 million seeded acres and represents a seven per cent upward trend. Durum acreage may be only half of the 1.5 million acres given to this crop in 1964.

Other estimates, followed by previous acreage:

Oats —	10.1 million (9.7 in 1964)
Barley —	6.1 million (5.5)
Mixed grains —	1.5 million (1.4
Corn for grain —	650,000(600,000)
Rapeseed —	1,265,000 (699,000)

A WOMAN'S SPHERE

In April, 1964, A question was asked, "Should a woman's sphere be limited to the Home"? Kate Field's beautiful poem says "NO", in the following lines:

"They talk about a woman's sphere
as though it had a limit.
There's not a place on earth or Heaven,
There's not a task to mankind
given,
There's not a Blessing or a woe
There's not a whispered "Yes" or
"No",
There's not a life, or death or birth,
That has a feather's-weight of worth
Without a woman in it".

I agree with Kate Field, But in all honesty, there would One world be today without our Men? The woman has always been termed "The Weaker Sex". WHY? In what way? (Other than possibly in muscular strength) and I might say right here, I have seen many women who could handle jobs which required muscle, strength and durability, equally as well as most men.

I have also seen MEN take over in a Mother-less home, and, besides holding down a responsible job, "Keep The Home-fires Burning", and raise his family equally well. (With the help, sometimes, of a cleaning woman coming in two or three times a week).

In this day and age, many women hold down jobs almost every day, even to becoming famous "Astronauts" which, in former years, Flying, was never even thought of.

But, I ask, in all seriousness, IS THIS NECESSARY? Frankly, I don't think not. I believe that if women stayed home and looked after their families, AS THEY SHOULD, and let the men handle the job of bringing home the bacon, there would be less un-employment, as well as less delinquency, also, in some cases, much happier homes, too.

Of course, there are exceptions to every rule. There are instances where the man may be physically unfit to hold down a paying job, therefore, the woman HAS to take over the job, the double load of looking after her family and keeping house, AND working at a job, as well. To such, I "Take off my hat".

But isn't there a tendency that, as mother (Naturally) becomes boss weary & nerve-wrecked, she becomes more or less "Short in the grain" and takes it out on the family. In time, the children cease to take their problems to Mother, and go elsewhere for information, sometimes getting said information from questionable quarters.

Or, maybe Husband would enjoy taking his family on a "Jaunt", fishing, or picnicking, but Mother is just too "Flayed out", so, the whole family stays home. Is this Mother's fault? Absolutely NOT, a body can take just so much.

Then there is another angle to the question of "Mother's Sphere". If the family are grown up, and Mother is still "physically fit and mentally able" to hold down a job, (Whether financially necessary or not) all honor to her for doing so.

With the many labor-saving devices in the modern home-to-day to help the women to do their house work more quickly, they SHOULD be more free, for other things. Although, frankly speaking, they seem to have LESS time than ever.

What am I leading up to? Well, I have given a "Matter of fact" opinion of my mind and have come up to the conclusion, that, if the woman actually HAS to work out, and can conscientiously do so, ALL WELL AND GOOD

But, why not, (If you are well enough and financially able to do so and have too much time on your hands) spend some of your little-heedless waif who is HUNGRY for "Loving-care", and spend your time and energy (and LOVE), bringing happiness to them? You would then have the satisfaction not only of making that child happy and well-cared for, but the wonderful feeling of "Doing it unto one of the least of these" thus fulfilling one of Christ's commandments.

So, I STILL maintain, all in all, that a woman's place should STILL be in the home.

I am aware of the fact that the young folks of today would term me "Square" (or more politely say I am "Old fashioned".) Be that as it may, I shall always feel that this world of today would not be "In the mess" it is in, if women stayed at home and "Manned the guns" from there.

A FALLEN LEAF. It may only be April, but as this picture proves, the Leafs are beginning to fall. Leaf serving as example is Toronto Maple Leafs' Al Arbour, who bellyflops to the ice in front of his team's goal to keep Montreal Canadiens' Henri Richard, left, from scoring. After having won the Stanley Cup three straight years, the Leafs wound up this season in fourth place, and went into the playoffs with odds against them.

SUGAR AND SPICE
By Bill Smiley

A chap from a paint company phoned me other day and asked me to write an article on house-painting. At first I was a little nonplussed, as I have never painted a house in my life.

Then I remembered the ham. One time the boss' farmer asked me to write an article about pigs, and I agreed.

My wife snorted, "What do you know about pigs?"

"Exactly," I retorted. I set out wrote an account of the life and the times of a hog that for sheer ignorance of the subject has never been surpassed. The hog farmers liked it. And that Christmas I received a 12-pound ham from a packing company, no a gift.

While I was chatting with this paint man on the phone, my mind began to race along these lines. "If a little feature on hogs produced a beautiful ham, surely a few hundred words on house-painting would be good for a couple of cases of some paint. And I have to paint the trim on my house this spring. So ——".

While it is a fact that there isn't likely a man in North America who has spent more time not painting houses than I, it is not quite true that I have never painted a house. At the same time, it is not quite true that I have painted a house.

Let me explain. One summer, in a period of acute mental depression, I spent my entire vacation trying to paint the trim on the ancient and sagging heap of first and second mortgages we'd just bought.

It was during the first nauseous, lingering bloom of the do-it-yourself sickness. The whole country was full of sweating, cursing, frustrated men struggling to assemble everything from golf carts to fly-foot yachts from their "handy horse kits".

I was hooked too. I decided to paint the house myself. Achieve personal satisfaction; back in my wife's good books; save all that money.

There didn't seem to be much to it. "A few gallons of paint and you won't know the old place. Probably double its value," I recited a ladder, bought brushes, paint, and turps, as we old house-painters call it.

The house trim was almost 60 feet off the ground. I climbed up to have a look at the old paint. Half an hour later, my wife came out to call the kids and found me there, clinging with both arms and both legs to the top of the ladder, white as chalk and trembling with fear. She had to call the fire department to get me down.

I lowered my sights and decided that, for that year, it would be enough to paint the window frames on the ground floor.

First, I had to scrape, where it was blistered and cracked and peeled. Did you ever try to scrape flint? In fall? It was the hottest summer in 20 years.

I'd scrape for half an hour, clear a patch four inches by four, then climb down, dripping, and go in and fetch a cold beer. As I emerged, instantaneously, three or four neighbors would emerge from hiding behind their hedges and join me, with tongues hanging out.

To cut a long story short, I got two and a half windows done that year. It cost me about $200 for the dried-out brushes, spilled paint, the ruined clothing, and all that beer.

The next summer, I sensibly hired a couple of painters. They did a bang-up job and didn't even charge extra for that paint they put on the brickwork, the window panes, the lawn, the vines, and the children.

But the whole business gave me a lasting interest in house painting, and I formed a few maxims I'm too happy to pass along to the novice.

First of all, you must have the proper equipment for house-painting. Two basic items are a house & some paint. A third thing that makes the job bearable is a wife who likes painting.

Oh, yes, one more thing. You should have a swimming pool. Drain the water and fill the pool with turpentine. You'll need it, all of it. Happy house-painting.

Is There Life on Mars?

The Mariner 4 spacecraft now speeding towards Mars will help answer a question that has tantalized men for centuries: is there life on the red planet?

When Mariner 4 flies near Mars in July, 1965, if all goes well the craft will measure radiation, test the Martian atmosphere, and take pictures. The data sent back will not settle the old question, but should add important new facts to the continuing debate.

Many scientists believe that life exists on Mars — not the bug-eyed monsters of science fiction, but probably a low form of vegetation comparable to moss or lichens. A few biologists suggest, however, that intelligent animals could live on Mars.

"We should at least try to keep our minds open, so that we could survive the initial shock of encountering them," said Dr. Frank B. Salisbury, a plant physiologist.

MARS PUT IN FOCUS

Speculation about life on Mars began after the invention of the telescope. The instrument showed that the planet was a solid body, not just a light in the sky. Christian Huygens, the 17th-century physicist and telescope maker, calculated that light and heat on Mars are "twice and sometimes three time less than ours, to which I suppose the constitution of his inhabitants is answerable."

Belief that intelligent creatures lived on Mars became widespread in the 19th century when the possibility preoccupied both the man on the street and the man in the observatory.

In 1877, Giovanni Virginio Schiaparelli, of the Milan Observatory, reported seeing an astonishing system of lines crisscrossing Mars. He identified them as grooves, or canali, which was misleadingly translated as "canals."

The theory soon developed that Mars was a dying planet, and intelligent beings were struggling to keep it alive by irrigation. Camille Flammarion, the "Poet of the Skies," helped popularize this idea with his books and an imaginative globe of Mars.

Flammarion and others were almost too convincing. In 1900, the Prix Pierre Guzman offered 100,000 francs to the person who succeeded in establishing communication with another world — any except Mars, that is. The prize committee felt signaling Mars would be too easy. It wasn't. The best idea that astronomers could devise was a series of geometrically arranged fires. The Martians might reply by flashing giant mirrors.

CHILDHOOD OF THE RACE

The public believed that Mars not only was inhabited; its people were more advanced than those on the earth. Percival Lowell, founder of the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, speculated that Martians preserved telephones and motion pictures in museums "as relics of the clumsy contrivances of the simple childhood of the race."

A respected scientist, Lowell did not indulge in fantastic speculations about the character of Martians. He wrote: "That Mars is inhabited by beings of some sort or other we may consider as certain as it is uncertain what these beings may be."

Lowell believed that the canals are strips of vegetation along watercourses fed by the planet's polar icecaps, which shrink in summer and spread in winter. Other observers said the lines were not as sharply defined as Lowell depicted them. The canals remain a mystery, but few now think they are waterways.

As astronomers picture Mars today, it seems hostile to any life. Deserts cover much of the surface. Temperatures range from 70 degrees at noon to 100 degrees below zero at night. Oxygen and water are extremely scarce. Atmospheric pressure is low. Yet the scientific consensus is that the great dark areas on the surface are vegetation. The late Earl C. Slipher, whose photographs of Mars are classics, interpreted the dark areas of the planet as living matter. The National Geographic Society supported much of Dr. Slipher's work, and in 1964 the Society and Lowell Observatory published his "A Photographic Study of the Brighter Planets."

EVIDENCE OF LIFE

Dr. William M. Sinton of Lowell Observatory made spectroscopic studies indicating that radiation from the dark areas on Mars roughly matches that produced by some plant life on earth. This is the principal direct evidence of life on Mars.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, Director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, summed up the indirect evidence: "The temperature range is reasonably favorable; the polar caps are almost certainly made of frozen water; clouds occur that appear to be made of ice crystals; the wave of quickening from the edge of the melting polar cap suggests the growth of vegetation; the changes in shade . . . of the dark areas and canals are favorable . . ."

Though most scientists believe that Martian vegetation consists of simple forms, Dr. Salisbury suggests it could include complex plants adapted to a daily freeze and thaw cycle, such as a broad-leaved plant that rolls into small cylinders after dark. These plants might require water only in traces, just as plants on earth need only a trace of minerals.

If lush vegetation grows on Mars, Dr. Salisbury believes, then one might expect to find animals feeding on it. "And from there," he adds, "it is but one more step (granted a big one) to intelligent beings."

Irrigation Changing Spain

Spain shows signs of an economic surge that could alter the dark side of its dual face — fiestas and poverty.

Fiestas still erupt like volcanoes, the National Geographic reports in an article by staff member Bart McDowell, but "misery fades as irrigation turns barren land to green and new industry spurs the economy."

An employee of a new steel mill at Aviles explained progress in terms of his "alosandreas," the wooden shoes of the rainy north.

"I wore them as a boy," the worker said, "because Aviles was only a village then. Very muddy. You have seen our alosandreas. Each shoe has three legs like a milk stool — to lift you above the mud. Well, the mud it gone. To build the mill, an estuary was filled. Now we have more jobs. And more paved streets. My children do not wear wooden shoes."

NATIONAL INCOME DOUBLED

Mr. McDowell comments, "That steel mill has also helped boost Spanish steel production to nearly four times its 1940 level. A similar success marks other industries. Overall, the national income has doubled in the last generation.

"The living standard has also jumped. And for the first time since the Spanish Civil War, the national treasury stores a surplus of gold bullion. Many economists predict that Spain is beginning an economic take-off similar to Italy's after World War II.

"Outsiders share in the credit: the European investors, the tourists, the United States AID mission. But the overwhelming credit belongs to the Spanish people themselves."

Barcelonans claim they are the only hard-working Spaniards. But Mr. McDowell says boners for the industrial energy are shared by Barcelona with Madrid, the capital, and factories along the Bay of Biscay.

The national character of Spaniards — a people inured to a cruel geography, a climate of extremes, and a history of violent conflict — fascinates outsiders.

There is a Spanish saying: "The Catalan saves, the Galician is homesick, the Andalusian sings, the Basque is the Extremaduran fights, and the Castilian dreams."

The greatest conquistadores, Pizarro, Cortes, and others, came from the sun-scourged Extremadura, now being transformed by irrigation and electric power. A peasant-boy merchant remarked, "Our land was so dry that the conquistadores had nothing to lose by leaving. But now we have new conquests in Extremadura. Imagine: in this desert I sell morkels to swimmers."

COURTEOUS BUT NOT STUFFY

For all their formality, Spaniards struck Mr. McDowell as the most courteous and least stuffy people in Europe.

Nor has the Spanish good nature been impaired by the imposing of more and more tourists each season. This year Spain expects 15 million, nearly the half the population of the country. Tourism earns nearly a billion dollars a year.

The tourist invasion creates a traffic problem that is peculiarly Spain's. Says Mr. McDowell: "Prosperous workers from all over Europe are learning to drive their first cars during Spanish holidays. Blinded by towering mangling gear, whipped about uncertainly by their trailers, they give Spanish roads a baleful look."

This Week's Cover Picture

Easter bunnies — Easter eggs — or an Easter bird?

For Robbie Smith of Victoria the last named is first choice and he is seen on this week's cover of Western Weekly Supplement with his pet hen, Maggie Muggins, who can keep him supplied not only with Easter eggs but eggs all year round.

The appealing photograph was taken by Alice Kimoff of Victoria, B.C., and was selected as a rather unusual cover picture for this Easter edition of Western Weekly Supplement.

All The World Greets Glory of Easter Symbolic of The Rebirth of Christ

"He is risen!"

Those words, found in St. Mark 16:6, are attributed to the angel of the Lord, speaking to the two Marys on the first Easter Morning. This year, on April 18th, 570 million Christians will repeat the phrase—in song, sermon, and prayer—as they celebrate the glory of Easter, symbolic of the rebirth of Christ.

In Jerusalem, swift runners will light torches from a holy fire, bear them back to kindle the torches of the faithful. Many Germans will hold aloft the buckets of Osterwasser, Easter water, believed to have curative powers. In parts of the British Isles, some people may rise early on Easter Sunday to see the sun dance . . . and certain citizens of the American South will listen for the sun to shout!

TIME OF REJOICING

Almost everywhere around the world Easter Sunday is welcomed with rejoicing, singing, candle processionals, and the ringing of church bells. Mexicans literally "dance in" the Easter morn'—streets are jammed with colorfully costumed performers dancing all through the night of Easter Saturday. In Rio de Janeiro and in parts of Cuba, huge floats, numerous bands, noisemaking and fireworks welcome Easter.

In Germanic areas like Austria and Bavaria, a festival preceding Lent, called Fastnacht, is part of Easter preparation; nonsense plays, skits, and masquerades are held. And in America's own "Dutch" sections of Pennsylvania, some housewives celebrate Fastnacht by cooking doughnuts all day!

But why the worldwide hilarity, many wonder? How can there be cause for revelry, a feeling of "glory," in the midst of sadness over the suffering, death, and sojourn in grave of Jesus?

Dr. Oswald Hoffman, whose weekly addresses on radio's The Lutheran Hour are broadcast to more than three million people around the globe, finds the glory of Easter in the fact that "One, just One, made His own way to life through death. He went the way all of us have to go, into the jaws of death. Coming through, as only He could, Jesus Christ opened the door to life. The triumphant Conquerer of death in kingly fashion flung the door back upon its hinges and then turned to the whole world in gracious invitation to follow Him through — through death to life."

SPECIAL MEANING TODAY

This Easter message has a special meaning for our tense and anxious Atomic Age, as it has for every historic epoch. Says Dr. Hoffman, "We live in a perplexed world that has lost its way. It will not find its way again until it finds the true way. That way is Christ, the only Way." He adds that faith in Christ "takes history seriously because one day history will end. It does not pretend that life, it walks in the light. It does not sweep the taunt of death under the rug; it is on the road that passes through death to life."

As it is affirmation, sounds of joy and merriment ring out around the world. German-speaking people actually tell each other special Easter stories (Ostermarchen) designed to produce laughter.

Burnaby Teacher Tells Of Visit to Holy Land

Many Western Canadians have dreamed of visiting the Holy Land, particularly at Easter time.

What would it really be like in this modern era?

In the article printed here, Valerie Hillcox, a schoolteacher in Burnaby, B.C., gives her own first-hand account of a pilgrimage to Jerusalem — an account which she will later incorporate into a book she is writing on her travels of 100,000 miles around the world as a substitute teacher.

By VALERIE HILLCOX
Burnaby, B.C.

Bethleg is a church on the Mt. of Olives. This is the beginning of the three mile pilgrimage to the Church where Christ was laid to rest. Every Easter this route is crowded with more than 3,000 pilgrims from all over the world. Accommodation is scarce in Jerusalem at this time of the year. Inside the church is an old rock about four feet high. Christ used this to prop himself up on the donkey.

My Guide, an employee of the Jordan Government, clad in a red Arab head scarfe and I walked about 500 yards to the summit of the Mt. of Olives. Here was the place of the Ascension. Beside this circular building stood a blind Arab selling rosaries made from Olive seeds. The Mount is sun parched and there are some Olive trees studded about. The 20-foot high stone walls of Jerusalem surrounded by the New City all looked a sombre brown color because all these buildings are made from clay. All the roofs were flat. My guide pointed to the south. "Fifteen miles from here you drive through 86 hair pin bends to get to Bethlehem."

There were stone fences on each side of the cobble stone walk we descended to reach the Garden of Gethsemane. Here I counted eight olive trees. We walked up the hill into the old city of Jerusalem to the First of the Stations of the Cross where Christ carried his cross to death.

The First Station is inside the court in which Pontius Pilate condemned Christ to death and now is utilized as an Arab Boys' School. Near the Second Station, just a few yards down the narrow street, three donkeys were tethered, laden with water cans bulging out like saddle bags. The Third Station was near the Damascus Gate, one of the four openings outside the walled City. Nearby were shops hung with lamb carcasses and Arab sweets.

The next shop showed orderly displayed oranges, bananas, lemons, apples, tomatoes, cucumbers, and potatoes all which were locally grown near Jericho. There not only were lamb carcasses but sheep with unusual fat tails, hanging butchered in the shops. Above one shop several Arab men sat in a pyjama-like national garment smoking a hubble-bubbly water pipe. There were no women seen around there.

Near here is a chapel built by the Poles three years ago in gratitude for survival in the Second World War. The tiny chapel contains a statue of Jesus falling with the Cross.

At the Fourth Station Jesus met the greiving Mary. The site is marked by the inscription, "Simione Cyrenseo Crux imponitur" — for it was here that Simon helped the condemned Man with the cross.

After this station the route is uphill. Three Jordanian soldiers passed hurriedly, and off to one side the cousin of the German Lutheran Church was barely visible over the ragged line of bazaars After passing the tunnel-like arch I reached the Sixth Station. Here, Veronica is believed to have wiped the feet of Jesus with her veil. The odor of sesame wafted from a small factory behind an inner wall.

After passing another tunnel I came to the Seventh Station. Here Jesus fell the second time. Between this point and the Eighth Station a small cafe now stands. Next door is a toy shop displaying dolls in plastic bags.

Everywhere in the old city the ancient merges and blends with the new. There are products from many lands. There are Spanish pine kernels, Czechoslovakian shoes, spice from Japan and American canned goods.

At the Eighth Station Jesus told the weeping women, "Daughters of Jerusalem weep not over me, but weep for yourselves and for your children." The Ninth Station is near the entrance to the Coptic Church. Here Jesus fell the third time. At the remaining stations Jesus was stripped of his garments, nailed to the cross, died and was laid in the Sepulcher. As I crossed the church threshold I saw the flat stone under eight oil lamps where Joseph of Arimathea laid the body of Jesus. Here beside the tomb I lit a candle, knelt and kissed the tomb.

Later, my Guide and I went shopping.

We mingled with the traffic where donkeys carried loads on the backs, women carried clay jugs on their heads, and tourists like myself mosied through the city. There was a riotous hodge podge of beautiful old rugs and ugly new linoleum, gleaming brass and copper, garishly colored plastic utensils, traditional and embroidered clothes and rayon substitutes. One can find anything from antique icons and religious objects to the flimsiest of tourist bait. Every shop I entered offered coffee or tea and cigarettes. All shop keepers were hospitable. They all asked the same questions — Where? How?, Why? I saw a white turbaned sheik of the Mosque talking amicably with a Greek Catholic Priest.

At eight o'clock we walked into a clean restaurant. Our appetizer was chick peas dip and naanbread made from wheat and flour that looks like cardboard. Then the mutton shish kebab and lettuce and tomatoe in olive oil salad and wine was served. We ate orange and banana slices with olive oil for dessert.

In the morning I ate naan and fig jam in the Cairo Hotel where it cost me only $3.50 to stay; however, I could have stayed right inside the Garden Tomb in a hostel for only 50 cents.

RECIPE EXCHANGE

GLAMOROUS EASTER CAKE

For Easter dessert, what could be more springlike than an airy lemon-layered chiffon cake frosted with golden honey meringue? If you are too busy to bake, you'll be happy to know that the commercial lemon or orange chiffon cakes, which we suggest for this dessert, compare favorably with those made at home. And, using the recipes below, it won't take you long to make the filling and meriague.

When you have the cake, filling and meringue ready, carefully slice the cake crosswise into two or three layers and spread the filling between them. Reassemble the cake on an ovenproof cake plate or, if you do not have one, use a foil-covered circle of cardboard cut about 1 inch larger than the cake. Frost the whole cake generously with fluffy honey meringue, shaping nests on the top of the cake to hold Easter eggs, if desired. If you want a nest in the centre, cover the hole in the cake with foil before spreading meringue, (instead of having nests and Easter eggs, you may prefer to decorate the finished cake with a pretty bouquet of washed, small plastic daffodils or other spring flowers arranged in the hole in the centre of the cake.)

Pop the meringue - covered cake into a 400 deg. oven for 8 to 10 minutes to lightly brown it. Watch carefully to avoid overbrowning.

HONEY LEMON FILLING

½ cup honey
2 tablespoons flour
Few grains salt
¼ cup lemon juice
⅓ cup boiling water
egg yolks
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Mix honey, flour and salt until smooth. Gradually stir in lemon juice and then boiling water. Cook in double boiler until thickened, or in heavy saucepan over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture comes to a boil and thickens.

Beat egg yolks, add a little of the hot mixture and then pour back into pan and cook 4 to 5 minutes more. Remove from heat. Stir in butter and lemon rind. Cool and spread between cake layers. (Also good in baked tart shells, with honey sweetened whipped cream.

HONEY MERINGUE

½ teaspoon cream of tartar*
½ cup honey (liquid or soft, creamed honey)
½ to ¾ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar together until frothy. Pour in the honey and add lemon rind and beat at high speed until meringue is stiff and glossy. Frost sides of cake first, spreading lightly but generously and making attractive swirls and ridges. Pile

Make Easter Story — With Pictures

Regardless of the weather, Easter offers some of the best picture-taking opportunities of the year.

If the day is sunny and warm you'll want to take your camera outdoors for photos of the family leaving for church, and of mother and daughter dressed in their best. Then too, you'll have a chance to take photos of spring and landscapes the rest of the first flowers of the year.

Whether you shoot in color or black and white, remember that you'll get best results with plain, uncluttered backgrounds that don't clash with Easter finery. Perhaps the best background of all, on a clear day, is the blue sky itself. Direct sunlight sometimes causes deep, harsh shadows, especially on faces. Try moving into a shaded area.

But if Easter should prove dull and rainy, don't let this stop your picture-taking. After all, Easter offers many indoor picture opportunities — for example, mother combing the youngest's hair, the kiddies discovering Easter baskets and eggs, and grandparents visiting.

It's a good idea to be alert and recognize objects that may reflect light into the picture. You can avoid possible reflections from windows, mirrors, or highly polished furniture by shooting your pictures at a slight angle to the reflecting surface.

Remember to keep plenty of film and flash bulbs on hand all the time. The moments for good pictures are fleeting; the moment you miss may be unrepeatable. And be sure to take plenty of pictures. The more you take, the better your selection and the more complete your Easter story will be in pictures.

TASTY EASTER DISHES

Does the Easter basket call at your home? And does he leave chocolate eggs or maybe a chocolate bunny rabbits? Or do you and the rest of the family make hard-cooked eggs and colour them to delight the children?

After the Easter egg hunt, rather than find those hard-cooked eggs broken or scrambled into the children's, shell them and combine them into a springtime salad or an asparagus casserole. Both dishes will take well to eggs and add needed vitamins to the family's diet. They also offer a welcome change of pace from heavy winter meals, and have been tested by H. J. Heinz Company kitchens.

The springtime green salad dish which utilizes eggs is Golden Crowned Green Bean Salad. Here tender-cooked green beans are combined with an old dog Cheddar dressing and chilled.

The hard cooked eggs are combined with salad dressing, mustard and vinegar. Small mounds of the egg mixture are placed in a ring around the bowl, which have been mixed with crumbled bacon slices and placed in a salad bowl. In the centre, the beans are crowned with slices of eggs and a strip of crisp bacon.

The spring casserole is Baked Asparagus Casserole, a light, tasty dish, made a delicious use of condensed cream of chicken soup, prepared mustard and pepper. Place this in alternating layers with cooked asparagus spears and sliced hard - cooked eggs. Sprinkle this casserole with biscuits or toast — it makes an excellent luncheon dish.

Another extra quick, easy-to-make Easter Egg Salad Sandwich filled hard - cooked eggs on toast are topped with a quick golden sauce. This is prepared from a can of cream of mushroom soup, milk and cheese, topped with chopped parsley or pimiento for a touch of color.

GOLDEN CROWNED GREEN BEAN SALAD

*½ pounds fresh green beans
½ cup salad oil
1/3 cup Apple Cider Vinegar
2 tablespoons salt
1 clove garlic
½ cup chopped onions
6 slices bacon, cooked, crumbled
6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/3 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tablespoon Prepared Mustard
1 tablespoon Apple Cider Vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt

Split beans lengthwise, then cut in half. Cook until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain. Toss beans with next 3 ingredients; chill for several hours; drain off excess liquid. Just before serving, add bacon and onions. Line salad bowl. Combine eggs and remaining ingredients; arrange beans or place in small mounds around beans. Crown with several slices hard-cooked eggs and a strip of crisp bacon. Makes 6 servings.

CREAMY ASPARAGUS CASSEROLE

*1 can (10½ ounces) Condensed Cream of Chicken Soup, undiluted
1 teaspoon Prepared Mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus spears, cooked, drained
6 hard - cooked eggs, sliced
Blend cream soup, mustard, pepper and 2 ingredients. In 1 quart casserole, alternate layers of asparagus, eggs and the cream mixture, ending with eggs. Bake until bubbly and hot. Serve with hot biscuits or over toast. Makes 6 servings.

*1 can (10 ounces) Condensed Cream of Mushroom or Celery Soup, undiluted, or 1 can (10½ ounces) Condensed Canadian Cheddar Cheese Soup, undiluted, may be substituted.

NOTE: Layers may be arranged in baking dish (10" x 6" x 1½") and baked 25-30 minutes, or divided among individual casseroles or ramekins and baked for 10 minutes.

Mr. Fred Barber, center and Mr. Jack Hillman, M.L.A. discuss the Thompson Night program with Mr. Robert Thompson, National Leader of the Social Credit Party. Mr. Thompson had just finished his 56th speaking engagement since the 2nd of January this year and at that rate it's going to be a busy year.

Thompson Draws Capacity Crowd

SEDGEWICK — A crowd estimated at over 300 gave a warm welcome to the Young Social Crediters' "Robert Thompson" Night held at Sedgewick last Saturday evening, and Mr. Thompson himself seemed to be quite impressed with the unusual welcome and introduction he received.

The evening was introduced with a skit concerning an old-timer and people of Social Credit who could see no sense in going to a Thompson night when he had the Community Press to read. But his enthusiastic young granddaughter prevailed and persuaded him to go along with the idea. He did attend and from then on was a dedicated Social Crediter.

Mayor Howard Smith brought greetings from the Village and welcomed Mr. Thompson and those accompanying him, on behalf of the community.

Barry Gascoyne introduced Mr. Jack Hillman, M.L.A., who spoke briefly, and in his remarks congratulated local stock breeders who had won awards recently at the Edmonton Stock Show. He mentioned the two marches on the Legislature by city citizens and by a group of Indians from the Northern part of Alberta. Mr. Hillman said he was pleased to learn that something is now being done on behalf of our Indian citizens, which is essentially a Federal concern.

Neil Lunty introduced Mr. Fred Barber, newly elected S. C. candidate for the Battle River-Camrose Federal Constituency. Mr. Barber told the audience he was concerned over the Canadian situation and felt that he had a contribution to make to her welfare. He said he would work hard to get elected, and if chosen by the people would work just as hard in their behalf. His two areas of concern he remembers were agriculture and education.

Daniel Lewis, who is president of the Young Social Credit group, was privileged to introduce the guest speaker, Hon. Mr. Robert Thompson. He gave a short history of Mr. Thompson's life and his long-time interest in Social Credit. Mr. Thompson was brought on to the platform by six lady members of the young group who sang a Thompson Welcome song.

Robert Thompson proved a capable and interesting speaker, and held the attention of the large crowd through a sixty minute address.

The speaker told the audience that Canada is presently at a critical point in her history, with Parliament having reached a new low. Parties are putting "party politics" ahead of the welfare of the nation, he mentioning the B. and B. Com-

Congratulatory messages came from Prime Minister Pearson, John Diefenbaker and Cliff Smallwood. Scrolls were sent from Lt. Gov. Hon. Percy Page and Premier Manning. Young People In Public Life!

It bodes well for the future of Canada to see the younger people of the nation taking an active part in the affairs of the nation, in the various provinces of the country. Perhaps one of the most important of these groups is the 4-H movement which has spread from a small beginning to nation-wide. It is interesting to note that several hundreds of young people are being trained in agriculture, home economics, citizenship and leadership through the 4-H program. Perhaps the most important aspect of this training is in the field of citizenship and leadership, so far as the future stability of the nation is concerned. The affairs of Canada will no doubt be entrusted to many of these young people in the foreseeable future, and it is well to know that they are receiving this training in advance of the time they will be called upon to exert their energies on our behalf.

The Cluttered Calendar!

The calendar of public and individual activities is becoming so cluttered up with events of every description that the average person has given up in desperation in any attempt to keep abreast of our fast moving society. Whether a reminder will assist them or further their frustration, we don't know, but in any event here is a partial list of things happening for April and May, for you to use or forget as you will:

Cancer Society Month, April 1 to 30; World Health Day, April 7; Easter Seal Days, April 1 to 18; Chamber of Commerce Week, April 4 to 10; National Wild Life Week, April 4 to 10; National Library Week, April 10 to 17; Easter Week Special Days, April 16 to 19; Mental Health Week, May 1 to 7; Salvation Army Appeal, May 1 to 31; National Child Safety Day, May 2; World Red Cross Day, May 8; Canadian Beautification Month, May 1 to 31; Mother's Day, May 9th; Save A Life Week, May 17 to 22. We might add that Income Tax Day is April 30th, and if you can't cope with all the rest of the days, this one you had better observe. Do this properly and accurtately and likely there won't be any energy, or loose change left for the rest of them anyway, so why worry about them.

Political Winds!

One could not help but feel a bit touched by Mr. Maccagno's remark in the Legislature the other day, that it is pretty hopeless and discouraging to look across the floor into the smiling and contented faces of 59 government members. Without the "horses" to do an effective job in opposition, he must of course, feel that the job is a lost cause. His retirement from Edson will be a welcome addition to his cause, and while it strengthens the opposition by a good percentage it leaves it far short of an effective unit. It does however pose the question as to whether or not a trend is on the way.

Does the loss of the Social Credit seat, a cabinet seat at that, indicate a provincial trend in disenchantment with the government, or was it local issues in the constituency. It is said that a factor was the government's failure to give satisfactory answers to questions in the house. If this is the case, it points out once again that governments and committees and societies who are responsible for spending the taxpayers' money, are accountable to those same people, and any refusal to do so, is not acceptable. Evasive answers invite suspicion, and direct refusal invites reaction.

First Mistake The Worst!

Volume and speed of traffic today demand that the flow of vehicles on provincial highways be kept at all times at the highest and most convenient level possible. In this respect one of the biggest bottlenecks appears to be where highways pass through villages, towns and cities, in which cases speeds are restricted and municipal signs demand observation. One of the toughest and most frustrating of these situations occurs at the City of Canmore, where for some two miles through traffic is subjected to restrictions and local fines for transgressions of traffic laws. The City of Camrose has asked for changes in construction of Highway 13 through the city to permit in some instances right-hand turns, and in others left-hand cuts off the highway within the city limits. That this request has been denied by the Minister of Highways indicates that he is probably giving more consideration to provincial traffic than to local drivers. In this we agree, but where the original mistake was made was in not having the newly constructed portion of the highway by-pass as much of the City of Canmore as possible. The day will come when this will be done and 1964 was the year to do it. Provincial traffic has the right of way over local drivers, and wherever at all possible local centres should be bypassed.

MAJOR BLAME for dangerously unstable situation in Viet Nam is due mainly to Communist subversion according to a minority report of Canada-India-Poland Truce Supervisory Commission. Red China and other communist countries have given increasing support to North Viet Nam. Weapons handed over have included Chinese, Russian, and East German automatic rifles and other weapons of war for the guerrillas who would not have been able to pursue their operations without such help. This minority report, it is hoped, will prove highly useful, but it is not likely to end war.

Pause That Refreshes!

OTTAWA — There was a sense of thankfulness and relief on all sides when Parliament took its brief Easter recess.

After sitting for nearly 14 months, with scarcely a break, members of Parliament were more than ready to pause, regroup their forces and reassess their positions. Whether the pause will be one that refreshes remains to be seen.

During the Throne Speech debate — cut from eight days to six by unanimous consent — it was easy to believe that some sort of stability had at last come into this Parliament's affairs.

The Government seemed more secure than it had been in months, having won the confidence of the Commons in the legislative program outlined in the Throne Speech.

The war on poverty, the attractive welfare package known as the Canada Assistance Plan, the Company of Young Canadians — the whole bright tone of the Throne Speech, could serve either as a prescription for Liberal confidence — the whole bright tone of the Throne Speech, could serve either as a prescription for Liberal confidence — a manifesto for an early election.

When Parliament resumes on April 26, Finance Minister Gordon will be waiting with his new budget; it is freely predicted to contain tax cuts to crumb new jobs and to keep the economy growing.

This speculation was fostered by the early tabling of estimates before Easter recess — of a pre-budget white paper. The papers contained some encouraging statistics, including an announcement that the Gross National Product had increased by 5.7 per cent over 1963 and had reached $47,202,000,000.

Mr. Gordon had also trimmed his budget deficit to $800,000,000 for the fiscal year 1964-65, the lowest deficit since 1956, and for practical purposes a balanced budget considering a total budget in excess of $7,000,000,000.

Mr. Gordon's budget will almost certainly contain some sunshine for voters. Coupled with the sunny program in the Throne Speech, it will be the most irresistable election program.

All set the Liberals hope so.

Many of them no longer have faith that the Government can gain much ground in a Parliament in which it is a minority, and which can, and does, make the Government look so bad.

The shadow of the Dorion report on charges of bribery in Government still hangs over the Liberals but many Liberals feel that the shadow is less oppressive than it was, and that the time will be ripe in early fall to call a general election and end the minority situation.

The Government has emerged from the Throne Speech in a strengthened position. The Conservatives under John Diefenbaker are in difficulty, and so far have been unable to mount any attack which does not emphasize the depth of their internal divisions.

The chief one they came was during the Throne Speech debate, when Mr. Diefenbaker made a non-confidence issue in the Administration. He condemned Prime Minister Pearson for failing to root out wrong-doing and political immorality in Government.

No self-respecting opposition party could fail to rally behind a motion that was supposed to do. All opposition parties did rally and vote against the Government.

That should have been enough to defeat the Liberals, but unfortunately many members failed to turn up for the vote. The Government beat the non-confidence motion by 106 votes to 88.

Only 68 of the 95 Conservatives voted; only 104 of 128 Liberals.

There were three other non-confidence motions during the debate, one by each of the minor parties. They posed no threat to the Government. On the Social Credit motion there was even a recorded vote, since the required five members were not in the chambers to call for such a vote.

In other words, the new session had little drama, little sense of urgency. There was a feeling that everything had been said before. There was even a certain distaste for the game, a desire to leave off squabbling, a desire to rest, to begin again.

Plain fatigue may have a lot to do with this feeling. The longest session in Canadian history ended at 3 a.m. Saturday, April 3rd. The new session began at 3 p.m. Monday, April 5th

In nearly 14 months of sitting, Parliament had taken only 44 days off — a six-week recess at Christmas.

The strain of the shrewish flag debate, the Pension negotiations, the scandal charges, took its toll, particularly on Cabinet Ministers and other Members with extra responsibilities such as opposition Party Leaders.

Immigration Minister Tremblay, Industry Minister Drury, Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet, and Secretary of State Cardin, Lamontagne, all had recent spells in hospital.

Secretary of State Minister Martin, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker have missed sittings because of the 'flu common colds or overstrain. Creditiste Leader Caouette collapsed in his office and spent several days in hospital.

These are symptoms of a difficult and strenuous Parliament. They can only be justified if they induce in members a new recognition of the need for stability and reform in the affairs of Canada today.

SOUR NOTE ON FESTIVALS

Every year, the Music Festival throws our establishment to a ringtailed tizzy. And this year it was the same old story.

In the first place, it always takes place at the worst time of year. Every year it will be in the middle of the opening of trout season. By the time I get out, after listening to all those crumby little kids play the same old crumby pieces, the big fish are all gone, and I have to thrill over the leftover 1-inchers another year. It strikes at the height of those first golden, green days on the golf course. This year, it caught me right in the middle of about 180 hours of marking exams. "In my spare time," as the taxpayers put it.

But I'm not complaining. I'm used to sacrificing the finer things of life for what my wife thinks are the finer things of life.

No, I don't worry about me. Nor do I worry about my son. He's like me: a steady reliable grunter, not a true artiste, who takes things as they come.

It's the women in our family who worry.

My wife and daughter, who sperate on a high C at the best of times, hits a new note, way above that, when Festival Time arrives.

Years ago, I bought a penchant for self-destruction before the event. At the piano recital in which, when she was six, she played a piece called "The Little Hermit." And you should have seen her. Under her left eye she had the biggest little twitch you ever saw — size of a dime. The day before, in a rush for the teacher's desk, with a brilliant piece of art work or summat, she had collided head-on with a little boy. She had an eye like a rainbow with a hangover.

Another year, she got the 'flu', and played with a temperature of 102. Feverishly.

Last year, she came up to me about three weeks before the festival and said, "Guess what, Dad?"

She'd broken a finger playing basketball. Dad later lumbered through her pieces with a cast on it.

The other day she decided to ski

The recent spring thaw has made traffic on the highways almost, if not quite impossible, and the big trucks and trucks are having a time using these thoroughfares, with the result that the mails are all now obliged to use train service, so that we get no night papers by carrier.

NUTRITIONALLY SPEAKING! DID YOU KNOW?

That virtually all fresh fruits & vegetables have an alkaline reaction in the body, whether or not they have an "acid" taste.

That the separate fat portion of meat is not solid fat. The average nutrient content of the separate fat of rocket beef, lamb and pork is 7% protein, 75% fat and yields 7 calories per gram.

That one raw carrot, 5 1/2 inches long and one inch thick, contains 8000 International Units of Vitamin A as carotene is more than enough to satisfy the daily allowance of 5,- 700 units recommended for the new age adult. The same carrot contains about 20 calories only.

That there is less religious prejudice throughout the world against foods and nutrition than any other most except fish.

That calories is a word of Provincial Spanish origin which in its early form meant "coffee pot".

That argument still goes on with scientific researchers as to whether cholesterol in food plays any great part in the total cholesterol supply of the body. It is now well established that the liver is a major site for manufacture of cholesterol from food nutrients. It has been found in animal experiments that the total cholesterol is present in the diet it reduces the activity of the liver in synthesizing the product.

That there are two simple ways of determining whether you are overweight or not, other than using scales and weight charts. First, lie flat on your back. If your midriff is fairly flat, you are not too much overweight. If your stomach is high or than your chest, start reducing. Second, stand up & pinch the flesh below your ribs, between your index finger and thumb. If your fingers are over an inch apart, you need to lose weight.

That if you are eating enough to maintain your weight, a brisk 15-minute walk five times a week will burn up 100 extra calories a day, or you'll be 5 pounds lighter in a year.

That the National Institute of Health says there is no scientific evidence that specific items in the diet of an average arthritic individual will either cure or benefit his condition in the fight against the illness.

The Bible Today

A letter from A. W. Matthison, Director of Wycliffe Bible Translators Congo, in Leopoldville, contains the following information:

"You must often wonder how the work of the Bible Societies is proceeding in Congo, Angola, Ruanda and Burundi in these times of crisis. I am glad to tell you that we, by the grace of God, have been able to distribute large numbers of Scriptures during the past year, and at present are carefully watching for every opportunity to circulate the Word of God, particularly in those areas which have been experiencing such dark and tragic days since the passing of Lumumba, a very difficult time again, and is in grave need of our continued prayers and sympathy. In spite of the great transport difficulties, some 329,000 Scriptures were circulated in the whole of the Congo, during the first three months of our current year.

"Sometimes the Books may be on the way for several months, but so far, very few have been lost in transit. It is remarkable how God watches over His own Book!"

LOSING FAITH!

Topic of conversation of late have had several people in pass disparaging remarks about the recom-mendations of, or stands taken by Economists. Economists are people dealing with the Science of Wealth.

The main complaint is centered around the fact that Economists are suggesting things be done that people don't want to do. Their recommendations are based on a pure science taking into account only dollars and cents values.

Economists have failed to put a dollar and cents value on people's likes or dislikes. They are treating people like robots without feeling and wondering why they won't conform to their recommendations to give us the most for the least (that is of course best for all concerned) so they say.

Even some citizens or some societies can be criticized for wanting to force their ideas on others with the backing of an Economists viewpoint.

I have looked up to Economists the last few years because of their insight in economic affairs. It was Dr. Ball, Agricultural Economist of Ames, Iowa, who stands out in my mind as the shining example of the true Economist. I can still hear him saying that people should apply the economic principles to increase their satisfactions. To do this we have to put a dollars and cents value on people's wants, preferences, likes and dislikes.

I'm afraid I have to agree with the observers in many cases. Too many Economists are forgetting to consider human wants.

mission he stated that the adoption of Social Credit principles at Ottawa would solve the friction between English and French, but that it would never be done under the present system. Mr. Taompson contended that the Liberal administration had passed a lot of good legislation, but that they were going about it in the wrong manner by putting welfare ahead of education. He thought it necessary to first educate the people and indicated that the Federal Government must assume more responsibility in the field of education.

The Conservative Government of Mr Diefenbaker came in for criticism in that while they had a majority with 208 members, and with a Canadian Flag legislation on their agenda, failed to do anything with it and then obstructed the issue when it was brought in by the present government.

Mr. Thompson told the audience that if they were not satisfied with conditions as they are, to change it as they did here in Alberta in 1935. In fact he predicted that the Liberal Government of Lester Pearson would run an election within a year, perhaps this fall, but more likely in the spring of 1966.

The Social Credit Leader has attended 46 meetings since last January, and said he has been continually telling the people of Canada that Federal revenue can come only from taxes, natural resources and by borrowing. He especially castigated the continual process of borrowing and increased indebtedness, and said that today one-third of every dollar is going out in welfare. He condemned deficit financing, of "hoping to pay tomorrow what you can't pay today." "It is immoral," he said. "For governments to create debt". In this regard he said that Alberta and B. C. are the only debt-free provinces in Canada, both operated by Social Credit Governments.

Of seven billion dollars revenue today, the federal government pays out one billion and 100 million for interest on the national debt. All governments in Canada have a total revenue of 15 billion, while the earning capacity of Canadian people is only 21 billion. This has now reached a dangerous 66 percent, and he predicted, as history has shown, that if and when this percentage reaches the people will cease to be free and come under dictatorship.

Social Credit, the speaker said, believes in freedom with security, and were the party in power it would halt this debt trend and begin balancing the books. It would change the system of financing and get rid of the national debt. He said that the Bank of Canada now holds 15 percent of the national debt, and wondered why it could not hold all of it and get rid of debt. All public enterprises could be paid for with Bank of Canada money and in this way avoid indebtedness.

Mr. Thompson advocated an Import-Export Bank to take care of the domestic-foreign dealings, and a two-price system for wheat. He emphasized that the federal government must stop its invasion of provincial autonomy and stop taking away revenue not leaving enough for provinces to operate efficiently.

Socialism (N.D.P.) which puts the State above the individual, came in for scorn from Mr. Thompson, who said that Social Credit puts the individual at the top of the list. He said that the basic system of democracy is fine but that it is not being properly operated in Canada today. Individual needs must come ahead of monopoly interests

In closing Mr. Thompson again referred to the Canadian Flag, and urged everyone to accept our national symbol and get on with the more important things of the land

Among the other distinguished guests for the evening were: Mr. F. C. Roberts, National S. C. Organizer for New Zealand; Mrs. Robt. Thompson; Mrs. Fred Barber of Camrose; Mr. Orvis Kennedy, President of the Alberta Social Credit League; Mrs. Kennedy; Mr. Garnet Pederson, S. C. Organizer for Alberta, and Mrs. Pederson; Mr. Fran Stonehaver, Edmonton; Mr. Bert Wetmore, Edmonton; Mr. Stonehaver; Mr. and Mrs. Swanson of Red Deer. Mrs. Swanson is the president of Parkland Social Credit Auxiliary.

Following the meeting a banquet for the visitors, members of the Y. S. C. group and their invited guests was held in the Sedgewick Cafe banquet room.

After vice president Margaret Burden opened the April 7th meeting of the Longbend Homemakers with O Canada and the 4H Pledge; the roll call was answered with ideas for Achievement Day. We decided to invite the Marna Members to an Easter party on April 21st. They were asked to wear an Easter bonnet of their own creation which is also to be our roll call for that meeting. Due to the fact that the Valley Beef Club's tour day is the day of the party we decided to invite them to a picnic later on. Ideas for Achievement Day, to be held May 10th in the Community Hall, were discussed. After this the meeting was adjourned. Achievement Day demonstrations were practised.

Strome Home and School Meeting

(Merle Butler)

STROME — The March meeting of Our Lady of Fatima Home and School Association held in the school was blighted by Education week displays. A good crowd of parents and visitors viewed with interest the displays which presented a cross section of the students work. President, Mr. Vernon Nelsons, conducted the business meeting. Parents were reminded that there is a constant need for new library books and were asked to contribute as generously as possible to this project. Donations should be left with the Treasurer, Mr. G. C. Kinzer. Following a lengthy discussion, a motion was passed that a history of the Ethel and Strome districts with emphasis on the history of the original school districts be compiled as Home and School Centennial Year Project. Home and School members would appreciate hearing from anyone with information of the early days in this district. Mr. Nathan was named as delegate to the Home and School convention in Edmonton in May. The next regular meeting will be held in the School May 5th at 8 p.m. Following the business meeting Grade One pupils under the direction of Sister Marian gave a demonstration on the new approach to teaching mathematics which was most enjoyable and enlightening.

APRIL 24TH TO MAY 1ST

Islanthe, the most subtle of all Gilbert and Sullivan operettas will brighten the CBC-TV schedule this week. It will be presented on Wed., April 28th at 9:30 p.m. on Festival.

A comical fairy tale, Iolanthe is the story of a sprite who is banished from the fairy circle for marrying a human being and later restored. It is considered clever nonsense combining a pulsating pastoral quality with biting satire aimed at the sacred subject of British politics.

Last September the United Church of Canada elected for a two-year term a new Moderator for the 81st General Council — The Right Rev. Arvead Ernest Marshall Hervin. Hervin is "Purirst of a Moderator".

Mr. Hervin is acknowledged liberal thinker, and a distinguished scholar who has earned a number of degrees, published seven books and contributed articles and special reports to various magazines & newspapers in Canada and the U. S. A.

W.O. Mitchell, the fameer prairie author has written a sender & humorous novel notitled "The Kite", telling the story of a man believed to be the oldest human in the world. Jack Creley, Eric Hause, John Vernon and Charmion King star in "The Kite", Monday, at 8:30 p.m. SHOW OP WEEK.

Stanley Cup action will continue during the week of April 26—May 1st and could go right on until the weekend if the final series should go to seven games. Contrary to the previous information there may be Sunday telecast.

Car Check Points

A complete car check-up by a reliable mechanic or technician will cover almost 40 points of a vehicle but there are five places the owner can check by himself, according to the vehicle safety committee of the Canadian Highway Safety Council. Sponsoring its annual spring campaign, which runs through April and May, the Council advised motorists to check these 10 positions regularly:

Rear-view mirrors: for condition, mounting and cleanliness.

Horn: for satisfactory operation. Windshield wipers: for condition of blades, operation of motor and condition of windshield washer.

Glass: condition and operation of windows, and cleanliness.

Lights: front and rear lights for operation, and aiming of headlights. Direction signals, for operation.

Tires: tread wear, pressure, make.

Steering: play in steering gear, front tires for misalignment.

Brakes: master cylinder fluid level, hydraulic system for fluid leaks, foot and hand brakes for reserve and stopping ability.

Exhaust system.: manifold pipes and mufflers for tightness and leaks.

Hardisty Girl, Linda Ruud, Wins Contest

Today the prize winners of the Canadian Cancer Society's annual school poster competition were announced by Dr. J. C. Gillespie, President of Edmonton District Council, Canadian Cancer Society.

In the Grade VII and VIII section Miss Linde E. Ruud of Hardisty won first prize.

The competition which covers the whole of Alberta, was designed so that students from Grades VII and XII could depict, in poster form, the dangers of cigarette smoking in relation to lung cancer. Simplicity of design was the keynote in the contest, but the art work was forceful enough to let people read and understand the message on each at a glance

The above mentioned winning poster in the local contest will be sent to the Society's headquarters in Calgary where the provincial grand prize winners will be named. The winners of the provincial prizes will not be known until May.

The Printed Word!

Calculated in dollars and cents, the sales resulting from newspaper advertising in Canada in any one year would surpass Mr. Gordon's 1965 budget, and make the late MacKenzie King's original $25 old age pension payment look like a Sunday collection at a ball game. To publishers this is not a news "scoop" for during their entire career in the newspaper business they have constantly persisted that over the long haul, the printed word advertising beats them all.

Sign boards, bill boards, word of mouth, street walkers, bell ringers, sky writing, they've all been tried down through the years with varying degrees of success. Then came radio with a new gimmick, to be followed by television with its see and hear appeal. Both had their hey-day and the newspapers suffered. But the real, progressive advertiser with the customer in mind, learned that the printed word carries the top appeal. What you hear you forget; what you see once for fleeting seconds, you can't remember; but what you read and can read again leaves the lasting impression.

A poll recently conducted by a firm advertising in the Community Press steadily, showed that of customers asked what brought them to the store to purchase certain items, replied that it was the Ad in the paper. What makes it more impressive is the fact that they were asked if Flyers, Radio or Newspaper advertising was what impelled them. None even mentioned radio or flyers.

Another of our advertisers recently put on a shoe sale, and an Ad in the Community Press was his only advertising. The firm sold close to 500 pairs of shoes in less than two weeks.

The progressive, constant advertiser, with proper presentation, knows that his newspaper advertising is paying off.

A recent revelation by Cooper and Beatty Ltd. says that advertisers are swiftly turning away from radio and T. V., and just as swiftly turning to the printed media which now receives over 60 percent of the advertising and merchandising dollars spent by the Canadian advertisers. According to the company's William Trevett, radio and T.V. have not done the job effectively and as a result now have less than 40 percent of the advertising dollar.

The buying public goes where it is invited to shop. He knows what he's going to get and what he's going to pay. Why? He saw it in his local newspaper.

It's The Public Attitude!

We have said for some time that the increase in the crime rate and the incidence of "repeat" offenders, is not due solely to an increase in the number of the law-breakers. There is a more significant reason, and we are gratified to now learn that Commissioner MacClellan of R. C.M.P. agrees with us. One of the major reasons for crime increase is the public attitude toward the police and courts. An attitude that makes it more difficult for the police to do the job for which they are paid, and is making it far more difficult to attract good men into police work.

The true fact is that there never was a time in our history of law enforcement, when those we have entrusted to protect us, were more in need of the backing and support of people, the courts, the legal profession, the teaching profession and other groups. But perhaps the most important of these is the general public, for it is doubtful if there was ever a time when police have been subjected to more criticism, more abuse, or more frustration, than at present.

There are two glaring examples of this harmful public attitude. First, there is the citizen who refuses to help police because they don't want to get involved, or don't want to be bothered — like the witness to a crime who is reluctant to testify because "after all, the police get paid to find out these things without bothering innocent people". Secondly, there are those citizens who downgrade the police even when they need help — as in the case of the women who, reporting that her house had been ransacked, told the police, "if you are coming in uniform please use the back door."

These attitudes are dangerous, even to those who practice them, but perhaps the more dangerous is the practice we have fallen into of publicising and glamorizing the criminal himself, as in the recent Montreal jailbreak of suspected drug smuggler Lucien Rivard. By direct contrast there is almost no public notice of the fate of 24-year-old Constable Amey of the RCMP, who was shot and killed on our streets while attempting to arrest four escaped criminals.

Like the infantryman in war, the police are in the front line in the war on crime. They know what their problems are, and they are not encouraged to find so often that they, rather than the criminal, are regarded as the enemy of society. Policemen are a part of society, and when he is assaulted, society as a whole is assaulted. When he dies on some dark street, society is sprawled face down on the dirty pavement with him. When he makes a mistake and exceeds his authority, bring him to time; but when he is doing a tough, thankless and dangerous job for you and me and for all that we hold precious — get off his back.

There is no argument about the propriety of our concern for the protection of civil rights, but society also has the right to be protected against its enemies.

THE HAND THAT ROCKS C. B. C.!

Sometimes petitions are worthless and are not always backed up by those who sign them. Of course this is not always so. The CBC may be in trouble if it fails to go some distance toward meeting the wishes of some 76,000 Canadian women who presented a petition to parliament, that the programming be cleaned up. It may follow that some allegedly smart program promoters will declare that the women who protest such programs are prudes, but it doesn't necessarily follow. This petition seems to be one of the serious kind and the CBC better listen. The hand that rocks the cradle might also end up rocking the CBC.

SHOULD STAY HOME FOR GOOD!

In spite of the long, drawn-out debate, and opposition to the Bill, when the vote came there were 91 members of the Commons absent — including a majority of the party leaders. Even some of those opposing the Bill lacked the courage to be present to stand and be counted. If these 91 members don't want to fully earn their pay as elected representatives perhaps they should be kept absent from the House permanently the next time around.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

The Ombudsman

OTTAWA — It is estimated that perhaps one in every five Canadians harbour some resentment toward some official, department, board, commission or agency of the government which he will some day grave because he can do nothing about it.

You may be a war veteran who holds a grudge against the Canadian Pension Commission or the Veterans Allowance Board, because as you see it, payments are smaller than your right.

You are a small business man needing a license from a federal or provincial department to start up in this or that business and being refused with no more information than that your application or standing "does not meet the requirement of the act".

You are a retiring civil servant and your pension has been set by the Superannuation Branch of the Dept. of Finance at a lower level than you believe you are entitled to.

Or perhaps you have written to a department seeking information, lodging a protest or asking for action and have received no reply.

In most of these cases and a lot of others so long that it would take weeks to complete, you have no recourse except to enlist the services of your member of Parliament who may or may not be able to help, depending on the influence he has with the Minister involved or his ability to present your case in the right light.

There is a circumscribed appeal to the court in some instances, but this is costly and may be too much of a gamble even if you can afford the cost of it.

If the federal government decides to borrow the Ombudsmanship system from the Scandinavian countries there will be an official answerable only to Parliament who may be able to help.

The promise in the Throne Speech of a Royal Commission to look into the status of federal regulatory bodies and the necessity for a parliamentary commissioner or Ombudsman was one of the more popular touches. Even those who have no specific complaint have a tendency to look on government officials entrusted with administering acts of Parliament as bureaucrats in the worst sense. In fact, very few public servants do more than administer laws to the best of their ability and most of them well.

But between the Royal Commission investigation and the appointment of such an official stand a number of fundamental questions that need answers.

Does Ombudsmanship fit our system of government in which political heads of departments are responsible for their actions only to the Crown so long as they hold the confidence of the House of Commons and the electorate?

Does any need for an Ombudsman merely demonstrate the extent to which the courts or better still, the legislation which they interpret have failed to keep pace with government activity?

Is an Ombudsman an effective means of producing the right decision in cases which may involve a judicial ruling? Is there a better remedy in providing wider appeals to the courts from departmental or board decisions?

If it is decided that Ombudsmanship is appropriate to the Canadian need it will then be up to the Royal Commission to consider how wide an Ombudsman's powers should be. If they are too wide he becomes a dictator who can override not only the decisions of the civil servant but the decisions of ministers of the Crown which are frequently the same thing. In Sweden which produced Ombudsmanship 150 years ago, the Ombudsman on his own cannot change decisions but he can impose fines on a Civil Servant for prosecution or even on a judge. A judge who loses his temper with a witness is liable to a fine of $300. This sword of Damocles authority gives him a peculiar power over both government and judiciary.

In Canada it is most unlikely that he would be given authority to prosecute nor would he have any control of the judiciary. Such an idea would be repugnant to most Canadians. If the system eventually is set up here it will operate in a separate field to the judiciary and will interfere in no way with appeals to the courts. While those appeals are limited by refusal of the courts as a rule to interfere with the legislative authority given to government by Parliament or with administrative decisions of officials, channels of appeal are wider than is realized.

In some cases where official rulings are based simply on law rather than policy appeal boards have been set up. The most approachable in hearing the small man's complaint is the Tax Appeal Board where payment of $15 will give any Canadian his day in court.

A Canadian Ombudsman would be far more concerned with complaints against official decisions based wholly or in part on government policy as distinct from law. These are cases which the courts will not hear unless there is a quest ion of the constitutional right of the official or the regulatory board to make such a decision.

His direct power would be confined to the authority to investigate and for this purpose to demand any document in the hands of a department or board or agency. If partment or board or agency. If partment or board or agency. If partment

"HOME-MADE BREAD"

In the days of the little one-room country school, it was a rare incident when seven youngsters from the same family attended the same school at the same time.

However, such was the case in our family. It was just for a year, so, when our youngest child started, our eldest Daughter was taking grade one. Correspondence courses thus, all seven went to the same school together that year.

The teacher considered it so unusual, that she took a picture of them, standing beside the school to keep as a memento.

With a family of fast growing youngsters who were ALWAYS hungry, it did take "Heaps and stacks" of food to keep them full of "Vim, Vigor and Vitality."

I can recall, so vividly, so many times during the warm Spring and Summers, yes, and in the early Fall when all seven of these overgrowing youngsters would come trooping home from school, pitifully "Absolutely STARVED" (or so they always declared).

I was a bit "Fussy" about my floors, so, if I caught them in time, I would call them all at the door-step telling them to all line up on the door-step and I would bring out some sandwiches. (And, I might add these sandwiches were anything but DAINTY, as long as they were filling.) I would cut slices of bread, (Quite often, fresh-baked that day) at least from three-quarters to an inch thick, spread it with that most excellent home-churned butter, jam or maybe brown sugar and take it out to where all seven of them were lined up on the doorstep, restlessly awaiting their bit (?) of lunch.

And that held them until the six o'clock supper. Gluttony? I think not; just natural for healthy growing youngsters. You see, they could not run up to a store and buy candy-bars, pop, and ice cream, as so many of the town children have acquired the habit of doing. THEIR "Tidbits" were the solid food of home-made bread. And did this "Bit" spoil their appetite for supper? Not so. Everyone of these youngsters turned up enough energy doing chores, the girls, in the house and the Lads outside cleaning barns, bringing in wood and water to the house, fetching and milking cows, that, when supper time came, none of them had to be called the second time to "Come in get it". The younger ones would sometimes have a romp with their dog, or go for a horse-back ride, thus, they, too, were ready to eat supper.

The following is more or less a bit beside the topic, but frankly, I believe that if more children had chores to do now-a-days, instead of loitering around up town, or sauntering up and down the lines, looking for something to do, every one concerned would find life more interesting and would be, perhaps, happier.

However, in this ever changing world today when everything is being done mechanically, what chance have our young folks to assert their ability to DO things constructive, or otherwise? I do feel sorry for them as I believe, given a chance, most of these same youngsters would surprise us with their ability and knowledge to do jobs which otherwise is being done mechanically. Right?

Now back to our subject. Since those days when I just LOVED to see my growing family always so eager for their meals (and lunches) I have regretted the fact that I didn't take pictures of them, especially the times they were all lined up on the old-door-step, all seven of them, each one in the act of taking a big bite of bread, with just their eyes and nose visible behind those huge "CHUNKS, (should I say?) of bread.

Will you pardon me if I have printed below a poem of that "home made bread" composed by my eldest daughter, titled "Mom's home-made bread".

"Whose'er I think of the good old days,
Memories race through my head,
And one of the fondest of these that come to me
Is Mom's delicious, home-made bread.

She'd sank the potet in water warm
A while before she'd bake.
Then make the batter in a pan —
What precautions she would take.
Sis'd piece the pan right near the fire,
And wrap it like a babe, now-here,
Then let it rise the whole night through.
And add more flour in the morn.
Scoop after scoop of home-town flour
Then she'd mix and punch to her heart's desire,
Till the dough was squeaky and smooth;
Then place it to rise near the fire.
In a couple of hours it was risen and light
(A sight for Bakers to adore)
Then she'd punch it down with vigor, again
And let it rise some more.
Then into a dozen well-greased pans
The shapely loaves would go.
And back to the warmth for one more hour;
Then were placed in a row.
And when the bread was baked and brown
We lay smacking fire of wood
Nothing in all this whole wide world
Ever tasted so good.
Baker's bread is a poor excuse
Made in pans and haste,
Lacking the loving care and time
That gives it body and taste.
Whenever I remember the good old days.
Let this one thing be said:
One of the things I miss the most

HARRY HAYS REPORTS —

At the end of every session of Parliament it is the custom to have a prorogation ceremony in the Senate. This is where every session begins with the reading of a Speech from the Throne by the Queen's Canadian representative, the Governor-General, and this is where every session formally ends, with the reading of a Closing Throne Speech.

The ceremony goes far back into history, to a time when the Queen reign had far more real power and influence on Parliament's affairs than today. Everyone knows now that the words in the Throne Speech are those of the Sovereign's Canadian representative.

They are the words of the Government. The opening Speech indicates the program the Government proposes for the new session, just as the closing Speech summarizes the work achieved during the session.

I believe the list of achievements during the last session is both important and impressive. It should be since it was the longest session in our history. Following are some of the main ones.

In the past year there was a very substantial increase in the number of people employed in Canada. The unemployment was reduced to the lowest level for many years. Economic growth was also achieved.

The 1964 expansion in the gross national product was the largest percentage increase to be achieved in years.

The incomes of Canadians have risen to new high levels. Exports have greatly improved, including particularly exports of manufactured products. Interest rates have been held at relatively low levels and monetary conditions have assisted business expansion.

The government's budget deficit has been sharply reduced.

The first report of the economic council of Canada, analyzing the great potentialities for the expansion of the Canadian economy between now and 1970, has been presented.

The federal government has agreed with the governments of all the provinces to recommend a measure whereby all amendments to to the constitution of Canada will in future be enacted in Canada.

An important reform in securing prompt, independent commissions shall undertake the redistribution of electoral districts for the House of Commons, on a basis that will rectify many disparities, and the representation of the people.

A distinctive Canadian flag was approved.

Legislation was enacted authorizing the integration of Canada's three armed services.

The preliminary report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and encouraging signs that understanding between Canadians arising from the dual character of our country is increasing.

Closer consultation than ever before has greatly improved the provide federal measures in the major portion of the disaster risk to say province establishing a crop insurance program.

Increased assistance to farmers in eastern Canada and British Columbia purchasing feed grains was provided.

The work of ARDA was expanded, and a new agreement was made with the province respecting programs for the five years beginning April 1, 1965.

An increase in Canada's contribut ion to the world food program was approved.

A measure establishing a twelve mile fishing zone was adopted.

Increases in veteran's pensions and allowances, enabling their recipients to maintain their standards of living and to share in the benefits of a more buoyant economy were approved.

By amending the National Housing Act we broadened the range of financial assistance available for home ownership and for rental housing.

An agreement was concluded with the United States respecting free trade in automobiles and their components.

The agreement makes possible for the first time a program designed to achieve substantial improvement in efficiency, production and employment.

Approval was given to payment of subscription assistance on the movement of Canadian coal for a period of five years from April 1, 1965, and loans were authorized for coal production assistance for a further period of four years.

Legislation was approved where-by divorce bills can be dealt with more expeditiously.

The government initiated inquiries directed to the reassessment of immigration policy and procedures.

The participation was approved of Canadian troops in the United Nations force in Cyprus.

there were say such in Rome 2,000 years ago, or Athens 2,500 years ago? It's just that they get a better play in the papers these days. Family life always has been, and still is, a fascinating combination of fun and frustration, comfort and chaos.

Sixty-eight thousand years ago, this week, some crazy, hairy women waded through the gurti and beaten to the back of the cave, took a look around, went back to the fire, fished her happy, screaming husband and barbied, "Come on, Buster, we're going to clean this place up."

And the day before yesterday, my wife took me by the hand, led me down cellar, and barbied, "Come on, Buster, we're going to clean this place up." The only difference, at 68,000 years, was that I had to guy more, had to carry some bones and hides outside. I had to make eight trips to the dump, and then whitewash the cave.

Three thousand years ago, Socrates told his wife, Xanthippe, that he was going to a symposium. "You mean you're gonna get stoned with all them bums down at the Legion hall," she snorted. (This was right after the Trojan Wars, and the veterans were in pretty high regard, the world in town that could get a license.)

The other night my wife said, "And where in hell do you think you're going? Prey?"

"I," I replied with some dignity, "am going to a symposium."

"You mean you're going to get stoned with all those drunken bums your investment club?" she sneered. See? The grammar and diction have improved. But me and old Socrates got the same bunch when we got home: hot tongue and cold shoulder.

Two thousand years ago, Marcus Cicero, a Roman senator, toppled into bed at three a.m., after writing a brilliant speech for delivery in the senate on the morrow. At 6:15 a.m. he was vaulted into wakefulness by these sounds: his son practising on the bucina (a war horn that sounds like a lady moose in labor); his daughter chanting, "Eyesore and eyesore makes eyes. Eyes of old and eyesore"; and his wife, who couldn't sleep, cracking walnuts on the head of a Greek slave kneeling on her side of the bed.

This morning after marking essays till three a.m., I was buried into the world at 6:15 by these sounds: my daughter practising on her French horn, which sounds like a French bull moose in labor; my son chanting Latin conjugations; and my wife, who couldn't sleep, cheering (not cracking) lifesavers about three inches from my left ear. (Don't ask me where she got the lifesavers, or Mac's wife got those walnuts, at that hour.)

Estimated current spending for national defence is $1,879,000,000; by comparison, spending by all governments in Canada this year for health and welfare measures is about $4,000,000,000.

Labor income in Canada was $2.6 billion in 1950, $5.5 billion in 1960, $6.6 billion in 1963, $13.2 billion in 1950, and 16.2 billion in 1960, and for 1964 the estimated total is $23.4 billion.

Test drive Meteor— you too will agree it's best!

best in ride! best in handling! best in performance! best in luxury! Best for you!

Meteor gives you the newest, most comfortable ride! It all begins with a 123 inch wheelbase (longest in its class) and a new 'torque-box' frame that flexes its muscles to absorb road shock and vibration. When you test-drive Meteor, hand for the curved road you know, and see how Meteor's ride can tame it.

Meteor handles with the least effort, the most smoothness! Meteor's improved full-coil suspension gives cushioned comfort — without that 'floating' sensation. Handling advances include new 15" low-profile tires that provide broader, surer road contact. When you put Meteor through its paces, you'll find that its handling is engineered to handle toe with care.

Meteor's performance has never been more impressive! The road-hungry 352 and 390 V-8's give you an exciting insight into high performance. And the hot new 240 cubic-inch 'Avenger' Six has pioneered an uncorelled combination of power and economy. Pair any of Meteor's engines with the 3-speed dual range automatic transmission. And you can go gear-changing with the smooth 3- and 4-speed manual transmissions, both fully synchromesh in all forward gears.

Meteor has luxury in the most elegant manner. Plush thick-pile carpeting, padding in broad arm rests, upholsteries, deep foam cushioning, a double-edged key that works on either side, a suspended accelerator pedal, curved side window glass for added interior width . . . and so much more! New 240 cubic-inch 'Avenger' Six: 150 horsepower and 234 pounds feet of torque achieve a new height in high performance — especially with Meteor's 3-speed dual range automatic transmission. Saves like a '6' — pows like a V-8 . . . It's the best! Meteor offers you the best of everything in the popular-priced class. You'll agree when you test-drive Meteor at your Mercury dealer's.

4H PUBLIC SPEAKING ELIMINATIONS!

The District Public Speaking Eliminations for the seventeen 4-H Clubs in the M.D. Flagstaff will be held on Killam in the School Auditorium on Friday evening, April 30 starting at 8:00 p.m.

Club eliminations and a few interclub eliminations to date will have taken place. We are expecting six to eight speakers for the evening. Each speaker will give a 4 to 6 minute prepared talk and a 1 to 2 minute impromptu talk.

All parents, 4H members and interested people are invited to attend the district 4H Public Speaking Eliminations.

ALBERTA DAIRY PRINCESS COMPETITION!

Applications are now being accepted for the 1965 Alberta Dairy Princess Competition which will be held in Edmonton from July 12-17.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 26 inclusive, single or married. They may be living off the farm if they are attending college, university or working. Each contestant will be interviewed on her knowledge of the dairy industry and will be required to use a milling machine.

The winner, after having been crowned Dairy Princess, will act as a public relations officer and goodwill ambassador for the dairy industry. She will appear on radio and television as well as at public functions. Her success as a reigning princess will mainly depend upon her personality, personality plus personality and self-expression.

After reigning as Alberta's Dairy Princess for a year she will compete in the national finals at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. All her expenses connected with the CNE competition will be paid by the Alberta Dairymen's Association, the Alberta Milk & Cream Producers Assn. and the Edmonton Exhibition Assn.

Application forms and further information on the Alberta Dairy Princess Competition may be obtained from district agriculturists, district home economists and Mr. R. P. Dixon, Secretary of the Alberta Dairy Princess Committee, Alberta Dept. of Agriculture in Edmonton.

FACTS FOR THE FARMER:

Never use the parking lights when a car is in motion, says the Alberta Safety Council. They tend to distort the distance to oncoming drivers. When visibility is reduced, use your headlights.

Mary Ann Djos Wed To Wm. Peter Lewis

The Bethania Lutheran Church, Sedgewick, was the scene of a lovely afternoon wedding on Saturday, March 20th, when Mary Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Djos of Sedgewick, became the bride of William Peter Lewis, son of Mr. John Lewis of Killam and the late Mrs. Lewis.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. S. S. Christopherson assisted by Rev. A. J. Severson, uncle of the bride, of Kindersley, Sask. The organist, Mrs. Oswald Olsen of Sedgewick, played the Wedding March, as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. The altar was decorated with bouquets of Mums, with the guest pews marked with bows in shades of white, aqua and yellow.

The bride looked radically lovely in her floor-length gown of white nylon tulle over bridal satin, styled with long slip-point sleeves. The form-fitted, lace-trimmed bodice was embroidered with seed pearls, and bouffant skirt with lace insertions. Her fingertip veil was held in place with traditional pearl studded crown headpiece sent from the bride's relatives in Sweden, and she carried a nice bouquet of red and white roses. Her only jewelry was a black cultured pearl pendant, gift of the groom. Her gift to the groom was mother of pearl cuff links and tie tack.

The maid of honor was a friend of the bride, Miss Carol Christenson of Sedgewick, and bridesmaids were Misses Shirley Lewis, sister of the groom and Linda Meakins, friend of the bride. They were identical gowns of aqua organza with matching lace jackets, styled with high round neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves and bridal skirts. They wore matching flowered headpieces with veiling and white accessories. Their only jewelry consisted of cultured necklace and earring sets, the gifts of the bride, and they carried star bouquets of yellow tea roses and white carnations.

The dainty little flower girls were Marion Severson, cousin of the bride, and Kerry O'Riordan, neice of the groom, who were identical dresses of yellow and white flocked nylon and white daisy headpieces. They carried baskets of blue sweet peas and white tea roses.

Mr. Keith Gillespie of Killam, a friend of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Donald Lewis of Killam, brother of the groom, and Edward Djos of Sedgewick, brother of the bride. The groom's gifts to the best man and ushers were cuff links and tie tacks.

Mrs. Cecil Lewis of Killam, sister in law of the groom, was the soloist singing "O Promise Me," and as the couple knelt at the altar, "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride's mother chose an aqua and white printed rayon sarah dress with beige and brown accessories & corsage of pink roses.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the church basement for 96 guests. The bride's table was laid with a hand-woven linen cloth from Sweden, and was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake baked by the groom's sister Miss Marnie Lewis, and decorated by Mrs. Esmon Beach of Killam. Rev. A. Severson was M. C. and Mr. Oswald Olsen proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom ably responded. Table Prayer was said by Rev. Christopherson and musical numbers consisted of two duets by Mr. Nels Djos and Mr. Ralf Jacobsen, and by Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen.

Miss Brenda Lewis of Killam was in charge of the guest book.

Open house was held at the home of the bride that evening.

For her wedding trip th bride wore a navy blue rayon-linen two-piece suit with powder blue hat and white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Upon returning from a honeymoon to Banff and Jasper the happy couple will reside at Sedgewick.

Out of town guests were from Kindersley, Edmonton, Camrose, Te field, Viking, Lloydminster, Calgary Galahad, Heisler, Hardisty, Killam and Kinsella.

"Rec" Centre Makes Profit

SEDGEWICK — The annual meeting of the Sedgewick Recreation Centre was held last week with a fair crowd of interested citizens attending.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved, and the financial statement for the past winter's activities presented.

Since it was decided to hold two meeting a year (spring and fall), the financial report covered only the past seven months. While this was of necessity a smaller report, it showed a net profit of close to $1000, with most of this coming out of the kitchen operations.

Committee chairman, Gord Petersen outlined the various activities of the past winter at the Centre & made some recommendations for improvements this year. He thanked committee members for co-operation and help during the past year.

Bowling, Hockey, Figure Skating and Gymkhana reports were made.

The retiring members of the committee were: Clyde Cle . Carman Robertson, Gord Petersen and Jimmy Davidson. A new committee was formed following an election, and is now made up as follows: Bert Whitehead, Frankie Mayne, Jean Maulerud, Jake Eickenlamb, Jim Davison, Bob McBride and Art Edwards.

Ways and means were investigated to provide more activity during the summer months, and it was reported that the Centre has been rented for two weeks in July for a religious revival. Other ways of increasing revenue are being sought.

PUBLIC INVITED TO CADET INSPECTION

SEDGEWICK — The Sedgewick School Cadet Corps' Annual Inspection are to be held on Thursday, May 13th at 2:30 p.m. on Sedgewick main street. If the weather is wet the inspection will be held at the Recreation Centre. Inspecting Officer will be Capt. W. H. Jones, Alberta Area Cadet Officer.

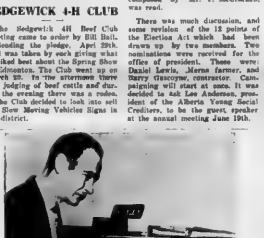
Following the inspection and the march past, there will be a program of demonstrations consisting of competitions between teams of the Cadets and Kadets, designed to be both a test of proficiency in training as well as entertaining.

YOUNG SOCREDS TO HOLD ELECTION

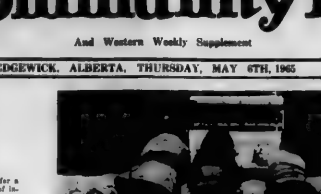
The regular meeting of the Sedgewick-Coronation Young Social Crediters was held on Tuesday, April 27th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lewis. Sixteen members, and two visitors attended.

A copy of Parliamentary Procedure was donated to the group by a member. A poem on the recent Robert Thompson Night, which was composed by Mr. T. McCrackes, was read.

There was much discussion, and some revision of the 12 points of the Election Act which had been drawn up by two members. The nominations were received for the office of president. Those were: Daniel Lewis, Merme farmer, and Barry Gascoyne, constructor. Campaigning will start at once. It was decided to ask Lee Anderson, president of the Alberta Young Social Creditors, to be the guest speaker at the annual meeting June 19th.



AUTOMATION FOR THE FARM. Push-button farming is farming today in Alberta. A computer and electronic computer and shows how in a flash a machine can provide answers to such questions as proper spacing for strawberry patch when and how much to fertilize, or whether a dairy cow is earning its keep, based on the amount of feed consumed. One thing the computer can't tell, however, is where a small farmer will find the money to buy these expensive



WATCHING THE WATER. Residents of homes along the Red River in southern Manitoba have been keeping a wary eye on the swelling river banks, hoping that cool and drying weather could prevent flood damage. Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin early warned that whatever the weather, precautions of the Red could cause bad flooding, referring especially to Morris and Emerson. Above, three youngsters have a high and dry observation point, with sandbags piled on the banks of the Red River.

Tractor Accidents Being Investigated

A research project to investigate the causes of tractor accidents on public roads is being undertaken by Professor B. T. Stevenson of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the University of Alberta. The Alberta Department of Agriculture has given $5,400 in support of the project.

The object of this study is to try and determine the underlying causes of road accidents and the high proportion of tractor fatalities that take place on public roads. A 9 year total shows that while only 2 to 4% of the total tractor operating time may be spent on a road, 25% of the fatal tractor accidents occur during this time. A great majority of these accidents involve no other vehicle except the tractor.

Professor Stephanson will compile reports of tractor accidents on roads, fatal and otherwise, to determine underlying causes for these accidents. He requests that any person who has experienced a tractor accident on a public road, who knows about one, or who has had a near accident, contact him at the Department of Agricultural Engineering, University of Alberta, Edmonton, or call 439-8721, local 231 or 721. All information received will be used in strictest confidence.

FEARLESS PROPHET

If Pauline Fosdick can do it, so can we. There will be a Federal Election called for late this summer. The people of Sedgewick will enforce one against their own better judgement.

Business Conditions Reviewed

MONTREAL — Canadian reserves of gold and foreign exchange might be expected to fall during 1965, according to the Bank of Montreal's Business Review for April, just issued, which summarizes changes in the Canada balance of international payments during the past decade.

"Maintenance of the recent rate of growth in the commodity trade surplus with the world as a whole may prove difficult in the face of the efforts being made by the United Kingdom to reduce its deficit in trade with overseas countries and in the light of the probable increase in imports into Canada as the business expansion continues," the B of M states.

"I addition, the very strong rise in capital outflows observed for this year following a similar rise last year will almost certainly be reflected in heavier imports of machinery, equipment and materials going into this investment program.

"... the program of voluntary restraints on various categories of lending abroad which was announced by the President of the United States in February could lead to a reduction in the inflow of funds into Canada, notwithstanding the general disposition to treat Canada as a special case"

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS

The B of M notes that merchandise exports have been "rising at a rapid clip" and last year jumped by 16 per cent to a record $8.25 billion, with sales to countries other than the United States rising more than the rise to the U.S.

Special when also accounted for part of the rise, but exports of fully manufactured goods also rose sharply largely to traditional markets in the United States, the United Kingdom and the rest of the Commonwealth.

Imports have been rising strongly reflecting buoyant business conditions in Canada, and have offset the gains in exports to some extent.

But, for the year as a whole, "merchandise imports did not rise as much as exports and in consequence there was further growth in the excess of receipts over payments that has been a characteristic feature of the economic expansion that got underway in 1961," the bank states.

GROWING DEFICIT

On the other hand, non-merchandise trade throughout the decade has shown a rising deficit, more than half of which is payment of interest and dividends on foreign investment in Canada.

These payments have increased because of growing foreign investment and higher returns on investments as Canadian business conditions improved during the past four years, the B of M notes.

In addition, the travel account shows a growing deficit as more Canadians travel abroad, enlarging the deficit with overseas countries and reducing the surplus with the United States.

"Capital movements in all forms, both long and short term, have resulted in a net inflow in each of the past four years which has been more than enough to cover the deficit arising from current transactions in goods and services. In consequence, international reserves have risen by the amount of the difference," the B of M Review states.

Strome C. G. I. T. Fetes Grandmas

STROME — The Strome CGIT. "The Sunbeams" and Mrs. M. Johnson, entertained their adopted grandmothers at the Killam Auxiliary Hospital on Thursday afternoon. There were 12 girls in the group & each one and the two leaders had adopted a grandmother at the Hospital for this year's service project. The grandmothers had been sent gifts and cards at Halloween, Valentine day, Christmas and on their birthdays from the Sunbeams, but WHO and WHERE the Sunbeams were had been kept a secret until Thursday when the grandmothers met the Sunbeams for the 1st time

The ladies had been brought to the TV room and were already seated at the table when the group arrived. Judy Morgan briefly introduced the CGIT as the and Sunbeams, and said the purpose of the project had been to remember them and happiness into their lives, letting them know they were not forgotten, and were still loved.

Mrs. Fee introduced the grandmothers and each girl in turn introduced herself to her adopted grandmother, presenting her with a gift. A very nice lunch of sandwiches, angel food cake and ice cream, with tea and coffee was served by the girls. A sing song followed with Miss Dave Lawrence at the piano, which the grandmothers enjoyed. Mrs Morse on behalf of the grandmothers, thanked the girls and the leaders for the party and for the very wonderful time they had.

Judging by the tears of happiness of some and the smiles of others, this truly had been a most worthwhile project.

Traffic Deaths "Hold The Line"

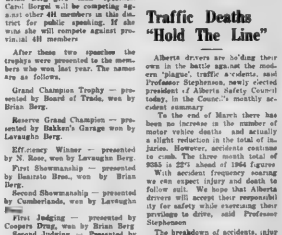
Alberta drivers are holding their own in the battle against the modern plague, traffic accidents, said Professor Stephenson, newly elected president of Alberta Safety Council today, in the Council's monthly account summary

To the end of March there has been no increase in the number of motor vehicle deaths and actually a slight reduction in the total of injuries. However, accidents continue to comb. The three month total of 9285 is 22% ahead of 1964 figures

With accident frequency soaring we can expect injury and death to follow suit. We hope that Alberta drivers will accept their responsibility for safety while exercising their privilege to drive, said Professor Stephenson

The breakdown of accidents, injuries and deaths for the past three months is as follows: Accident: 9, 285, up from 7580; Injuries 1217, & down 12 percent; Deaths 61, with no change.

A total of 28 deaths were reported during March. Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigated 26 motor vehicle fatalities while Edmonton and Calgary police reported 2 each.



SIR WINSTON'S STOCK. This is one of the Belted Galloway cattle previously owned by Sir Winston Churchill, but now taken over by British cattle breeder Seomerset de Chair. Less than a dozen of this white-belted breed exist in all Britain. De Chair plans to move some of the cattle to the U.S., where he plans to start a ranch.

May 9th — Mother's Day

The second Sunday in May has, for decades, been known as "Mother's Day" and on that occasion Mother is supposed to be Queen for the Day. She probably receives a few gifts, if she is living and her children wear a red flower to denote her survival; if she is not living, the sons and daughters are supposed to wear a white flower.

Like birthdays, Mother's Day is a twenty-four hour dedication but a real Mother's Day gift would be something of lasting value—perhaps a promise of taking over some particular task that would make her happier and healthier.

Many older mothers still have responsibilities and heavy housework and don't have time to pamper themselves or even to check up on what might be symptoms of any serious ailment, dental or faulty eyesight. Seeing that she has a medical checkup or that needed glasses are provided could make Mother's Day into Mother's Year.

Car Check Campaign

During the month of May the safety authorities hopefully encourage motorists to have the tens of thousands of cars in this country checked for safety. Brakes., lights, tires and all the big and little parts of a car should be thoroughly gone over, checked and certified as to fitness. And most important of all, that extra part, the driver. While his car is being given a good bill of health, the driver might well have his eyes tested and his general health given the once over, for sudden heart attacks while driving are not uncommon.

Just while we are on the subject of car safety it might be well to touch on another angle of the safety situation. The month of May might also be a good time for traffic "copa" to put a little extra effort into regulating the driving habits of motorists. This is the time of year when many drivers take time out to rev the sludge out of motors, and by the way, out of their own heads, after the winter's accumulation from inactivity. We do not in any sense of the word think some of these drivers are mental cases, but do infer that mental relapses so far as driving is concerned, do often occur, and a nudge from authority is often the cure.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Smiley

FRIGHTENING ISN'T IT?

Are you frozen with terror, these days? You're not? Then wake up, you vegetable. You're supposed to be.

Haven't you notices the relentless campaign to scare the living day, lights out of us ordinary souls? There seems to be a conspiracy, in the communications media, to put the fear of God into our wives and kids into a perpetual state of fear.

Advertising is the most pervisive, though not the most powerful weapon of the scaremongers. It is suggested that if we have a runny hair or a greeny sink, we're sunk; that if we don't use a certain soap, we stink; that if we don't drink a man's beer, we're a bunch of roo-knownkids.

Well, all this is enough to set up a certain nervous tension in the ordinary amiable chap. What man wants to admit he's a failure because he can't rush out to his near friendly neighborhood dealer and snap up an all-new Super Aurora Borealis Shooting Star Sedan, with safety belts? Or has dandruff?

But the is for the morons. You know, all the people who don't read the newspaper. If they went to bed up with acid stomachs, upset nerves, unforgiven headaches and irregularity as constipation is now known, serves them right. Anybody who is frightened by that kind of advertising deserves it.

I'm not at not on the humble commercial watcher that the big guns of the horror-brigade are trained. It is on the serious reader-viewer. They have moved, lock, stock and frightcle, into the newspaper, magazine, book and "serious" T. V. fields.

Every time I pick up, leaf thru' or switch on one of these media, somebody is trying to frighten the wits out of me about something. It's a hot key for a filler to cope with.

Black headlines or graphic pictures suggest that I'm supposed to be shaken rigid about Communists, and cancer; that I'm excited & hinge; high school drop-outs and homosexualism.

Simultaneously, I'm supposed to be stricken by integration and insulation. If I'm not in favor of the former, there'll be a terrible blood-bath. If I'm agin the latter, my heating bill will soar.

Sometime during the day, I'm supposed to be whimpering in a corner because of: high-priced funerals; the computer, which is going to put me out of a job; the unfulfilled housewife; and all the leisure time I'm going to have next year, when automation takes over. You'll notice I haven't even mentioned nuclear fission, which is old hat, nor the squirrels in my attic who, at the moment, according to an article are chewing my wiring to start a fire in which we'll all be cremated, and do we have enough insurance?

If people weren't basically tough, sensible and mean, they'd all go to bed and pull the covers over their heads. Fortunately, we're so sensitive as an old rubber boot. But, in case the sales-distributors are built wrong you, let me give you a formula that is guaranteed to steady the nerves. Out thing at a time.

Communists — most of us are twice as scared of our wives as we are of the Red menace.

Juvenile Delinquents — hit them on the head. Hard.

Cancer — you want to live for ever?

Creeping Socialism — better than galloping type

The Computer — no one wanted a job in the first place?

Leisure Time — be happy to have a chance to sit on your butt.

Population Explosion — see Birth Control; also Nuclear Fission.

High Priced Funerals — you do not have to pay.

DESIGN FOR SAFETY

Just one look at the statistics of fatal farm accidents should make rural people take a serious look at the safety procedures practised on their farms. It is shocking to learn that in one year recently, in the United States, fatalities in the field of agriculture were greater than the number of traffic deaths.

Slow moving vehicles such as farm machinery present a potential hazard on the road. A triangular shaped symbol is now the accepted marking to identify a slow moving vehicle. It immediately cautions the viewer that he is approaching a slow vehicle.

Tractors, silos and colors of the Slow Moving Vehicle were outlined by research at the time at the Ohio State University. Testing has proven that this triangular shape is the most easily identified. Unlike flags and lights, this Emblem is always and will become symbolic to the driving public. The orange fluorescent is in daytime the most visible color available. At night the red reflective border g'ows brilliantly in the path of auto headlights. Another symbol is the car's warning flag for use in hilly country.

These Emblems will soon be available through your local 4H clubs. The cost is minimum. Buy one to use today. Use it again at the rear of every slow vehicle that you operate on a public road.

Which Color Will It Be?

Do you find yourself stuck when it comes to selecting colors for spring paintup time? This has been a common query lately and one that requires some thought. Here are a few reminders to help you create color magic in your home this year!

Use the color wheel in planning — it works like a charm, showing you which colors go together best and the many possibilities for using colors. A favorite painting, printed draperies, floor coverings or a prized antique may serve as a beginning for a color scheme.

Remember there are warm colors and there are cool colors. Cool colors are such as green blue and purple are quiet and relaxing. They are good in rooms that are sunny, have lots of windows and face either south or west. Cool colors suggest space (think of the sky, grass or snow) and these make a small room appear larger.

Warm colors, such as red orange and yellow, are exciting, lively and friendly. Dreary and cold rooms facing east or north are improved with warm colors. A large room can be made smaller and cozier, simply by selecting the right colors.

The very popular "neutrals" such as beige, grey, black and white go well with both warm and cool colors. But remember, the neutrals have color leanings, and if you may have a warm rosy tinge, or a cool greenish tinge so be selective and create the mood you desire. The larger the area, the duller the color. Therefore think in terms of either neutrals or pale colors for your walls and ceilings.

The smaller the area, the brighter the color. Don't neutralize a room to death. Select bright, gay colors of red, green, gold, blue for accent colors. Text cushions, glass jars, candy dishes, and chalk—these are the places your imagination can "run wild. Accent colors are like adding jewellery to a dress. They give a room a special something and make it your own.

ALBERTA CROP INSURANCE

All risk crop insurance, offered for the first time in Alberta, will definitely come into effect this spring.

E. A Pasching, general manager of the Alberta Crop Insurance Corporation, announced that the minimum required sign-up of 25 per cent of eligible farmers has been exceeded in each of the three test areas.

So far 7,040 applications for crop insurance have been received from an estimated 2,780 eligible farmers, making an overall acceptance of 36 per cent. With farmers having until April 30th to make application for insurance, Mr. Patch.ne forwarts a final sign-up of close to 40 per cent of eligible farmers in test areas.

J. M. McKay, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Alberta Crop Insurance Corporation, expressed satisfaction with the acceptance of crop insurance. "Farmers," he said, "have been asking for crop insurance for several years and they have shown by their participation that they really wanted it. With today's high cost of operation, most farmers cannot afford serious crop losses."

All risk crop insurance is being offered by the Government of Alberta with the backing of the federal government. Its purpose is to protect farmers against major crop losses and to stabilize farm income.

Test areas were established this year in the Vulcan-Nobleford, Lacombe-Ponoka and Rosalyn-Vermilion areas.

Of Canada's total area of 3,851, 809 square miles, only 396,541 square miles is land that is privately owned or in process of alienation from the Crown.

Linda Skoberg Wed At St. Andrews United

St. Andrew's United Church, Lougheed, was prettily decorated with Easter lilies, placed by the Explorer and CGIT groups, and floral arrangements, was the scene of a late afternoon, double-ring ceremony, May 1st., April 17th, when Linda Irene, elder daughter of Mr and Mrs. M Skoberg, Lougheed, and Elmer Morien Herman Odegard, elder son of Mrs Esther and the late Mr. J. Odegard, Innisfree, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald G. Lewis, Sedgewick.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a floor length gown of white organza with lace and seed pearls over taffeta, with matching train. Her chapel length veil of tiered net was held in place by a crown of rhinestones and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis with streamers tipped with red rose buds. Her only jewelery was a single cultured pearl drop on a gold chain, gift of the groom.

Judy Wilcox, cousin of the bride was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Pat Wilcox, also cousin of the bride, and Gwenda Skoberg attended her sister as junior bridesmaid. All were attired in identical floor length gowns of soft green sparkle organza over taffeta and wore rhinestone tiaras. They carried bouquets of pale yellow and white shaggy mums.

Little Sharon Marlow, niece of the groom was flower girl and wore a floor length dress with flowers to match the bride's attendants.

The groom's attendants were his brother, Ernest, and Ken Skoberg, brother of the bride. Ushers were Jim Pope and Carl Grove.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion, a two piece ensemble of apricot floral print, overlaid with organza, with white accessories and corsage of yellow rosebuds. The groom's mother wore a pink and grey floral dress with blue accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds.

Following the ceremony an open reception was held for friends and relatives at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Skoberg. Rev. Don Lewis acted as MC for a short program. Toast to the bride was proposed by the bride's uncle, Mr. John Skoberg of Moose Jaw. Sask., and responded to by the groom, who then proposed a toast to the bridesmaids. A congratulatory telegram was read by the best man, after which Misses Judy and Sheri Moss rendered a duet "Devoted to You".

The bride's table was laid with a linen cloth edged with wide lace which had been crocheted by her grandmother and centered by a beautifully decorated 3 tiered wedding cake, flanked by soft green candles. A knife which had originally belonged to the bride's great grandmother was used for cutting the cake.

Miss Judy Moss was in charge of the guest book.

Following the reception a dance was held in the Community Hall, after which the bride changed to a suit of powder blue with white accessories and wore a corsage of orchids. After a short honeymoon the couple will reside in Edmonton.

MACDUFF REPORT

The Road Is Clear

OTTAWA — The backroom boys on Parliament Hill are calling a general election for this summer or fall.

The Liberal minority government has got its throne speech before Parliament setting out an excellent program on which to campaign.

Finance Minister Walker Gordon has brought down his budget — in which he has provided a 10 percent income tax cut (or the average citizen and Canadian.

The stage has been set. All that remains now for the minority government to ring down the curtain with dissolution and go to the country.

Prime Minister L. B. Pearson in his last press conference just before the post-Easter session of Parliament opened, made it clear that he would prefer to carry on for at least two more years. This was seized on by the reporters as the sure sign that Mr. Pearson had poured cold water on any suggestion of a general election this year. But they overlooked two significant words uttered by the Prime Minister. He said he would "like to carry on". And to make his meaning clear, he repeated the words he stressed that he would "like to carry on".

What he meant was that he wanted no more of the nonsense that characterized Parliament before the Easter recess and last winter when the rambunctious opposition stall, ed, obstructed and generally subserviently behaved in a manner most unbecoming to members of Parliament. They insisted splitting hairs at another, raised points of privilege (parliamentary humor up around the blocks and generally acted in a manner that made observers, new to Ottawa, start to shake their heads in disbelief.

Veteran Parliamentary observers sat back and watched the circus begin with calm resignation. The new comers frankly expressed their astonishment and wondered aloud how Prime Minister Pearson continued to put up with such a display. The answer is, Mr. Pearson wanted to get the Canada Pension plan passed.

The Prime Minister also wanted to get the old sanction wound up and the new one launched with the new throne speech and budget. Once he had achieved these objectives he was ready to pull the ropes and to lower the curtain.

There are two issues before this session that could bring about vigorous and determined opposition from the parties that sit across the floor from the government. They are: The Banking legislation & the proposals for altering procedural rules in Parliament.

The banking legislation is due for its decennial revision at this session. It was supposed to take place in the last session but was postponed as one year by act of Parliament to await the receipt by the government of the Royal Commission's report on banking and finance. That report has been received and at this session the government is ready to proceed with the revision of the bank acts.

If they are not passed by June the charters of the banks in Canada will expire. Consequently there is a time limit. The Social Credit, Creditiste and NDP groups have indicated they will fight hard in favor of Premier W. A. Bennett getting his B. C. Bank

But Finance Minister Gordon has declared that it is Government policy to use intensive examination to make it impossible for B C. to have its bank. It could be the showdown issue.

In addition to the throne speech the Government had in it was imperative to reform the procedures of the House of Commons so that it could accomodate the large volume of work required to meet the needs of a fast developing nation. This too could prove a stumbling block towards procedure of business in the present session.

If there is a stalling on procedure, al reform or if there is deliberate hold-ups in the House on the banking legislation the Prime Minister Pearson could decide the time has come to go to the country.

Mr. Pearson has made his election platform. His Finance Minister has provided the tax cuts for the people. The Prime Minister at long last is in a position to go to the country. He will not, of course, call the election in advance of the Dorion inquiry report. That report should be ready by the end of May.

Once that report has been presented the ball will be clear. And, at this stage the betting is that the Opposition, whether it likes it or not, will provide the excuse for the minority Government to call a vote.

Biggest argument for going to the country now insofar as most Liberals are concerned is that they want an election before John Diefenbaker steps into retirement. If a general election is precipitated while Mr. Diefenbaker is leader of the Conservative Party the main by. Prime Minister Pearson has observed somewhat ruefully, that his Government has had pretty severe "on-the-job" training.

Liberal party workers across the country are agreed that now is the time for an election. If the Liberal organization people have their way the Party will go to the country for a vote of confidence to carry out the social welfare program outlined in the throne speech and the economic measures set out in the budget. Watch for an election this summer or fall.

Killiam IODE Hears Provincial Report

NO TAKERS. Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland examined Russian rocket exhibition on how to better relations with the U.S. Visiting Moscow University with ex-Vice President Richard Nixon, following negotiations with a Finnish firm to help build a pulp and paper mill in Newfoundland. Mr. Smallwood suggested Nixon should tell Premier Khrushchev in Russia and Khrushchev in the U.S. "the idea was met with a significant lack of enthusiasm," reports Joey.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our loving son and brother, Norman Roy Moller, who passed away on May 8th, 1955

There is a quiet called sweet remembrance,
Where thoughts and wishes meet.
We take that road in thoughts today
To a loved one we cannot meet.
Yes left us suddenly,
Your last thoughts unknown,
But you left us with memories
We are proud to own.
For memories are like threads of gold—
They never tarnish, nor do they grow old.

TAKES DOWN A PEG OR TWO

For years I had nursed the desire to travel along the famous Alaska Highway. When the chance came, I lost no time in making the necessary arrangements to go.

My daughter-in-law, who lives at Dawson Creek, about 60 miles from Dawson Creek, had been visiting us and decided it was time to return home. On the spur of the moment I said that I'd like to accompany her, thus realizing my dream of seeing the Alaska Highway.

The train trip, with the usual stop-overs took two days and a night. That took us to the end of the rail, at Dawson Creek.

My son met us there , and after a night's rest at the Hotel, we felt the interesting part of the trip was about to begin, as we started out, bright and early for Fort Nelson.

Let me say here, that the scenery along that famous Highway far excelled my most vivid imagination, in sheer, untouched ruggedness, with the majestic Peace River rolling, in all its beauty, somehow, never-the-less, so we still knew, most tremendous, then, suddenly the always muddy Muskwa River appearing now and again, aroused a bond in both of us. The snow and acres of burned out forests, with tall black snags, of burned pine trees, some leaning precariously, ready to fall at the first wind, left us in no doubt as to the hardship on my mind.

For reasons "beyond my control" I had to be home again much sooner than my two sons and their families wanted.

So, when on a Thursday morning, I announced that I would be leaving that evening, (by Bus to Dawson Creek) they kept mum and soon returning with a plane ticket to Edmonton from the air-port at Fort Nelson.

They explained, that by going by plane, it would enable me to stay a couple of days longer with them, and still be home in the night I had planned, had I gone by Bus and train.

I had never been on a plane but I wouldn't for the world let the boys know that I felt nervous. So, on a Saturday, at approximately 5 p.m., we "took off".

One of my sons had informed the Stewardess that this was my first plane trip, so she, very graciously considerate, even to seeing me directly over the wing, to avoid any discomfort arising from hitting a possible 'air-pocket'.

It was a perfect flying day, one of those world-famous Canadian Fall days, with beautiful fleecy clouds over-head, just cool enough to be comfortable.

We gradually gained altitude until we were skimming along above those mounds of clouds, with a break now and then through which we could glimpse the Alaska Highway, with the cars looking like mere specks.

Sometimes, there would be billows of white smoke, from forest fires, which are all too prevalent, especially in the fall of the year.

After we had left Ft. St. John, the Stewardess came and sat down beside me, and, during our conversation asked me if I would like to go up front to see just what it was like. Naturally, I said, "O yes, please"

So, after she had made sure it would be alright, she escorted me up into the cockpit, where she left me, with the Pilot and co-pilot.

I am sure they were secretly amused at me, a 65 year old lady, goggle-eyed, speechless, standing, open-mouthed, with wonder, at the scenes of control levers and gadgets. They both awaited for me to open conversation.

I would like to say here, that if those two lads and the Stewardess are a sample of Personnel carriery, it is no wonder that people love to fly C.P.A.

Thinking I HAD to say something, I swallowed hard and asked, 'Are we flying very high?'

'About two miles up', answered the pilot.

'Three m-miles,' I repeated. How fast are we travelling?' I asked to cover up my confusion.

'Well, we are a bit ahead of schedule, so we had to slow down to about 200.'

'Two hundred miles? did you say two hundred miles AN HOUR?' I stuttered.

'Yes, Madam, 200', he smilingly, noticing my ill-concealed fear.

Then likely feeling sorry for me, and endeavoring to ease my concern, he pointed 'See that smoke?' 'That is a big forest fire at White Court. That steam that looks like a silver ribbon over to the West, is the Athabasca River.'

After thanking him kindly, I returned to my seat, and do you know, I tightened that emergency belt until it was actually uncomfortable. Which proves that 'What you don't know, won't hurt you', so before that I had just buckled it loosely as per instructions.

During my conversation with the Stewardess, I had mentioned that my family wouldn't believe that I had flown part way.

So she smilingly said, "We'll fix that small matter in a jiffy." So she straightway stuck 2 or 4 more CPA stickers on my suitcase.

We arrived at Edmonton Airport on schedule, where numerous taxis awaited, one especially for the CPA station. FOR ME, thanks to the Stewardess, who had arranged it by radio, before we landed. She knew I would not have much time to catch my train out. Just another mark of courtesy of which I spoke previously.

Before the train had pulled out of Edmonton, it started to rain, and was still pouring when I arrived at my destination, at 11:45 p.m.

Altho I had mentioned to the family before I left home, that I would be home on that particular night, and to BE SURE TO MEET ME WITHOUT FAIL, they said afterwards, that they started figuring it out, and came to the conclusion that I could not possibly make it.

Result — no one at the station, pitch black dark, and raining terrific. The station is over a hill, on a dark side of town, and, as I have difficulty in seeing after dark, you can imagine my plight.

After making sure there was no one there whom I knew, I noticed the most delapidated looking car, standing at the far end of the platform, no top, no hood on the engine and one fender missing. It was a beauty! Ford. All of this I took in at a glance. Then I looked at the occupant. He was a small sort of a man, with a blond handlebar moustache, and as he sat there, hunched over the steering wheel, in the rain, he let go a mouthful of tobacco juice, which, if I had not jumped back so quickly as I did, would undoubtedly have landed square on my foot. He shouted, above the riotle of the engine, 'Well, so what do you want?' I raised my voice to an equal crescendo, and yelled back 'Were you expecting someone in on this train.' 'Yes, but they didn't come', he answered.

Well I wonder if I could get a lift just to the top of the hill.' 'I guess my folks weren't expecting me tonight,' I chattered, for by this time, the raw wind with the rain, had chilled me to the bone. 'Climb in,' he curtly muttered, not at all cordially.

Oh, yes, I forgot to mention the pile of empty chicken-cans which were piled up in the back of the car, where the back seat SHOULD be.

Noticing this, I ventured, ' I have a suitcase, too. Where will I put it? 'Toss it in and climb up. I haven't got all night,' he shouted.

Noticing several morsels in the front seat beside him, I knew he meant for me to do actually as he said, "Climb up" and to toss my suitcase up, also, the best way I could.

I hesitated but for a moment, then figuring 'any port in a storm,' finally got it up and got myself perched up beside it, (my suitcase still had all of those plane stickers pasted on the sides.)

I will admit, I didn't feel very secure, as he started up the hill, the car jerking and snorting, and me hanging on for dear life.

To add insult to injury, he did not stop at the top of the hill, as I had asked him to, (and fervently prayed that he would), he turned right, and went RIGHT UP FRONT STREET and stopped IN FRONT OF THE RED & WHITE STORE.

Being Saturday night, the second show was just out, and the streets were packed with last-minute shoppers. Believe me, I didn't stop to exchange greetings with anyone.

I actually PELL off of that pile of smelly, rickety crates, grabbed my suitcase, and bit off for home, with my head down, in case I might meet someone whom I knew. But not before I mumnered my dutiful 'thanks for the ride' to which the only reply was the clattering of his barre-juice, which this time, fortunately, due to the wind being in my favor, missed me some inches.

However, when my family heard my story, they said, ' bet that old fellow is laughing yet'.

They also felt that if I hadn't been "Taken down a peg or two" I might have been the "High-Hat" for them. It is possible, who knows?

LOUGHEED Homemakers

A brief business meeting was held on April 21. As the roll call the girls modelled an Easter bonnet they had created. The Movie Members were our guests and also modelled their Easter bonnets. Cooking pamphlets which were received from the District Home Economist were distributed among the girls. Treasurer's report was given and the meeting adjourned as the group could be spent playing games. Three 4H clubs participated in the volleyball and contest games — Movie Members, Valley Beef, and Lougheed Homemakers. The evening closed with a hearty lunch and it was fun getting to know other 4H clubs better.

TRACTOR ACCIDENT RESEARCH

A research project to investigate the causes of tractor accidents on public roads is being undertaken by Professor R. T. Stephenson of the Dept. of Agricultural Engineering at the U. of A. The Alberta Dept. of Agriculture has given $3,000 in support of the project.

The object of the study is to try and determine the underlying causes of road accidents and the high proportion of tractor fatalities that take place on public roads. A simple year total shows that while only 5.4% of the total tractor operating time is spent on a road, this is where 36% of the fatal tractor accidents occur. A great majority of these accidents involve no other vehicle.

Prof. Stephenson will compile reports of tractor accidents reported, fatal and otherwise, to determine the underlying causes. He requests that any person who has experienced a tractor accident on public road who knows about one, or has had a near accident, contact him in care of the Dept. of Agriculture Engineering, University of Alberta, Edmonton. All information received will be used in strictest confidence for research purposes.

ALBERTA HORTICULTURAL GUIDE!

Every Alberta gardener will be interested in the revised edition of the "Alberta Horticultural Guide," just released by the provincial Department of Agriculture.

Designed to provide home and farm gardners with the latest cultural and varietal information, it contains a list of recommended vegetable, fruit and flower varieties which can be successfully grown in various parts of the province.

In addition to the usual sections on fruit, flower and vegetable culture, the new edition contains sections on greenhouses, tuberous begonias, spring flowers and bulbs, lilies and dahlias. Another section deals with diseases and insect control by the latest chemical methods. There is also a list of the botanists for home landscaping at the back of the booklet.

A nutrition map divides the western provinces into six horticultural zones, some of which have been further subdivided. The various plants and fruits are recommended for the different parts of the province on the basis of this map.

Prepared by the provincial Horticultural Advisory Committee, all recommendations in the booklet are based upon experimental work carried out all over Alberta by government institutions and private growers. Copies of the "Alberta Horticultural Guide" may be obtained from your D. A.

MOTHERS' DAY — MAY 9TH
THEY CALL HER MOTHER

Paraphrase of Proverbs 31:10-31
Who can find a virtuous woman?
For the value of her life is beyond monetary calculations. Her husband has absolute trust in her. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life.

She keeps his clothing up-to-date, clean and tidy. She willingly works around the house. She provides variety at mealtime by wise selection of garden, orchard and delicious foods. She gets up early each morning to have food for the family yet. We wish Dianne a speedy recovery.

Mr and Mrs Gordon Smith & daughter of Edmonton were Sunday visitors at the W. Coyne home.

Mr and Mrs Lorne of Nelson B. C. spent a few days with his folks Mr and Mrs Lorne Smith.

Mr and Mrs Joe Kroetch & family of Dolder stopped in on Sat. to visit with Ray Kroetch.

David Grylaiecki, who is attending Camrose Lutheran College, spend the week end at home.

Mr and Mrs Ed Coyne and girls were in Alliance on Sunday.

Mr and Mrs E. Van were visiting in the St. Peters district on Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Tony Gowe from Camrose called to see them on Sunday.

She knows how to use a sewing machine and needle, and can make impassionate heart and hand toward those who have great needs. Those in her home especially profit from her domestic talents. Her own cloth is fine linen, and she makes it herself. Even her husband is known by her reserve for he is well respected among those who meet her at the gate. She is able to provide extra income for her family.

She is known as a woman of benevolence character. The immense expension of this character gives her an inner joy.

She is wise in her speech and especially knows how to say kind words. She is concerned about the interests and problems of all in her home. She is not a busybody nor a gossiper. Her children are happy to talk about her to their friends. Her husband also praises her to admiration.

Other women have done great deeds, but this type of a mother and wife reads highest.

Popularity is deceitful and glamor is shallow, but a woman who has personal values will be the Holy Ghost, she shall be praised. She shall receive great satisfaction from her labors and others shall talk about her good deeds wherever they go.—C 1965 by William J. Krutza.

The first week of school after the Easter Holidays was a busy one for the students at Central. Everyone was writing exams, and some of them were quite lengthy.
We just got back to school after ten days holiday, and then got out early five days later. School was dismissed at 2:10 on Friday, but some of the students completed very much about it.
Two new students started school at Central after Easter. They are, Lynn and Danny Ness who are now living on a farm near Lougheed.

C. G. I. T. RALLY AT HARDISTY UNITED CHURCH

HARDISTY — The C.G.I.T. Rally was held in the United Church hall on Saturday with about 30 members attending. Invited were girls from Killam, Sedgewick, Lougheed and Provost. The members from Provost were unable to be present.

Rev. Zwicker introduced the guest speaker at the banquet, who was Mrs. Nealand of Camrose. Her topic was "Craft Camping".

Leaders were Mrs Garland and Mrs. Pat Gilleon who substituted for Mrs. E. Edworthy. Mrs. Redman U.W. president also attended. The banquet was served by the U.C.W.

New Golf Course Open At Sedgewick

SEDGEWICK — The new golf course at Sedgewick is now open for play, with new fairways, greens and tees in place. The new course is somewhat longer at 3291 yards and par 37, as against the former 2876 and par 35.

The entrance is now at the Fair Grounds gate, to where the clubhouse is to be moved, and the first three holes are on the former fair grounds, so do not use the old entrance, but go down to the old fair grounds gate where there is parking area and No. 1 tee.

The fees are fairly higher at $12.50 for men; $15 for man and wife; $17.50 for family; while the single ladies is $5 and schoolboys, $2.50, the same as previously.

The payment of green fees for an occasional game is reserved for visitors, as all residents in the district are to obtain memberships.

There is of course a lot of work to be done on the new course, which will take time, but with free planting and orderly development, the new course can become a beauty spot and park-like addition to the Village.

C. A. R. S. Offers Bursaries Again

Since 1962 the Alberta Division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society has offered 2 Annual Bursaries to deserving graduates of grade 12. The purpose of the Bursary project is to stimulate interest among young people to enter the field of Physical Therapy. There is a worldwide shortage of University-trained para-medical personnel in this profession.

The Medical Advisory Committee of the Society is investigating the possibility of revising the awards from $350 to $500 each on a loan basis, but repayable should the successful applicant agree to be employed by the Society for a period of two years after graduation.

Further particulars and application forms are available from the Society's Division office at Suite 339, 805-5th St. S. W., Calgary.

The deadline for applications is July 15th each year, and these are united from residents within the Province of Alberta and the North West Territories.

The Quality Of Tolerance!

The world today suffers from many ills. Many people are sick. Sick in other ways than physical ills. Consideration for others, and attitudes toward individuals and public enterprises are warped beyond comprehension. There has been a steady increase in this direction ever since the early Romans got enjoyment out of tossing Christians to the lions. Physical violence, repugnant as it may be, can be countered to a degree in most instances, but hurts that react mentally are difficult to combat, and have the most lasting harmful influences.

The editor of the Grand Lodge Bulletin, in commenting on this subject took the lack of tolerance to task and outlines the benefits to society which would result from a proper display of this essential talent, in the following language:

"Tolerance is the vision that enables one to see things from another's viewpoint. It is generosity that concedes to others the right to their own opinions and their peculiarities. It is the bigness that enables us to let people be happy in their own way instead of ours."

On many hands these days we see evidence of intolerance with the views, feelings and wishes of others; it is apparent in local government, in provincial and national affairs, in local social and fraternal circles, and is extremely disquieting because it leads to devastating breaches in the associations we have about us.

The tensions of present day living require of us an even greater measure of tolerance than as ever before. The rapid development of our nation demands of us the acceptance of responsibility and where ideas come in conflict, as must be the case, it is not difficult to find ourselves condemning those whose opinions or ideas differ from ours.

We should give thought always to the right of our fellow men to their own particular desires, ideas and ideals, and temper with tolerance every natural desire to impose our personal demands upon our friends. In the home or in community life there are certain to be times when we do not see eye to eye with our neighbor; there are doubtless times when he is right and we are wrong and we should be prepared to allow a measure of thoughtful tolerance to prevail on views which differ from our own. If we are prepared to do this we find ourselves in the enviable position of being happy and of communicating that happiness to others.

What Is An Editorial?

An editorial is simply the statement of a considered opinion. At least that is what one editor says, and it is an opinion not too hard to go along with, for in fact that it is about what an editorial is. Editorials are too, really a far cry from what some would have them be, for here there is no concentrated effort to please everybody. Sometimes, like a high stick in hockey, an editorial draws a little blood, like the one we did last week asking the public to get off the policeman's back, most frequently editorials make the writer one friend for every forty-nine enemies. You know, the kind who storm in and demand that their subscriptions be cancelled forthwith.

When you bring the bugs in any project to the surface, the ones promoting the enterprise are annoyed, and chiefly they are hapless victims of the 'system'. But laws can always be changed and systems can always be improved. But it is the little people, inarticulate, who usually think the 'long deep thoughts' and call the newspaper office. The kind who offend easily, while failing to realize that unless a newspaper is to become a mere rubber stamp, it will on occasion publish an editorial that brings down the wrath of the citizenry. People who do not like to be 'shook up' or their accustomed thoughts, enlarge their mental horizons or ever abandon preconceived ideas. Reminded that the area could use a little progress to make it a better place to live in, they shrug it off with the old idea that what was good enough for grandpa is good enough for me; why do younger people always want to go forward and keep in step with the last half of the twentieth century? The first half was good enough.

There are dozens of subjects for editorializing that annoy nobody and even bring tears to the eyes of readers: Home and Mother; Christmas; the Easter season; Crippled Children; the Retarded; Glorious Return of Spring. But mention an untidy town, ungodly streets, unenforced traffic regulations — all disgraces — but somebody else's, and rending of them brings no sense of guilt, only the pleasant thought that it is something for George to look after. George will do it. Mention giving blood and you find those who disapprove of transfusions (until they need one themselves). Rubber stamp editorials may not make enemies for the editor, but they make few friends for the newspaper.

No Canada Without Equality!

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin has expressed strongly, and it is hoped conclusively and finally, that it is the only government of Canada that can make foreign treaties is the government in Ottawa. This is in direct conflict with the statement of M. Gerin-Lajoie that Quebec has the power to make treaties in certain instances. This right may exist theoretically, but as a practical thing Canada is one country. Mr. Martin suggests that any province can talk things over with other countries but that the final and only treaty-making power is the central government.

M. Gerin-Lajoie seems to have gone a bit farther in his definition of Quebec rights and possibly intentions. Aside from the fact that Canada hardly can exist as a group of ten or eleven states there is certain to be a strong contention that no province, not even Quebec, can have more authority in any field than any other province. Without equality there can be no Canada.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Speaking Canada Minds!

OTTAWA — Prime Minister L. B. Pearson made his third foray in the United States in two months recently diplomatically informing our good neighbors to the South that he intended to keep an open mind about American policies when they could mean the difference between war and peace for Canadians.

The occasion was the presentation to the Prime Minister of an honorary degree by the University of Vermont at Burlington. The press in both Canada and the United States in recent weeks have carried stories out of Washington suggesting that Mr. Pearson had been "cheesed off" by President Johnson for his last speech in the U. S. He made that speech in Philadelphia when he was accepting Temple University's World Peace Award.

In that Philadelphia speech Mr. Pearson called upon the Americans to order a "pause" at the right time in their bombing raids on North Viet Nam. Just before the speech on a Friday night President Johnson's aides called Mr. Pearson and said the President would be delighted to have the Prime Minister for lunch in Camp David. The Prime Minister's aide said Mr. Pearson would be delighted to accept & then read to the President's aide a few key paragraphs from Mr. Pearson's speech.

That was the first word Mr. Johnson had that the Prime Minister was going to suggest a "pause" in the U. S. air raids. Obviously the Canadian Prime Minister was not aware that he should not let Mr. Johnson know in advance what he was going to say, otherwise there might be pressure put on him by the State Department to refrain from making such a statement. Next to go ahead and just make the speech and get the reactions afterwards.

The reaction was not long in coming. When Mr. Pearson flew by helicopter to Camp David he found the President annoyed

Mr. Johnson thinks, acts and reacts like a politician. He was under heavy fire from some of his colleagues, not critics in the U. S. for ordering stepped up air raids on North Viet Nam.

The President made it clear to Mr. Pearson that he did not appreciate the Prime Minister sounding off along such lines in the U. S. When the two men emerged from their luncheon meeting and talks, it was apparent to the newspapermen that the President was in a bad humour

Later that week inspired stories came out of Washington indicating that Mr. Johnson had been annoyed with Mr. Pearson for preaching a "pause" in the American air raids.

Later back in Ottawa, Mr. Pearson at a press conference admitted that he and the President had an "argument", but emphasized that they had parted friends.

This was the setting against which the Prime Minister flew back into the U. S. to speak to the Convocation Ceremonies at the University of Vermont. A large delegation of press men from Canada and the U. S. showed up to hear what Mr. Pearson had to say.

Mr. Pearson again quietly but emphatically made it plain that he intended to go right on speaking up when he thought U. S. policies in the international field deserved some friendly criticism from Canada. Adding point to his remarks he went out of his way to lump praise on U. S. Senator George Aiken, (Republican-Vermont) who was on the platform because he was to bestow the honorary degree upon Mr. Pearson. The Senator has been a strong critic of Mr. Johnson's policies in Viet Nam. He has warned that the war there could escalate into a full-blown nuclear war that would result in the deaths of millions of persons on both sides.

The Senator's comments have aroused the ire of President Johnson. In this respect Mr. Pearson & the Senator have something in common.

When Mr. Pearson spoke to the Convocation audience his remarks were not lost on his listeners. They are well aware of Canada in the State of Vermont. They are "communist close" as the Prime Minister pointed out. The University has a Canadian studies course. Several members of its faculty are Canadians.

Mr. Pearson singled out Senator Aiken as an example of Americans who had earned the deep respect of Canadians over the years for his wise and fairminded approach to relations between the two countries. He thanked the Senator warmly for the "great good sense and genuine goodwill which he has consistently displayed in U. S.-Canadian relations," obviously aware of the large corps of U. S. reporters present. The Prime Minister conceded that there are not always a complete identity of interest between the two countries. Canada felt duty bound to speak with her own voice on continental and international problems of concern to Canadians. But in doing so Canadians would never ignore the heavy world responsibilities of the U. S. which are so much greater than those of Can. ada. Mr. Pearson said all Canadians realized that if they did not for the Americans assuming the heavy burdens of leadership in the free world the future for freedom-loving nations would be bleak.

Mr. Pearson told Canadians and Americans would work closely and effectively together. They would continue to judge each other more critically than they judged anyone else. They realized that their friendship was strong enough to stand the test of frankness which is the real test of friendship.

In Parliament on his return the Prime Minister found himself being questioned about the United States' actions in the Dominican Republic. He said the situation in Santo Domingo was not the same as the situation that prevailed late in 1962 as the Russians moved into Cuba. He declared that it was the hope of the Canadian Government that in the interests of peace and security in the Dominican Republic, any political arrangements that are made, will be made by the people of that island. Meantime he reports the Canadian Government had received were not conclusive concerning the degree of Communist involvement in the fighting in Santo Domingo. There were Communists involved & many of them had received guerrilla training in Communist countries including, he had no doubt, Cuba.

WEATHER FORECASTS TO BE CONTINUED

By popular request the Alberta Agricultural Weather Forecast began again on May 10th. This service received such overwhelming support for its continuance during a survey conducted last fall, Many of the farmers contacted wanted it on a year-round basis.

The service jointly by the provincial Dept. of Agriculture and the Dominion Public Weather Office in Edmonton, the daily forecasts are available to over 30 radio and T V stations in Alberta and Northern B.C. They also go to a number of daily newspapers. Each report covers a 5-day forecasting period with an outlook for a third day. Whenever weather conditions permit, the outlook is extended to cover a 6th day The forecast consists of a farm weather synopsis and regional forecasts. The probable effect of the weather on farm operations is emphas.ized throughout. Such information has proved very useful during haying and harvesting operations. It is also very valuable for predicting insect outbreaks and enabling farmers to take the necessary precautions.

Last year a large number of listeners indicated that they would like the forecasts to be based on smaller agricultural regions. Although this is not possible for reports cover an extended period, the weather office will try when the weather conditions permit, to indicate differences which are likely to occur within the Peace, Parkland and Prairie regions.

A leaflet containing a map outlining the three forecast areas and explaining how farmers can make the best use of forecast material, is available from any district agriculturist's office.

YOU WERE ASKING

Many home sewers are eager to keep informed on today's fabrics At our most recent Clothing Construction course, I've had a number of inquiries about summer fabrics. So this week we can follow the described by terminology of which we are not familiar. In addition to this, the names which textile manufacturers give their particular fabrics sometimes leads to greater confusion.

This week I would like to define some of the words which new fabrics use in the hope that you will understand those terms define either a process of manufacturing, a method of weaving or a type of finish applied to some of the summer fabrics

COMBED COTTON:

Fabric which has been carded and combed in order to remove all short fibres. The result is a more even, compact fabric with fewer projecting fibres

GIZARD

A finishing process by which cotton fabrics can be treated with starch, glue, and/or shellac It is then run through a hot friction roller to give them a high, smooth polish. The process is designed to make woven cottons look as synthetic resins, are baked in at a high temperature

EVERLAZE

This is a trademark for a fabric which has these words bonded to it The resins become an integral part of each individual fibre. The finish adds crease resistance, and dimensional stability

MERCERIZED

Treatment for cottons using caustic soda at low temperature This makes the cotton stronger, more lustrous, more absorbent and more receptive to dye

SUPIMA

A high quality of pima cotton That is stronger and finer than other varieties. It dyes well and resists pilling.

POLYNOSIC

This is a new fabric appearing on the world market. Similar to rayon in fabric structure. The name itself describes a highly stable rayon fibre. It has a high resistance to stretching when wet. It may be used alone or blended with cotton

These are just a few of the hundreds of textile terms which confront us today. If you are interested in learning more about textiles, we have an excellent book at Available from the following address "A Dictionary of Textile Terms." — The Fiber Center Mills, Danville, Virginia, U. S. A.

United Churches Hear Missionary

Rev. Eric Reed, former United Church Missionary in Zambia, was a recent speaker at Sedgewick, Lougheed and Marwayne United Churches. In November of last year, Rev. Eric Reed completed nearly ten years of service in Zambia which was known as Northern Rhodesia prior to its independence. While speaking of the work of the church in Zambia, and of the development of the country and the people, Rev. Reed also challenged the congregations to witness to their stewardship, unity, Christian love, and the Gospel.

At an evening meeting in Sedgewick United Church, Rev. Reed showed colored slides taken over in Zambia. His commentary which accompanied the slides, brought his viewers into the very life of the people of Zambia. Several slides showed a contrast in the old & new culture, churches, homes and cities of the African country.

Rev. Reed is on an extensive tour of all Alberta. Later in the summer he will take up pastoral duties in Innisfail.

HOMEMAKERS

LOUGHEED — Practicing for the Achievement Day was the main highlight of the May 5th meeting of the Lougheed Homemakers. It will be held May 10th in the Community Hall in Lougheed at 8:00 p.m.

Roll call was "Fun machines that suited you, or a table centre. We had an invitation from the Hersa Members to attend their Achievement Day, and some of the girls decided to go. It was decided to hold a meeting at the regular time after the Achievement Day, to finish Joyce's business.

The club congratulated Loron Storbakken on winning 2nd in the Speak-off for M.H. Flagstaff, and wished her luck at Camrose.

Central Highlites

Now that the Easter Exams are over it's time for report cards. The report cards will be issued on May 11th. The report cards were supposed to be given out on Friday, but since all the tests of the grade 12's were not yet marked this was not possible.

The Central High Spring Prom is to be held on May 7th, and a good turn-out is expected because the report cards have been delayed.

There is a new teacher in Central who is taking the place of Mr. H Stave in teaching 20 and 30. He is also a Mr. Hinsby.

The Cadet Inspection of the local Corps will be held on Thursday the 13th of May on main street. It will start at 2:30 p.m., and if it rains it will be held in the Rec Centre.

There will be no high school track meet this year at Central, but some of the students will be taking part in the Area Track Meet at Camrose on May 15th.

LAZY SKATING. Skateboards have become a craze across the country, but now there's a motorized variety such as above, to add to the thrill. Meanwhile, several Canadian communities, like Montreal and Ottawa, have decided that even conventional skateboard riding is too dangerous, and have banned the sport from the streets.

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

Our agriculture as a whole is far healthier and more productive than ever before. But we all recognize that thousands of individual farmers still have serious problems.

In our own area there problems in two words — low income. This is the core of the problem we have to deal with if we are to strengthen Canada.

Since I have been Minister of Agriculture, I have studied personally, at first hand, the agricultural problems in this country.

From what I have learned it is my considered opinion that Canada today is behind most of those countries in establishing policies that will ensure a strong, economically sound food production industry for the expanded population we will have in the future.

Where we are most behind — in establishing a comprehensive national policy to be the whole of our agricultural economy.

We like to think of Canada as an agricultural exporting country and we still do export something over 30 percent of our total farm production, which amounts to about a fifth of our total exports. But we have been so careless of agriculture during the last twenty years or so that today we import almost as much food, in terms of monetary value, as we export, including such items as pork and beef and cheese which Canada can produce as well as any country in the world.

We don't think Canada should become dependent on world markets for such an essential item as food.

It is to see that this doesn't happen that this government is developing a comprehensive national policy for agriculture.

The direction we will be moving with the proposed Canadian Dairy Commission should provide a guide for approaches to income and marketing problems in other areas of agriculture in the future.

If those sound like radical approaches, I defend them by pointing out that our problems are radical.

Hand-outs are no solution. Nor are subsidy programs that only encourage unhealthy surpluses. We have taken as ad hoc approach to our agricultural problems for too long.

The government intends to develop, in co-operation with the provinces, a national agricultural program based on economic principles which as far as possible can be placed beyond the reach of political expediencies.

This program must ensure a stable supply of food for our consumers at reasonable prices. It also must recognize the legitimate interests in our domestic market of our trading partners.

But it must also recognize the right of every farmer in this country to an income that is more closely equivalent to what the workers in our towns and cities enjoy.

We now have labor laws guaranteeing minimum wages for our workers. We have tariffs and incentives for our businessmen. It's time we started thinking of a minimum income for our farmers.

In 1949 the average weekly industrial wage was equivalent to $2,256 per year. In the same year, the average realized net income of farmers was almost the same, $2,283. In 1964, however, the average industrial wage had increased to $4,472 while the average farm income was only $2,815 — a difference of nearly $700.

The primary objective of all our agricultural programs should be to encourage a national average realized net income for the family farm equivalent to the national average industrial wage.

This should be our definition of a minimum economic family farm unit.

It was with this goal in mind we doubled the farm credit available through the federal government. It was with this goal in mind that we established the Farm Products Stabilization Act. It was with this goal in mind that we devised the crop insurance program. It was with this goal in mind that we developed a new-ability-based price program for all major farm fairs and exhibitions in this country.

It will be with this goal in mind that we establish a National Dairy Commission.

Sedgewick W. I.

SEDGEWICK — At the May meeting there were ten members in attendance from Lougheed and 17 local grandmothers, in honor of Mother's Day. They were greeted with special words of welcome from the vice-president Mrs. Geo. Wellman, who also conducted the meet.

The treasurer reported that we would be able to send a contribution of $47 to the Diabetic Fund.

The chairman of the Cancer Campaign, Mrs. Cooper, stated that the response had been good and that to date $180 had been collected.

The recent X-Ray Clinic committee reported that out of 686 persons registered, 686 attended, and that 700 Diabetic Test Strips had been received, with 400 issued.

Mrs. Helen Whitten volunteered to act as delegate to the Provincial Convention June 1, 2 and 3.

The Travelling Basket is to be completed by the next meeting.

A song called "Happiness Is The Thing" was sung in unison to begin the program. Following this, two humorous pantomimes were enacted. More group singing and a comics' stunt ended the evening.

The Bible Today

"I challenge you to make great plans, ask God to make great dedication — to challenge the big men of Canada and the young hundred men, to enlist in the Bible Society cause in Canada for the world," stated an Australian on a recent visit to this country.

At the Annual General Board Meeting of the Canadian Bible Society, the guest speaker was the Rev. Canon H. M. Arrowsmith, the General Secretary of The British & Foreign Bible Society in Australia.

He spoke of translation work in New Guinea as well as other parts of the world. Three thousand people are presently engaged in translation work in 500 languages under the Society's auspices. 1,532 languages have at least one book of the Scriptures. The whole Bible may be secured in only 225 tongues.

It was stated that the new Spanish text in Greek and Hebrew is being found to be acceptable for all Christian church groups, including Roman Catholic.

The meeting was reminded that 95% of all Scripture distribution in Africa, Asia and South America is linked with the Bible Society. Seventy million copies of Scriptures were circulated throughout the entire world in 1964, an increase of over over 1960.

Book Censorship

Book Censorship by police is to be deplored, Police of Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon have practiced it in the case of a new novel, Lilith, which is bad that it attracts the attention of police, who rarely are prudish, should have been banned by the publishers in the first place.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Husband and Dad, Ralph Roy Hobson, who passed away May 14, 1963.

Twelve long years have passed since that sad day,
When you closed your eyes & went away
In memory we see you ever the same,
A beautiful memory more precious than gold,
One of a loved one whose worth can never be told.

Loved and remembered every day.

Cause most of us went with you there.

Always loved and sadly missed by Your Loving Wife & Son Leona. p

A. P. Crop Report

Local — General moisture conditions are good, in the land in various places still too wet for cultivation. Some work is being done in more favorable areas, but a week to ten days of dry weather will be needed before operations can become general.

General — As the result of rains last fall, overall moisture is very good, and the surface is still too wet for farm machinery. Up to two weeks of dry weather will be needed before spring operations can be general. Some stations report that wheat acreages will be reduced and coarse grain acreage increased.

SUGAR—NOW FAT CUTPRIT!

There is strong and rapidly accumulating evidence that points to sugar as a major dietary factor in coronary heart disease, according to Dr. Yudkin, chairman of the Nutrition Dept., University of London.

Dr Yudkin has noted that fat consumption in the U.S. has increased by only 12% during the last 70 years, with a significant increase in the ratio of polyunsaturated to saturated fats The commonly held view would suggest that this should have resulted in a fall in coronary heart disease instead of the considerable rise that has actually taken place. Sugar consumption, on the other hand, has more than doubled in the same period.

Recent evidence now indicates that men with coronary problems have been eating twice as much sugar as those with no symptoms of heart disease The same men also ate other group suffering from Atherosclerosis, with the degree of severity proportional to the level of sugar intake

Dr. O Paul, a Chicago Cardiologist, made studies of 2000 men His survey showed that the 50 men who developed heart disease in the first six years of the study had diets that did not differ in fat—intact rather in quality or quantity) from the men without heart disorders

BUTTER PRICES The federal government's decision, announced by Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, to cut its butter subsidy to farmers has raised the cost of butter two cents a pound, the amount of the former subsidy. Each Canadian eats 20 pounds of butter a year.

DAY OF ALL DAYS

There are certain ancient and honorable rituals in our society which help to give our lives a certain continuity. Many of them are geared to the seasons: spring cleaning; summer Fly; the burning of the lawns; getting stained out of your skull on New Year's Eve.

One of the most sacred of these, for some of us, is Opening Day of the trout season.

Shop of a beaver tail; chortle of running water; subtler of wild duck taking off from swamp; feel of the sun on face; odor of green spreading through bare bones of hewn. we banned stench of worm-pots on hands; flavor of mug boiled no sandwich with hot mustard; these are the things which quicken the senses, cleanse the body of its winter stupor, remind one that God is still in His heaven.

And these are some of the reasons I have never missed the rise, whether the mortgage is due, or my wife is having a baby, or I have a date with Sophia Loren.

And I hope to do so until the day when they have to carry me to some quiet spot on the stream and leave me there in my sheepskin to watch the black water swirl around the white rock, the yellow sun pick up the golden gravel of the stream-bottom.

Each year the ritual is the same. And each year it is different. There is the year when you fall off a log in the first three minutes, and squish & squelch yourself through the rest of the day, a sodden mess, wet fags, wet matches, soaked sandwiches.

And there is the year when you hit the stream at the crack of dawn, fish with all your skill until sunset, and come home with a two speckled trout eight inches long. And there is the year when you go out at 7:30 a.m. just to lose a line for old times sake, and have caught your limit before work time at 9:30 a.m.

And there's the year when your best cast falls from your left into a torrent, and you snap the tip off your rod, and put a hole in your new waders, and get back to the car to find a Flat tire, and get home to find your wife calling the police because it's four hours after sunset.

But this year topped them all. It was complicated. One high school music teacher, with incredible lack of foresight, had scheduled an extra concert, with a city school, for that very day. Fine. But it turned out we had to have some of the visiting youngsters for dinner. As my wife is away every Saturday, for some lessons with the kids, she must I was cook.

Normally, I'd have welcomed a chance to display my Culinary skill. In fact, I had the menu planned. Beef stew simmered in beer, followed by sour cream soufflé, roast chestnuts and peppermint liqueurs as dessert. Then I realized it was Opening Day.

I was aghast. Wanted to be a real good host but danged if I was going to miss the rites of spring. There is struck me. Why not give these city kids, prepared for years on steaks and chicken, a real north-country dinner — speckled trout, lovingly fried in butter? They'd never forget it.

With a light heart, I hit for the trout stream on Opening Day. Everything was perfect. It was a fine day, and I knew there were at least 47 big speckles in there. Just wait'd to hit that butter

Got home at 4:30 p.m. with two six-inch chub and a 14-inch sucker. Went to the fish market. They had nothing but some fairly large white fish, which somehow didn't look like speckled trout. Called all my friends. They had either been skunked, like me, or stated flatly, "The hell with you Smiley; we're putting on a big speckled trout dinner for those visiting musicians; feeding 4 of them." Bought two pounds of hamburg.

You know, there are times when my love for my wife is overwhelming. When I arrived at the house at 5:30, she was grilling steaks in the oven.

The Edmonton Better Business Bureau warns Alberta farmers to beware of a certain Mr. "X" who is travelling around the province selling farm water systems.

According to the manager of the EBBB, this man is not licensed to make direct sales. He has a history of defrauding the public and continually changing the name of his firm. His operations include taking money on orders in advance of the delivery.

At one time a delegation of farmers visited the Edmonton Better Business Bureau to protest this method of operations. Later, this individual used the name of a firm in another province without authorization and was again the subject of consumer complaints.

Many of Mr. "X's" 1964 customers are still without service or satisfaction after having paid their accounts in full or financed the sums. However, he is out again this year under the name of still another firm, and ready to catch some more unsuspecting Farmers who are interested in water softeners or reverse plumbing systems.

N. Gas Debentures Selling At Good Clip

Councils of Killam and Sedgewick are well pleased with the rate the Natural Gas Debentures are being picked up by the public. ★ MACDUFF REPORT

Spy Trouble

OTTAWA — Canada's Official Secrets Act passed by Parliament in 1939 under the shadow of war is a frightening document for any pub lic servant who might have access to confidential information. A chain of events of which he or she might be only casually aware could at best land him in court and at worst in the penitentiary for a period of 14 years.

It is one of those exceptions to the rule of British justice that a man is innocent until he is proven guilty and, second only to the War Measures Act, makes conviction on the merest suspicion possible. The War Measures Act, as its name implies comes into force only where there is a state of war or apprehended war. The Official Secrets Act is with us always & has been used in peacetime on more than one occasion.

By frequent use of the little word "deemed" it is hardly necessary for a prosecutor to do more than show that a civil servant could have access to information the disclosure of which would be prejudicial to the safety of the state and has been in communication with the agent of a foreign power.

But that is not all. It does not have to be secret communication for sinister purposes. He shall be deemed to have been in communication for such purpose if he has visited the address of a foreign agent.

One such address is 285 Charlotte Street in Ottawa which most senior civil servants have visited at one time or another. The Russian embassy is noted for its lavish entertainment. The acceptance of one invitation could start the chain and in fact on one occasion at least gave uneasy sight to quite a few innocent Government officials.

Late one Sunday night in February 1946 a brief announcement by the Prime Minister's office posted in the Parliamentary Press Gallery revealed that certain persons had been apprehended and detained as a result of information pointing to the fact that agents of a certain foreign power had been obtaining information perjudicial to the security of Canada. The certain persons turned out to be 14 civil servants whose homes had been visited simultaneously by the RCMP in the middle of Saturday night and who had been whisked off to an RCMP barracks outside the city to be held incommunicado at the pleasure of the Minister of Justice for interrogation.

The order-in-council authorizing such a course had been passed in October 1945 after the Gouzenko documents revealed the extent of the ring. It was not made public until the following June and aroused even at that time a storm of political protest. In the House of Commons the Hon. C. G. Power, former Liberal Minister and now a Senator combined a fiery attack on the Government with the words: "If this be the funeral of Liberalism I for one do not wish to be a pallbearer".

But to the people of Canada generally, with the war still fresh in memory no action appeared too harsh. The fact that Canadian citizens had assisted the Russians in obtaining military secrets & were in their pay created shock & panic. The story of Igor Gouzenko and clerk in the Russian embassy whose action exposed the spy ring operating not only in Canada but in the United States and the United King dom has been written and rewritten. Hollywood filmed it with some variations from the truth. But for once, Hollywood fiction was far less dramatic than the facts revealed officially in the report of the Royal Commission, the Hon. Robert Taschereau, now Chief Justice and the Hon. R. L. Kellock.

A few of the civil servants were able eventually to prove their innocence after secret court hearings. Most of them were convicted. Fred Rose, Communist member of Parliament from Montreal served a penitentiary term and the whole Communist party in Canada was shown to be involved.

The recent disclosure that the Russians are at it again or to be more accurate are still at it is not causing the panic of 20 years ago. But it is admitted that the two men sent back to Russia on representations made by the Canadian Govern ment, had plans just as ambitious as the operations of Col. Zabotin's spy ring in 1945. One of the men was the commercial attache at the embassy, Anatoli Bytchkov. He has been particularly active entertaining newspaper men and courting publicity purportedly in the interests of closer Soviet Canadian trade relations.

Only two unidentified Canadians have been mentioned as far, one of whom apparently went to the police immediately. The other, a civil servant, accepted thousands of dollars from the Russians & worked with them in attempts to compromise civil servants, some of them women. This of course is an old trick.

He has had a severe heart attack and may not recover. If he does then will be a general demand for his prosecution under the Official Secrets Act. Meantime the Prime Minister's statement in the House of Commons was probably as full as security would allow but it is far from satisfying.

CAPITAL HILL CAPSULE

Prime Minister Pearson's speech to the Quebec Liberals was as near to a challenge to Conservatives to defeat him in the House as anything he has said or done yet. The Tories, he said, breathed fire and slaughter but when it came to the vote made sure they lost it. Just to prove his point Conservatives, the very next day, passed up the opportunity for a non-confidence motion.

The Bible Today

Viet Nam has colporteurs seeking to distribute Scriptures in cities as well as rural areas. About 10 a.m. one morning recently the Bible van was enroute out of Saigon to Phan Thiet. While passing through dense forest, the colporteurs in the van were hailed by armed men & questioned "Who are you? Where are you going, all dressed up and wearing ties?" They replied that they were carrying Christian Scriptures on a witnessing mission.

After word was relayed to a lord er hidden in the foliage, guns were lowered and they were allowed to go on their way. During the course of that trip they were able to distribute many copies of the Scriptures. A number decided to follow Christ, including a man who had previously resisted the message.

Colporteurs in Viet Nam report meeting many who had lost contact with the Christian community due to warfare. Sales of Bible and New Testaments have increased significantly in Viet Nam during the past year in spite of warfare, floods and other distressing circumstances.

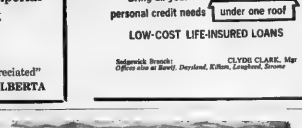
"There must be a better way to build a highway."

Build the highway for safety - first! Highways with safety factors built-in offer several advantages to roads constructed with an eye solely to economy and economy. Safety factors such as limited access roads and cloverleaf intersections eliminate one of the major hazards leading to accidents and loss of life. Where access to a highway is limited, through traffic flows easier, faster.

Constructing a highway with every known safety-factor built-in is expensive in money, but the saving in life and injuries is worth every penny. The inconvenience caused to local traffic by limiting access roads is a small price to pay for the additional peace-of-mind.



"In Alberta there is!"

Alberta's Department of Highways has built 26 clover-leaf intersections and four are now under construction. Six more are planned for the near future. Elimination of at-grade crossings is part of Alberta's policy for building better, safer roads.

Alberta motorists are among the least taxed in Canada, and yet they enjoy almost 100,000 miles of better road travel facilities - more than almost any other group of Canadians.

Small, safe highways - another feature that makes Alberta A Good Place to Live.

Area Construction Setting Quick Pace

Sparked by an increase in population, with the resulting demands for accomodation, an accelerated program of construction is shaping up along highway 13, at least in the area served by the Community Press. Besides a surge in private home building, an influx of crews for oil companies and other upcoming projects, the demand for public accomodation has induced the construction of modern places to take care of this increasing demand.

Mr George Stewart of Killam informs us that beginning July 10th, construction will begin on a 12-suite Apartment Block which he will erect just west of the Hospital Complex in the Town of Killam. This is to consist of six 3-bedroom suites, and six 1-bedroom, and will be built on a 2 1/2 storey style. No definite date completion before winter. Mr. Harold Tarrison has plans drawn for an 8-unit Motel in Killam, just south of highway 13 and facing on highway 26. Along with the right mix of for public accomodation, the plans call for personal living quarters and plant equipments. These, along with a continued program of private home building, adds up to a busy year in construction in the Town of Killam. Under construction also is a new Wheat Pool Elevator.

Still slated to continue to expand at the same rate it has been doing for the past two or three years, with several names slated for construction, along with a new building for the Battle River Co., and new Revelstoke Lumber Office. The Town of Dayaland is also putting together a new sports grounds just west of the Town limits.

At Hardisty construction is going on at full capacity on a new Motel-type Apartment project just east of the Hospital, along with a new residence. Plans are also proceeding well on a new Medical Centre, construction of which is expected to get under way early this summer.

Lougheed is following the trend, with a new residence now under construction and others in the planning stage. Major repair work is going on at the U.G.G. Elevator, where new driveway and office are being built.

At Sedgewick, the finishing touch is being put on the new Apartment Block which will be ready for occupancy in June. Excavation work is proceeding on a new Veterinary Clinic, with foundations now being put in place. Excavations are being made for two residences, and two new streets have been opened up to accomodate further demand. Work is expected to start soon on a new Feed Mill in the Village.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my husband Robert Edward Kells, who passed away on May 23rd, 1963.
It is hard to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side,
But to everyone there comes a time
When the ways divide.
Heavenly rest to yours my dear,
The loneliness is mine,
Yet when we are sad and lonely
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper
"Cheer up and carry on".
When shadows of night are falling,
And I sorrow most alone,
There comes a longing in my heart
If you could just come home.
Sadly missed by his loving wife Lottie and family; John, Lonnie, Leslie, Vivian, Virginia, Norman, Ray and families. 1 1 p

REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

Reviewing the agricultural situation after taking office, the government decided the most urgent step towards strengthening the position of the family farm was to provide better credit facilities.

Without adequate credit the family farm could not be expanded to the rightful level of profitability in our economy as a whole.

We have now provided the credit facilities to make this possible.

Our farm credit legislation has also made it easier for a father to pass on the family farm to his children or help them start their own place, and for young farmers to get a decent start.

Yet our critics complain that this is no help because you can't borrow yourself rich. These people just don't understand the ease of credit in farming.

They still think of the family farm as a farm of hoe-and-privvied hand, six tired cows, a couple of old worn-out sows, book-keeping on the back of an envelope, a shed or two, a tarpaper shack, a mail-order catalogue and an outhouse.

That's not a family farm. That's a welfare problem. And we have policies for that, too.

Up to now in Canada, it has generally been left to farmers themselves to develop economic units through their own resources.

In my examinations of agricultural policies in other countries, I have been impressed by government programs for the purchase & redevelopment of poorly used land.

I think the federal and provincial governments in Canada will have to consider very soon a comprehensive national program for government purchase and redevelopment of such lands into economic family farm units, which can then be sold or else leased back to private individuals who can then expect to make a decent living on them.

The successful family farm today must mean modern, expensive and efficient machinery, good buildings, costly fertilizers, city-style bookkeeping and management, enough cash income to send the children to university as city families do, and electric lights and indoor plumbing.

Let's take a look at the kind of family farm that could be expected to return a cash income of about $5000 a year for the farmer's labor and investment.

For a wheat farm on medium land in Saskatchewan, he would require about 700 acres, plus the machinery to work it — an investment of $40,000 at the very least, and probably closer to $50,00 or $60,000.

For a dairy farm in Ontario to provide that kind of a living, would require at least 200 acres of land & 40 to 50 milking cows, a minimum investment of $60,00, maybe more.

To make a cow-and-calf beef operation pay that much in Quebec or the Maritimes, a farmer should have something like 500 acres and at least that cows and probably close to 2 hundred, an investment of $60 to $75 thousand or more.

That's why we expanded the farm credit as much as we did, and may eventually have to expand it even further.

And that's why we now intend to take the next step by developing policies that will assure our farms on the kind of markets and incomes that will enable them to pay for this kind of expansion.

Alberta Crop Insurance

A total of 1,233 farmers have insured their crops under Alberta's new crop insurance program. This figure represents 43.5% of the eligible farmers in the three test areas. The deadline for applications was April 30th.

E. A. Pateberg, general manager of the Alberta Crop Insurance Corporation, said he was pleased with the number of farmers to crop insurance being offered this year for the first time in Alberta.

The total liability of the Corporation would be nearly $3,500,00 and the premium income, including the 20% share paid by the Federal Government, will be just over $200,000.

Mr. Patching said that in the Vulcan-Nobleford area there was a 62 percent signup; in the Bashaw-Camrose area, 45% and in the Raneby-Vermilion area 34% of the eligible farmers insured their crop

Under the program farmers are assured of a minimum return from their insured acreage. The amount of the guarantee and the premium farmers pay varies with the crop — whether wheat, oats or barley — the area, type of soil and whether it is sown on summerfallow or stubble. Protection is provided against loss caused by natural hazards such as drouth, frost, hail, insect pests and disease. Typical coverage or guarantee for wheat grown on summerfallow in the Vulcan area is $15.00 per acre for a premium of $1.35 to $1.40 per acre which varies depending on the hail risk. Ponoka-Lacombe area the typical is $12.65 at a cost of 65 to 82 cents and in the Vermilion area it is $18.80 for the cost of $1.32 to $1.97 per acre.

WHAT ABOUT SUMMERFALLOWING?

Recent reports indicate that over 6 1/2 million acres of Alberta farm land will be summerfallowed during 1965. Nearly half this amount will be summerfallowed for the first time. Of the total cultivated acres in the province is in the parkland and the wooded regions.

W. Lobay, Supervisor of Soils & Weed Control with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, says that although there may be a slight reduction in summerfallow acreages from two years ago, there is very definitely room for a much more significant reduction.

Mr. Lobay points out that summerfallowing is expensive, usually costing more than $5 per acre for a limited number of operations. In addition, fallow land leaves the soil susceptible to wind and water erosion, both of which are serious hazards in this province.

Moisture conservation is probably the main reason for summerfallowing. This practice may be necessary in the drier areas of the province but adequate moisture is usually available in the parkland and wooded regions. Mr. Lobay says as a general rule, this factor should not be considered a valid reason for summerfallowing in the parkland and wooded areas.

It is true that nitrogen is released from the organic matter of soils during a fallow year, but this increase in nitrogen is obtained at the expense of the next crop with no crop returns. He points out that the same increase could be obtained by good commercial fertilizer.

Weed control is another reason for summerfallowing. Persistent perennial weeds such as couchgrass, thistles, mustard and others may justify such operations but in many situations herbicides can remove the weeds more effectively and economically. Even in cases where summerfallowing seems justified, farmers should make sure of new and improved herbicides to eliminate some of the field crops that they usually strongly recommends grass and legume rotations. As well as reducing the fallow, they increase the productivity of the land.

District Agriculturists, says Mr. Lobay, can point to many instances in their areas where alternatives to fallowing have proved effective, especially in the wooded and parkland regions. He urges farmers to discuss their cropping programs with their D. A.'s who can often suggest alternatives which will increase farm income and reduce erosion hazard.

Baptist Church

The Sunday morning service was well attended, with the Pastor in charge. The evening saw very few out because of weather conditions. The service, starting by candle light and ending by candle ended with Light from God's Word, which never fails.

With camping and VBS in the planning stage, we are looking forward to a busy summer in the church. We appreciate our faithful workers, and the proper use and investment of talents is emphasized in these lines!

Care in gutting them; Fear in keeping them; Temptation in losing them; Guilt in abusing them; Sorrow in losing them, And the burden of account in hurt, To be given up concerning them.

A clock in a jeweller's window stopped one morning at 20 minutes after eight. It remained silent and inactive for half an hour. School children looking at the clock, stopped to play; people hurrying to the train began to walk more slowly; professional men paused for a while to chat with each other. All were late because one small clock stopped. These people had never known how much they depended on the clock until it led them astray.

Many are thus unconsciously depending upon the influences of Christians. You may think you have no influence, but if you are a Christian, you cannot go wrong in one little act without serious results—that of leading others astray. "None of us liveth unto himself".

TEFLON FRY PANS!

Ordinary and electric fry pans with Teflon finish are now readily available on the market. Use-instructions of the pans verify that the nick properties and their ease of cleaning; but some users complain of the relative softness of the plastic coating. Do exercise care to prevent nicks and scratches. Do not use harsh abrasives for cleaning. The life span of the teflon coating under normal wear and tear is estimated to be three years or so.

THE LEATHER LOOK!

This spring's fashions are showing numerous suedes and smooth leather jackets and coats. If you're a lucky owner of such an elegant garment, you will want to protect your best care. Hang your leather garment on a wool shaped hanger. Store it in an airy place. Starved of air, smooth leathers may fade and suedes mildew. If the garment ever gets wet, let it dry at room temperature.

Wipe any dust off your leather garment often. For suede, use a soft brush or sponge. For smooth leathers, employ a clean, and damp cloth. If you find it necessary to press a leather outfit, use a dry iron at its lowest setting. Place a piece of heavy, brown paper between the iron on the surface of the leather. Press one panel at a time, constantly moving the iron to avoid overheating.

Never attempt to remove spots & stains from a leather garment yourself. The use of a solvent or abrasive may injure the garment permanently. All cleaning of suedes and smooth leathers should be done by a qualified suede and leather cleaner. Specialized equipment and techniques are required in this process. In addition, garments are removed from the skins which have been lost in normal wear are replaced. The garment's life is extended and its original luxurious appearance is restored.

Rain Forces Postponement Of Lougheed Sports Day

The Queen may be enjoying her trip to West Berlin, but it is just as well she wasn't in Lougheed on the 24th of May. The rains came, and she may have needed more than the coat displayed on the editorial page to get around over the wet grounds.

At any rate the big Lougheed Sports Day, harbinger of the spring sporting season, had to be called off due to rain, but the committee in charge says the "Will Go On" with everything as advertised, next Sunday, May 30th. Same place, same times, same events.

See you all Lougheed next Sunday.

Weed 'Em Out!

Bachelor Hon. Gordon Taylor is a well-known sympathizer of hot-rod drivers who carry out their mobile junkets on all manner of highways and by-ways of the province, He did, in fact, go so far as to see that they were, at least in one instance, provided with a speedway strip to enable them to give expression to their mania for speed. Now if Mr. Taylor were a married man there is little doubt that he would be slowed down in his thinking, for the persuasive powers of a good wife are well known to those who "own" one.

The Hon. Minister has recently been sounding the hustings on a policy of opening up some of our provincial highways to unrestricted speed limits, on the theory no doubt that the average driver has enough sense to restrain himself to prevailing conditions. His caution in so promoting the idea quickly is doubtless based on the realization that there are still maniacs who will be driving, and that until they are eliminated ,caution is well advised. There is little doubt that with improved highways, faster cars and more people wanting to get more places faster, there is a need for more speed. But there is also a greater need for the elimination of the accident-prone driver to make roads safer for the rest. The fact that Mr. Taylor is being supported in his proposal by the head of the Alberta Motor Association indicates that the A.M.A., which is in close touch with conditions, realizes the need for clearing the traffic. The dallier is the dangerous driver today.

Before Mr. Taylor seriously considers his idea, there is one factor needing his attention; one which up to now he seems reluctant to do anything about, and that is some means of eliminating the accident-prone, the drinking and the dangerous drivers and the other assorted maniacs from the highways. Some method must be devised to do this, and then the rules must be enforced. In this respect Mr. Hahn of the U. S. has come up with a proven idea of discerning the potentially dangerous driver. He simply blindfolds the victim and dares him. First he shows him a pit filled with broken glass, blindfolds him, leads him back a few feet and orders him to advance toward the pit. Astonishingly true, the dangerous driver will blunder ahead trusting to providence to save him; the average driver takes his steps hesitantly, investigating as he goes; the cautious driver advances only a step or two and refused to go any further. Mr. Hahn claims this works and is a true indication of the individual's driving habits. Who knows, it may work out just that way. In any case, before Mr. Taylor opens up our roads to unrestricted speeds, he would be well advised to open up the possibilities of controlling the drivers or taking them off the road.

Everything Starts Someplace

It's what people don't know, plus what the are not willing to learn that makes them subjects of concern in this modern civilization. We've gotten so big in our selectedness that such small things as a dollar bill and a two-pound roast get no consideration. We think in terms of millions and a freezer full of choice cutlets. For this reason, if for none other, our thinking is out of proportion with the realities of life. It still holds true that everything in this world has to start somewhere and some scale, and sometimes the smaller the start the better for the individual and society. It's always well to remember that the mighty oak tree got its start from the little acorn, and that our present-day welfare program was kicked off with a $30 a month old age pension scheme.

The dopsters who condemn something even before it gets off the ground are barking up a hollow tree, so to speak, for forecasters of doom have many times been found wanting in judgement. The gloom-casters and grab-alers who condemn the 10 percent cut in income tax because it isn't bigger and better, fail to realize that under our present set-up radical losses in revenue are unrealistic to central government. Radical changes in the set-up should precede. While ten percent in some instances isn't much, it's a start, and should be accepted favorably rather than with scorn. Those who condemn the proposed federal health program do so with little actual knowledge of how it will function. It's a start on something the people indicate they want, and just because it isn't all-inclusive in every way is no justification for condemning the entire thing. Adjustments are surely going to have to be made as time goes on, but at least it's a start.

Every new venture into the unknown is fraught with peril, but the only alternative to adventure is to sit passively by and wish for the fortitude to do otherwise, for he who lacks the courage of his own convictions must rely on his fellow man to share his burens.

Car Insurance Paradox!

Strange as it may seem, the paradox of car insurance in Canada today is that the premiums required from car owners continue to rise to new and dangerous levels, while the car insurance companies are losing record sums in their underwriting. In 1965 the average car insurance across the nation is up something like $28 from 1964, and at the same time insurance companies will show a loss on their books of something like 26 million dollars. The reasons for this state of affairs is laid to the facts of increased traffic congestion, high cost of car repairs and rising medical costs, plus the dog-eat-dog practices of insurance companies.

That there is a solution to the situation goes without saying. The thing that hinders such progress is the lack of motivation on the part of those charged with the responsibility of traffic control and car insurance. The insurance industry should start doing a little self-policing and an all-out campaign should be engineered to look into the road safety situation across Canada.

The government of Alberta seems reluctant to take certain & obviously decisive steps to get the dangerous and the drunken driver off the road, and until it makes up its mind to do so, car insurance will continue to climb, deaths increase, and drivers without insurance mount. The time has come for positive action. The careful driver is becoming annoyed.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Entente Cordiale . . .

OTTAWA — Canada's bicultural cold war often displays at least one of the aspects of a real war — prop agandism, thought control, rigid, automatic actions and reactions.

Quebec has only to make the very slightest gesture and some slow-witted centralist screams in pain at the rape of Federal authority.

On the other hand the gentlest suggestion from Ottawa about welfare or education incites spirited protest from some Quebecers whose thought processes are scarcely more complex than a vending machine.

The dispute between Ottawa and Quebec over treaty-making offers as good an example as any of the freezing attitudes, at the expense of reason and truth.

There was little real truth in the boastful claims of Quebec Ministers from Mr. Lesage down, that Quebec had signed an educational agreement with France without reference to Ottawa.

The truth is that the agreement was signed at the same time as Ottawa and Paris exchanged notes, giving consent to the agreement.

The reaction in English-Canada was standard. Quebec has gone too far. It was usurping Federal Authority. It had to be stopped.

This anguished and automatic response may have been provoked by the boastful and automatic actions of Quebec Ministers, who frequently resemble newly-independent African potentates, flaunting each shred of independence, even though it may be the gift of the old colonial power.

But the reaction took little account of the reality — that the educational agreement was signed with Ottawa's consent, that it was similar to many such agreements with foreign institutions entered into by educational bodies in many other provinces.

While the two solitudes shouted at each other, External Affairs Minister Martin felt that it was necessary to intervene.

He announced that "only the Government of Canada has the power or authority to enter into treaties with other countries."

This resounding statement pleased some people, but it had only a propaganda value itself. Quebec was not seeking the right to make treaties with other countries. Its international aspirations are in areas involving provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Martin had little to say on the realities of the Quebec initiative. He had nothing to say on the important constitutional issue which has been raised by the Quebec Education Minister, Paul Gerin-Lajoie.

This constitutional issue has had little or no public discussion, mainly because both sides have been locked into postures of unthinking hostility.

On one side Quebec is claiming it can do something it is not even attempting to do, while on the other Ottawa denies Quebec can do something it is not doing. It's all rather unreal.

But behind the public shouting lies the question of the right of Quebec or any province to enter into international agreements with other countries in matters relating to provincial jurisdiction.

There has long been a conflict in Canada's treaty-making powers. Ottawa can make a treaty, but if it involves provincial jurisdiction, it can't implement the treaty unless the provinces consent.

Quebec argues that the right to implement cannot be separated from the right to negotiate and to conclude.

Disagreements involving provincial jurisdiction therefore, should be the sole concern of the provincial authority.

The Federal Government still insists however, that even in simple educational or cultural agreements, it has a role. But it does not wish to go through the embarrassing experience of exchanging notes and suffering Quebec propaganda every time such agreements are signed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sedgewick, Alberta
May 19th, 1965

Sedgewick, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

This is in answer to a letter appearing in your April 6th issue directed to our Young Social Credit Group. We have asked Premier Manning for his help and the following is his reply:

"Concerning the letter appearing in the Sedgewick Community Press alleging that the Social Credit Government does not carry out its own principle of secrecy for the people the results they want from the management of their public affairs and referring to the matter of centralized Sunday sports as an example, the following information should be of interest.

First, the criticism is founded on a false concept of the issue involved in the recent discussions in the Legislature. Every member of the Social Credit Government firmly believes in, and supports, the basic principle that it is the function of democratic government to secure for the people the results they want from the management of their public affairs. This does not mean that the members of the legislature should become mere mechanical robots to register the direction of each changing wind of public opinion, especially when that opinion is expressed by a very small minority of the people of the province who are responsible for the election of the government. A member who conscientiously works for the interests of his people will always be alert to point out only the benefits to the people of certain proposals. He also has a duty to draw to the people's interests which he sees in any proposition brought before the House. That is what I endeavored to do when discussing the question of commercialized Sunday sports.

"I simply wanted the people to know that commercialized Sunday sports will inevitably lead to a wide open Sunday, which I am convinced will not be in the best interests of the people of the province. I endeavored to give clear and definite reasons as to why I think so, but this does not mean for one moment that I was seeking or intend to force my convictions on the people of Alberta or refuse to respect their right to demand and get the results they want from the management of their public affairs.

If, after they weigh both the pros and cons of this or any other issue, they decide they wish to proceed notwithstanding the inherent dangers, this is their right and they may be certain that their right will be respected. Surely the people themselves would have little respect for any representative who claimed to be looking after their interests but who remained silent when something we sincerely believed to be controversial would work to their disadvantage."

Our Young Social Credit group appreciate the interest shown in our column "Do You Know" and welcome any questions you may have concerning it.

Yours very truly,
Sedgewick-Coronation
Young Social Crediters.

AN UNPLEASANT HOUSE GUEST

The carpet beetle larvae are housepests that no one desires. They do a great deal of damage to materials of animal origin. The time to check these pests is before they can get established. The main damage done is to soft hairs in woolens or nibble off the nap. The following information comes from the Canada Department of Agriculture.

Some carpet beetle larvae thrive in nests of Bees, wasps and beds of animals. The adults feed on pollen and nectar of flowers and shrubs They fly readily and may be found at windows.

Carpet beetle larvae are either oval or carrot shaped, about 1/8 to 1/3 inch long and covered with dark brown or black hair. They like to hide in crevices in floor, woodwork and fabrics and they shed their skins as they grow.

Mature larvae wander freely and are oval shape of about 1/5 inch long. They can be black or mottled in several colours.

To avoid infestation, vacuum regularly rugs, upholstered furniture, crevaks in floors, baseboards, cold air ducts, and undisturbed areas beneath and behind heavy furniture and appliances. After cleaning, destroy the contents of the cleaner bag or let the machine suck up a handful of moth crystals. It may be an idea to store woolen clothing materials to hot sun or to sub zero cold for a day or two.

Empty the contents of electric vacuum cleaner bags rather than blowing the hair out. Keep your pet's bed clean. Screen windows early. Check the milk or places where fabrics are stored.

Woolens should be cleaned before storage. Store the woollens, furs, etc., in containers that will retain mothproofing gases. On paper which separates the layers of stored materials, sprinkle paradichlorobenzene (PDB) moth crystals at the rate of one pound per thirty cubic feet of enclosed space. Naphthalene flakes and moth balls may be used but they are less desirable. When containers are closed, seal all the cracks with masking tape. If you do not seal in the gas, any insects present will not be killed. In garment bags hang a bag containing moth balls near the top.

Valuables furs should be stored in commercial vaults and cedar-lined closets and most cedar chests do not provide safe storage.

MacDuff Report

time such an agreement is being made.

That is why it is attempting to complete a "general agreement" with France, which will serve as a base on which any province could negotiate and sign cultural or educational agreements with France.

This would satisfy the requirements of Canadian and international law, and save face all round. But it is far from the end of the story.

Quebec is serious about its own international personality. It wants to deal with other countries in matters involving its exclusive jurisdiction. It wants representation as the French fact in Canada, on international bodies.

It is extremely been noticed that both Quebec and the Federal Government are working on this difficult problem within the framework of Confederation and international law.

Those who consider themselves belligerants in the bicultural conflict may choose to consider those aspirations as a threat to the Federal authority; or the denial of the aspirations as a callous crushing of the delicate flower of Quebec.

What is happening in Canada however, as illustrated by this treaty-making dispute, is a complicated thing. It can't be explained, much less resolved, by cold-war slogans.

MAY 29th To June 4th

The "something for every taste" element of the CBC television new schedule is again evident in this week's fare. Let's look at the variety of programming available.

Sat., May 29th at 1:00 p.m. CDT, the New York Yankees invade Cousinboy Park to take on the high-flying Chicago White Sox. Though it is still early in the season this is a crucial series for the Yankees who, have now fallen 10 games behind the Sox. The Yankees are bidding for a sixth consecutive American League pennant and are in dire need of a winning streak. Game time it 11:00 a.m. in Alberta.

Devotees of the silver screen will enjoy another Great Movie, Saturday night at 9:30. It's "The Magnificent Seven," starring Yul Brynner, Eli Wallach, Steve McQueen and Henri Buchholz. When a little Mexican village is plagued by bandits, the terrorized citizens, unable to protect themselves, hire a gunman.

On 29—30 Sunday afternoon the 30th of May at 3:30 a Winnipeg film crew will present a study of Bruno Engler, now a mountain guide, ski instructor, photographer and film cameraman, who has made a good life for himself and his family in and around Banff.

The Human Camera, Sunday at 10 p.m. is sub-titled "Geography of a Bookie Joint" and tells a story of horse racing, as seen through on the spot reports on the operations of an illegal gambling establishment. CBC News correspondent W. Cronkite will narrate.

The acclaimed Canadian comics, Wayne and Shuster will clown their way through their 4th & last special of the season on "Show of the Week" May 31st at 8:00 p. m. Appearing on the variety show will be Don Francks, Don Gillies and Carle Carter.

Also in the variety field, there's the Danny Kaye show, Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. Danny's Guests for this week are particularly outstanding, the comedienne Lucille Ball and the fast rising tenor John Gary.

Another history making space shot is scheduled for early morning on June 2nd. The U.S. hope to establish a space record with a four-day, 64 orbit flight of the Gemini-Titan 4 missile. The astronauts are Major McDivitt and Major Edward White. Although the blast-off will be from Launching Pad 19 at Cape Kennedy, the flight will be controlled from the U.S. Manned Space craft Centre in Houston and the TV coverage will originate from that bustling Texas city.

The telecast will take place at 4:30 a.m. Alberta time.

BANGS REGULATION CHANGES

The age of official Brucellosis vaccination of heifer calves has been reduced from 6 to 12 months to 4 to 9 months. Officials of the Health of Animals Branch, Canada Dept. of Agriculture say the new age limit will reduce interference by the vaccine when vaccinated animals are blood tested.

The minimum age for compulsory blood testing of vaccinated heifers has been reduced from 36 months to [illegible] months.

This change will mean that the Vaccination Program will have to commence a little earlier, both the fall and spring programs.

RUSSIAN WILD RYE GOOD PASTURE!

Don't overlook Russian Wild Rye grass for a dryland pasture. Crested wheat grass is still the most suitable for spring pasture as it begins growth 2 to 3 weeks earlier than native range and grows more rapidly. It is also more palatable and more nutritious during spring.

Russian Wild Rye Grass recovers rapidly after grazing and its high protein and fat content during late summer and fall provide a much more nutritious pasture feed than any other dry land grass. For best results as a rotation of Crested Wheat Grass for spring pasture & Russian Wild Rye grass as summer and fall pasture.

WHICH FERTILIZER?

It's a matter of cost.

The value of fertilizer can only be measured by the actual amount of plant nutrient it contains. Phosphate is worth about 15c a pound, and nitrogen 18c a pound. The need for minor elements in our soils is not being recommended yet, except on a trial basis or for specific problems.

M.D. Sets 1965 Mill Rate

Road Division Plans SE27ET, 2212-EO and aportion of 2214EO, due to the fact that the road diversions were no longer required because of construction of Highway 36 and a new access road into Alliance, was approved by the Council.

Mr. Whitehead, shop foreman, met with council and discussed the possibility of obtaining one of the two automatic welders which had been demonstrated, and also replacement of a licensed mechanic and a welder for the shop. Mr. H. Schmidt is to be offered a job as welder and mechanic. If Mr. Schmidt is not available Mr. Whitehead was asked to seek other possibilities.

Reps of Consumers Welding Supplies met with Council advising that the price of the machine dam sustained to Council was $1450 and they would have a trade-in of $100 on present machine. This offer will be investigated.

Permission was granted to Shop Foreman and Road Foreman to fix up the truck from which the sprayer tank had been removed, as a service truck for the road construction crew to supply the equipment with fuel, oil and grease.

Reeve and Rec.-Treas. were authorized to sign the 1965-66 Agricultural Service Board Tentative Program completed by the Service Board.

The 1965 budget was presented for review and consideration. After some discussion it was moved and carried that the 1965 mill rate be set at 77 mills.

By-Law No. 321, authorizing the various mill rates for M.D., School, Hospital, Plagstaff Foundation and Medical and Health Unit proposals was presented, given three readings and duly passed.

By-law No. 322, authorizing the purchase of a used 1960 Mercury 3/4-ton truck for the purpose of mounting the sprayer and tank, was presented and passed.

It was agreed that all forms recommending the Public Works to be undertaken in each Division, would be submitted to the office by at least June 1st for the final approval of Council and examination of the District Engineer at the June 9 regular meeting.

CAPITAL HILL

Finance Minister Walter Gordon may have had his economic reasons for refusal to lift the interest ceiling for the banks but the important consideration was political. At a Liberal caucus about two weeks before the budget he was told in no uncertain terms that if he did so the Government would be defeated in the House and in the country.

Tax contributions to the Old Age Security Pension fund will exceed $1.1 billion in the current fiscal year, and starting in January there will be tax contributions of about $200 a year for the Canada Pension Plan fund.

Battle River 4H Inspection Tour

HARDISTY— A meeting of the Battle River 4-H Beef Club was held in Hardisty Catholic Church basement on April 27th. In answering the roll call each member gave their feed costs to date, which furnished some rather interesting comparisons.

A tour of inspection of all the club calves took place on April 30. The members of the adult committee found the calves all doing well, and the members are to be commended for having their calves so clean. The tour concluded at the farm of Frank Alderdice, who furnished 4 good calves to be used in a judging class. Terry Leslie ably outlined the procedure followed in judging, and distributed cards to each member for marking their placings.

Marnijo Chave and Jim Matthews reported on the special handling required by pail fed calves. Sharon Savage reported on procedure to be followed in dehorning calves, and also some comments on shelter requirements. Ruth Matthews pointed out the qualities to look for in a good beef animal, and outlined the usual procedure followed in cattle judging.

"LIFE WORTH LIVING IF WE LIVE EACH DAY"

These beautiful Spring days Life is, or should be, sweet to all of us. After the long, stormy winter months, suddenly the weather-man takes pity on us, and starts handing out warm, balmy days

Some older folks, probably ill in body and mind, weary of the humdrum of every - day living, have been heard to say, "What has life for me now, at my age, and feeling so miserable, too? Sometimes, I wish I were dead, out of it all", (or some such speech).

At the same time, if that person knew, for a certainty that he, or she, just had, say a day or two to live, I wonder if they wouldn't change their mind in regard to "Wishing they were dead!"

Sure y, Sarey, no one can look out at the trees budding; the early flowers starting to push through the warm earth, or hear the little birds fairly bursting their tiny throats with joy as they proceed to build their nests for the new families; or feel the warm South winds caressing their cheeks those beautiful days, without being heartily thankful for the gift of Life

The dictionary tells us "Life is a period between birth and death" Some of us have been allowed to have the privelege of living to, or possibly beyond our allotted time Some have had their lives snatched from them, and have been called out into Eternity, to "Try the things of another World" at a tender age We have read, somewhere, "Where there is life, there is death" We also read in God's wonderful Word, "All who live, must die"

Not a cheerful thought, really, (That is, that we must die, that there is an inevitable end to this existance). But did you ever stop to think that "Life is real, Life is earnest, and the grave is not the goal?" Life is SHORT, eh so short, compared to Eternity. There is an old Hymn which says, "Life itself is very brief, like the falling of a leaf, like the binding of a sheaf."

So, dear Friends, let us try, (I say TRY) to enjoy each God-given day "Forgetting the things which are behind, and pressing forward towards the things which are ahead" I read the following poem some time ago, and treasure it for the comfort it is to me. I do not know the author's name.

"I go not where I will, but must,
The Planet ship on which I ride
Is drawn by a resistless force
I touch no Pilot wheel, but trust
The One who holds the chart of space,
Whose fathom lines touch lowest deep,
Whose eyes the boundless spaces sweep;
Will guide the ship through cosmic bars
My soul goes not a chosen way,
A current underruns my life
That moves either, in Peace and Strife,
And turns not for my yea or nay;
Not on the bridge, but at the helm,
I, and o'er the far-streaming sea,
I will serve, enough for me
My Captain's smile, and words at last"

Therefore dear readers, let us enjoy Life as it comes to each one of us daily, leaving our future in His Hands. "Who's time were to err and his good to be amend"

I w finish with these lines "Life is a volume from Youth to Old Age,
Each year is a chapter, each day is a page"
Also
"Life is like a piece of driftwood
Cast on the watery main,
Another party encounters, meets, touches, parts again,
No t a with man forever, bound or
Life's troubled sea,
They meet, they touch, they sever,
drifting Eternally."

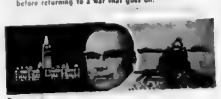
BUT WAR GOES ON. To most Canadians, the war in Vietnam is hardly real, something that one merely reads about. But to many Americans, it is deadly and fearful. The above is one merely reads about. But to many Americans, it is deadly and fearful. The above scene is Vietnam, 1965. A chaplain sits by sandbags, and makes the Sign of the Cross in absolution. The kneeling man is an American marine. His countrymen wait their turn, before returning to a war that goes on.



REPORTS FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

OTTAWA— The Speech from the Throne opening the current session of Parliament has been referred to editorially as the "largest, boldest and most sweeping programme ever submitted to a Canadian Parliament".

This programme fits naturally into three categories, Social, Economic and Political.

In Social Welfare field the Speech forecasts a major attempt to improve the position of the less fortunate groups in our society — the elderly, the ill, the unemployed, the victims of rural and urban blight.

The Social Security measures will be considered, embracing all levels of government (a "massive power") among our people. This will include projects of regional development for example, the present area development programme will be broadened to include new wage and area criteria as well as areas of high unemployment.

Other examples are a greatly expanded program to assist in urban and rural renewal, a national housing act for low-cost housing in urban slum areas and new regional development programmes.

The Throne Speech recognizes that despite the economic improvement of recent years there are still pockets of need in entire areas that are shared in the general prosperity.

As an essential part of the campaign against poverty, the Government intends to extend to the Provinces assistance in the construction of hospitals and diagnostic services, and to increase its proposals for the Canada Assistance Plan. This programme, which must be considered along with the Canada Pension Plan, envisages a comprehensive general assistance measure which, while recognizing the varying requirements of different groups, would meet these requirements within one programme and within one administrative frame work. The main feature of the Plan is the removal of the income limitations which now apply to the assistance plans for the aged, blind, disabled and other needy groups. Aid will be geared to needs rather than to means.

Coupled with this immense project of a Canada Assistance Plan is an undertaking to start negotiations with the Provinces on a national medicare scheme, revised legislation on unemployment insurance and a revision of immigration and citizenship legislation, all of which in the words of one Toronto newspaper "adds up to a major attempt to improve the position of less fortunate groups in our society".

Another programme launched in this attack is the Company of Young Canadians. This will give the young men and young women of this country opportunities for national and international service they have never had before in peace time.

Among the economic measures proposed in the Speech, the most important is undoubtedly the setting up of the Canada Development Corporation. The purpose of the Corporation will be to channel the private savings of Canadians into Canadian economic development. It is designed not only to start new enterprises but to prevent existing ones falling under outside control because no Canadian capital is available to sustain them. This, it is hoped, will provide a long term answer to one of Canada's basic economic problems — the increasing control of important industries by foreign interests.

Other important economic legislation proposed includes the overhaul of Canada's railway legislation to enable the railways to adapt their operations to modern day demands and conditions, the revision of the Bank Act, amendments to the Bankruptcy Act to impose more effective curbs on fraudulent bankruptcies and legislation to protect Canadian publications from unfair foreign competition.

The political phase of the Speech from the Throne will include such measures as the amendment to the British North America Act to give Canada custody and control of its own constitution, the adoption of "O Canada" as the National Anthem, reform of Parliamentary Procedure, the fixing of a compulsory retiring age for Senators, and legislation to limit election campaign expenses.

I think you will agree with me that this is an extremely imaginative and important legislative programme. I can assure you that your government will do everything it can to proceed with this programme and to meet the challenges ahead.

Standard equipment: a bank loan

It has become almost standard practice today for people to go to their bank to finance the purchase of cars and other family items. You, too, may have found it a good idea to borrow where you save — at your local bank. It is often simpler, because the bank already knows you as a savings customer. And it also may save you money because bank loans are low-cost loans. For borrowing and saving, and for any other bank service you may need, just visit your local chartered bank. It's the one place where you can get all your banking done, under one roof.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Stanley

Among adults, though few would admit it, there is a great deal of jealousy of today's teenagers.

This is revealed by the adult's oft exposed wish that his kids in their teens could act like them; by their reaction to any hint of change in the rules for their children; and especially by their endless prating about how soft a time the youngsters have now and how hard it was in their day.

To hear most adults talk, you'd think they'd never had any fun at all, when they were kids, or ever done anything foolish. There's a steady stream of poppycock about how far they walked to school thru the snow; how scanty were their wardrobes; how early they had to be in at night; how hard their parents worked and how good their marks were in school.

There's a modicum of truth in all of this, of course, because life was a lot more simple and frugal some quarter-century ago. But with the passing of time the morsel of truth becomes a bit of milarky. Personally, I think we had a lot less to cope with, socially and psychologically, if not physically, than today's kids.

But this attitude received a jolt this week, when my son announced that he had nailed down a summer job. It was difficult to keep my specific jib both stiff and buttoned when I compared his first real job with

There are parallels. Both of us got the job at age 17, and both jobs were on the upper Great Lakes boats. There the parallel ends.

For instance. I hitch-hiked 480 miles, with $2.50 cash, to meet my boat. He will be driven three miles by his father to catch his.

And the hours aren't quite the same. I worked on the graveyard midnight to noon, seven days per week. He'll work a couple of hours morning and afternoon, about three hours in the evening, and have a day and a half off each week.

That's all right. I don't bear a grudge. Nobody should have to work like a dog. But there's a bit of difference in the pay. I pulled down $30 a month, even on the 31-day months. A dollar a day and keep. My son will be knocking off just over nine times as much.

However, that's OK. Wages have gone up a bit. Why should he work for peanuts? I must admit, though, that I was a little disturbed by the difference in our duties.

I scrubbed floors, cleaned out lavatories, polished brass and sorted dirty linen. In spare moments I helped sling out the gangplank, or made the officers' beds. My kid will organize shuffleboard games, play the piano for singsongs, and run a movie projector. In spare moments he will chat to nice old ladies.

That's fine. No hard feelings. We can't all be aristocrats in our first job. But what about this? I wore a scruffy old smock covered with brass polish. He'll wear a snappy blue uniform covered with brass

And what about this? My official title was Night Porter. His is Entertainment Steward. I ate with the deckhands and firemen. He'll eat in the dining room. I slept with seven other scullions in a stall large enough for one sheltied pony. He will share a cabin with one other softy of the Sixties.

I was, for example, on pain of beachhauling and 16 years in the hulks, to have anything to do with the passengers, except mop up after them. The kid, in the captain's own words, "Will have the girls following you all over the boat."

Oh, well. No use being bitter. The good old days of the Depression, when you knew you were a slave, but were happy to be a working slave, are gone forever.

However I can't help hoping the kid will be good and seasick all over that uniform, the first time he hits a roll in Lake Superior. At least, we'd have that much in common in our first summer jobs.

THE RED X Means TIME TO RENEW

Local Syndicate To Build Feed Mill

KILLAM — A group of business men and farmers of Killam have plans all but completed for the erection of a Feed Mill at Killam. The building contract has been let to Ellis Construction of Lacombe, for a Mill building 36x60, warehouse 30x80 and an office 30x30, on the same site as the Auction Market, just south of the Market buildings.

Undertaking the project are Henry Kolsterder, Ed Rimmer, William George and William Larsen.

Name of the enterprise has been chosen as Killam Feed Mill and Farm Supply.

The building area has been staked out and it is expected to start construction work early this month, with completion date early the fall.

New Face For Community Press

This week, for the first time, the news content of the Community Press is set up in a new style of type which was installed during the past week.

The Matrices, as they are known in the newspaper trade, were ordered from Canadian Linotype Co. several months ago, and arrived just after last week's paper was "put to bed".

Each Matrix has two faces, and this paragraph is set in 8 1/2 point Aurora, which is the very latest type face especially designed for newspaper work. It is constructed for easy reading with the LEAST EYE STRAIN.

The second type face on the Matrices is known as Erbar Bold, and this paragraph is an example of THIS MODERN BOLD FACE.

This type has been purchased at a cost of several hundreds of dollars, with the intent of giving readers a more easily read and better appearing newspaper. This is another step in a steady program to improve your newspaper, and we would like to know what you, the readers, think of this latest change.

Mother & Daughter Banquet Held

SEDGEWICK — On Tuesday May 25th the C.G.I.T. and Explorers entertained their mothers at a Mother and Daughter banquet. Before the banquet each CGIT member planned a corsage on her mother, while the Explorers presented their mothers with a basecraft ornament.

The blessing was asked by Rev. Lewis. Special guests at the table were Rev. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. E. Koehli, Mrs. W. Hallinn.

After the turkey supper served by the UCW Gwen Gascoyne proposed a toast to the Queen and Valerie Cox to the Mothers. The latter was responded to by Mrs. Roberts Forster. Marion Wing very capably extended thanks to the UCW for catering to the banquet.

Amidst the decorations of golden candles and insignias to celebrate the CGIT's 35th anniversary, the girls had a campfire and sing-song, followed by skits and closed a short program with a Brazilian Prayer-Song, which they learned as part of their Mission study. The program was followed by a worship service.

Jim Bakers Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Baker of Edmonton celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on May 24th.

The evening commenced with a turkey dinner at the Hiverls Motor Hotel dining lounge for the immediate family.

Upon returning to their home from the dinner they were greeted and surprised by laughter and cheers of friends and relatives who came to wish them many more years of happy married life.

Mrs. Doris Smith seated at the piano and accompanied by Norval on the sax got the celebration underway. They played the selection "Anniversary Waltz", to which the couple danced. The music supplied by Doris, Norval, and Dick was enjoyed by all. Dick also entertained in his natural happy manner with his wooden dancing poppet which had the guests more than smiling.

Mr. Nelson Bergum, M.C. for the evening, spoke humorously and most graciously of the honored couple and told a few amusing stories of previous years having known them all his life.

Not to be outdone, the groom ably responded and added his comments.

The happy couple were presented with a silver tray, appropriately engraved, by Marlene, Frank, and Dick. The two tiered wedding cake, also from the family was beautifully decorated in frosty white, and topped with a heart-shaped emblem marking the 25 years of married life.

They then opened their gifts which were most greatfully accepted and will always be treasured.

Phone messages of congratulations were received from Calabad and Drayton Valley.

Dancing and a Hootenanny brought the evening to a happy and memorable conclusion.

Guests were from Edmonton, St. Michael, Sedgewick, and Hardisty.

LATE STRAWBERRIES. Late spring has postponed the strawberry harvest at least two weeks on the average across Canada. Women who usually start preserving strawberries in sweet jams and jellies in mid-June will have to be patient until the first of July. THE OLD WAYS. Modern technology has done much to improve Canada's economy, but sometimes the old ways of doing things cannot be improved upon. Above shows Nova Scotia fishermen using gill-nets to catch shad at Minudie. This method of fishing is likely the most primitive means man has ever used to net a harvest from the sea. Nets are strung up during low tide, and the fish are caught by the gills while rushed against the nets at high tide. Shad are then simply removed off the nets. As above photo shows, it works as well today as it did many years ago.

Just A Timely Spring Thought!

The probability is that among your friends and acquaintances you would be hard put to find one who hasn't got a pet hate of some kind, particularly in the field of daily vocations. For instance, the average woman has little reservation about preparing a tasty meal, but when it comes time to do the dishes she almost flips into convulsions. A man never debates the relative merit of tossing used razor blades into the waste basket, but has a deep-rooted repulsion for emptying the garbage. And so it goes. We have our pet hates too, in our daily work, and one of them is our distaste for writing obituaries, and during the rest of this year we hope we will not have the unpleasant task of writing an obituary about you or a member of your family. You will make us happy therefore by observing the rules of water safety this spring and summer. By so doing you will not only make us happier, but you will have a more pleasant time, a happier vacation, and what's more important you'll live to have another one next summer. A holiday near water can be wonderful for you and yours, but a summer tragedy is never forgotten. Please, this year, think, don't sink. Be water wise.

You know, according to the '64 drowning statistics compiled by the Red Cross, more than 170 Canadian children, including 16 Albertans under 12 years of age, drowned because parents and guardians failed to supervise them when they were near the water. Most children are completely unaware of the dangers that may cause them to drown. — A loose rock, a patch of slippery mud, thin ice, or just plain youthful curiosity. Such dangers are apparent to adults. Supervise your children when near water. It is appalling that so many parents are negligent in their responsibility to their children's safety, and it's doubly shocking that so many young innocent lives are victims of such negligence. It takes only seconds for a child to drown, so never let him out of your sight when near water.

June 6 to 12 is Water Safety Week in Canada. From this week on aquatic activities will increase. Right now is the time for every parent to resolve that no child of his will go unsupervised.

You Only Have One Pump!

When the human body is put together it is equipped with a heart (pump) and the chances are that, in spite of medical progress, it is the only one that body will ever have. It will never be repaired with a new cylinder, valves or gaskets to restore normal functioning. Once it wears out, action stops and so does life.

Heart disease (malfunctioning of the heart) may go unsuspected and undetected for some time. This is now proven fact, made most dramatically clear in a current investigation of sudden unexpected deaths in apparently healthy and normal people. The study was based on the examination of more than 100 hearts of persons who died suddenly and unexpectedly natural deaths. Among them were people from every walk of life. In most of the cases death was due to progressive atherosclerosis of the coronary arteries, when these arteries gradually become clogged, depriving the heart of the needed blood supply to do its work.

It is estimated that four out of five victims survive the first attack, and so importance is emphasized of an early visit to a doctor with follow-up treatment. As medical science advances its theories and creates new treatments, it only remains for victims of this disease to take advantage of the treatment available. Delay in so doing means trouble ahead. The pump stops working, the heart runs dry and the victim dies. Don't let your pump stop. Have it repaired at the first indication that trouble is brewing.

The Good Old Days!

Every once in a while we run across an old acquaintance, one we haven't seen for several years, and by mutual agreement start talking about the' 'good old days". That is the days when father was a boy, a good cigar cost 5c, and man's humanity to man was human. As one thing leads to another the topic gets around to the "Abominable Youth" of our present day, the high pay for less work, and the utter lack of initiative. Oh, we have a good session, and in our enthusiasm for the olden day we tee off on statements which later in the solitude of the midnight hour we would we had not uttered. The realization of the havoc a return to former year would compel makes us thankful we are still alive in spite of it all. For those of us who sometimes live in the past, it might be well to remember conditions as they used to be, and thank progress for the improvements. Remember when such instructions were the following were posted for all employedees?: Store will open at 7:00 a.m. & close at 8:00 p.m. except on Saturdadys when it closes at 9:00 p.m.; employee will sweep floor, dust furniture and shelves and showcases; trim wicks, fill lamps, clean chimneys, open windows for fresh air; make pens carefully (you may whittle quills to suit your taste); each clerk will bring a bucket of water and a scuttle of coal for the day's business; any employee who smokes cigars, uses liquor in any form, gets shaved at a barber shop or frequents public dance halls, will give his employer reason to suspicion his integrity, worthy intentions and all-round honesty.

You might ask if the harassed clerk ever relaxed. Sure he did, for the boss's instructions went on to say: Men employees will be given one evening off in each week for courting purposes, or two evenings off each week if they go regularly to church.

Yes sir! It's good to be alive — today!

ANOTHER MOVEMENT AFOOT!

As far back as the average person can remember there have been movements put into motion to do this or that, or ban something or other. Most have gotten their start from disgruntled persons with a pet peeve against society or with something society does. Some of these movements get air-borne and have good results; some never get off the ground at all, mostly because they lack real merit and fail to gain support. Currently there is a movement afoot to put a ban on the sale of firecrackers, more specifically the time-honored and long distasteful firecracker. Now, there is nothing wrong with a firecracker itself, but as with everything else, it's the abuse of its use that causes the concern. Children, in their enthusiasm for making a noise and attracting attention are twice as bothersome with a handful of firecrackers as with a mouthful of bubble gum, even as nauseating as the latter may be. As we say, firecrackers are alright in their place. What is needed is a good sound whack on the pants administered by anyone who has such a nuisance-minded hired ah his car, or sneakily set underfoot by an unscrupulous daredevil who found he had ten cents to spare and no better use for it than to invest in fireworks.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Atom Of Hope

OTTAWA — Elliot Lake, Ontario, is a modern ghost town. Its trim, shuttered bungalows and quiet pavements whisper a mute story of the broken dream of uranium.

From this and little northern town, it seems a long way to the suave diplomatic salons of Paris.

Yet the hopes of Elliot Lake, and of the entire uranium industry, rest at this moment in the distant French capital.

For several months now the Canadian and French Governments have been negotiating a renewal contract which would set the feeble uranium industry on its feet, bring Elliot Lake and other towns back to life.

France wants an assured supply of uranium for the next 25 years, to fuel its expanding nuclear reactor program for electric power. It may need as much as 60 million pounds or about one-fifth of Canada's now known reserves.

The value of the sale would be somewhere between $400 million to $700 million, depending on price negotiations. It would inject new life into an industry which in 1959, with 13 mines, produced $331 million worth of product. In 1962, the number of mines had dropped to 8, producing a product valued at $159 million.

Since France wants to buy, and Canada wants to sell, there should be no problems, but there are.

They are not problems of price, delivery, or of any commercial aspect. They are problems of diplomacy, of national pride, of political philosophy in a nuclear age.

To begin with, uranium is the stuff of nuclear bombs, the mushroom cloud, massive retaliation and earth-destroying power.

The Canadian uranium industry was born and weaned on the bomb.

Shortly after the war, Canada negotiated contracts for the sale of uranium to Britain and the U.S.A. Between 1955 and 1963 uranium sales to these two countries totalled $1,000 million. Some of these contracts have since been renegotiated and extended to keep some Canadian mines at work, even though demand for the product had drastically declined.

In these days Canada did not insist on safeguards for the peaceful use of uranium. Britain and the U.S. could make what use of it they would.

By 1957 however Canada had developed a firm policy of opposition to the spread of nuclear weapons. The country participated in international agreements, renounced the manufacture of nuclear weapons, and renouncing the sale of the nuclear materials to other countries for any but peaceful purposes.

Since then Canada has entered into agreements with several countries for exchange of nuclear information and materials. Extremely well developed in the peaceful uses of nuclear energy itself, Canada insisted that its nuclear materials be used for peaceful purposes only.

More than that, each contract provides for national and international inspection to ensure that the conditions of peaceful use are being met.

By now this has become an irrevocable element of Canadian foreign policy. The policy worked well until it was first challenged, until the first tentative French offers to purchase Canadian uranium.

France was already a nuclear power. Its stance in the world today is not one that gladly suffers international interference of any kind.

The French freely admit they want Canadian uranium for peaceful purposes. But they object to any safeguards involving international inspection or control.

The French argued, with some reason, that Canadian policy was discriminatory, since Canada is already supplying uranium to Britain and the U. S. with no kind of safeguards on its use.

The French position forced a total review of Canadian policy. That review left the Government in an unacceptable conclusion. If its policy was to mean anything, it must apply equally to every country, including Britain and the U. S. — its original uranium customers.

The original contracts with these two countries, which expire between 1968 and 1970, will likely be honored. But any new contracts must be subject to the same conditions for peaceful use that Canada asks from other countries.

This shift in policy would remove future discrimination, at least, and, it is hoped, will open the way for resumption of the important contract with the French.

Trade Minister Sharp visited in Paris last May to set the new Canadian position. He returned with reasonable optimism that a contract may eventually be signed. Canada would have to pledge itself to a non-discriminatory policy in the future. France would have to agree to some form of inspection to ensure the peaceful use of the Canadian uranium.

Months of negotiation probably lie ahead before it can be determined whether or not Canada will ever sell uranium to France.

In the meantime there are at least two useful results of the whole affair. It has forced the Canadian government to review and revise its makeshift uranium policy. And it has given new hope to desperate pockets of Canadian population, like Elliot Lake, Ontario.

SUGAR AND SPICE

MAKES YOU WONDER!

Is everything cut and dried, black and white, for you? Or do you sometimes wonder? I do. Here are some of the things I wonder about. Maybe you can supply the answers.

What is it about spring that turns normally tolerant, sweet-faced and mild-eyed women into tail-twisting, yellow-eyed tigers who prowl the premises in a perpetual rage. Snarling, "Tell that beige, lace Dacbail, wash those windows, paint that trim!"

Second question. Why are normally devil-may-care, lion-hearted chaps, who would mix it up with an adult male gorilla if they didn't like the look on the ape's face, frightened white, at this time of the year, by those 110-pound tigers?

How do you tell a nice mother, wearing rose colored glasses, that her son, whom she insists is going to be a brilliant surgeon, will be lucky if he reaches a job at the supermarket meat counter?

Why does the run best down unerringly when a new raincoat while (rust fishing? And why, when I don't take a raincoat, and the inevitable rain arrives, comes, am I always a mile and a half down the stream from my car?

What kind of data is the world producing these days? First example. The other night there was a teenage romance near here. Police and firemen broke it up. One kid

(From Press Files June 6th, 1940)

An elimination Track Meet was held in Daysland on Saturday June 1st. In spite of the cold weather and some rain, a large number of pupils from surrounding districts were out to attend.

Posters are out announcing the 24th annual Sports Day at Killam. The 24th of June is the date, and this date is the birthday of His Majesty the King- set aside by Proclamation.

A large number of ladies from several towns gathered at the annual Sedgewick W. I. Grandmother Day held on Wednesday afternoon. There were over thirty visitors from the Lougheed W. I.

Mrs. Huyck read a paper at the anniversary party on May 29 giving a history of the Stroma W. I. which was formed on May 18th, 1915 and has been active in the affairs of the community ever since.

20 YEARS AGO

(From Press Files of May 31, 1945)

Lougheed's 24th of May Sports was a big success and the weather man was kind enough to see there was a lot of sunshine. Sedgewick won first in the baseball and Wyemming in the softball.

Mr. W. R. Dawson of Irma has purchased two lots just west of Mr. Mitchell's office in Killam and is to build an implement building for the Cockshutt Co. which he will be representative of.

The Sedgewick Fish and Game Society has obtained 30 pheasant eggs which are now being incubated in an effort to establish the birds in this area of the Province.

Although at last V-E Day has arrived, the waste paper shortage has not ended and the Dept. of National War Services asks your help.

10 YEARS AGO

(From Press Files of June 2, 1955)

Hardisty Lodge, Order of the Royal Purple, has announced a $75.00 Scholarship to the Grade 12 student receiving highest average marks.

If you want some outing fun, and maybe the odd black and blue spot, like the rest of us, come to the Killam Community Hall and join in the roller skating.

All's well that ends well, as Lucie Barchel said, when he drilled the new well for Lougheed on the corner at Shirvell's. The town could stand some more of the same.

Two one-act plays under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Saville, were presented in Kinley's Theatre in Hardisty and drew a very good audience. We all hope to see more of the same in the future.

(By Pootle)

Mrs. Ida Black and Mrs. Jean Watts took the Explorers on a tour last Saturday. They visited the N. A.D.P. Creamery where they saw the making of butter and bottling of milk. They had dinner at Sedgewick Lake, after which they went on a tour of the Hospital Auxiliary where they sang some of their songs and hymns, arriving home late in the afternoon.

was handcuffed and stuffed in the police car. The cops jumped out to aid fellow officers. The kid jumped out the other side, presumably to aid himself. Four days later, he turned himself in, still handcuffed. What did he do during those four days? I mean, did he ever try to wash, you get the idea?

Second example. Maybe you read this in the paper. Fellow named George Wilcox was arrested. Why? Because he had just thrown Harold Wilson (no relation) through a big plate-glass window. As Harold lay there in his own blood, he protested vigorously the arrest of George. "Hey! You can't do that! He's my buddy." Figure that one out.

Why, three of them up and strangling the kid, case I do about the Mafia anybody who hold boxing matches, foul races, country-style headbutts, and bastardization in any sport, to the dawd of night, every night?

Why are 14-year-old daughters so dreadful? They are calm, silly, stubborn, slouchy, grouchy, pouty, resentful. They fight with their mothers. They wreck the family car, and the spray will be about $1 per acre.

Although the small shiny black flea beetle is very hard to see, holes in rapeseed leaves are a sure indication that it is present. This loss of leaves causes many of the seedlings to die.

WILD OAT CONTROL!

Wild Oats will probably be prevalent this year. Carbyne is recommended for application after the crop has emerged. It is applied when most of the wild oats are in the two to three leaf stage, at the rate of 4 to 5 ounces in 4 to 5 gallons of water. It is important to spray at 45 pounds per square inch with the nozzles slanted forward at a 45-degree angle. Carbyne can be sprayed on wheat, barley, flax, rapeseed and mustard and will cost about $2 per acre.

Avadex is a pre-emergance chemical. It comes in two forms — Avadex and Avadex B W. The latter is safe to use on barley and wheat.

INSECTS IN TREES!

Insects attacking trees seem to be more prevalent every year. Check the trees frequently for such insects as Aphids, Leaf Beetles, Sawfly, Worms, Caterpillars or Mites. It is better and easier to spray a bit early than too late.

Watch the spruce trees for mites. They can be detected by the yellowish mottling of the needles of the spruce and the fine silk webbing around the twigs, between the needles.

Malathion is a safe spray and effective in the control of most of the insects

GREEN ACRES

By A. E. EDWARDS
Dist. Agriculturist
Sedgewick, Alberta

TREAT RAPESEED FOR FLEA BEETLE CONTROL!

Every year sawworms are blamed for thin rapeseed stands when in reality the culprits are usually the flea beetle.

P. J Proctor, Supervisor of Crop Protection and Pest Control with the Alberta Dept. of Ag., urges the rapeseed producers to treat their seed with a lindane insecticide to prevent damage He says lindane seed treatments have been especially formulated for rapeseed. They are non-mercurial and reddily available at most agricultural and chemical outlets. The cost is about 5 and a half cents per pound of treated seed or from 40c to 80c per acre, depending on seed rate.

Rapeseed growers who do not treat their seed for flea beetle control will probably have to spray their crops with DDT. By spraying time most of the damage will have been done, and the cost of the spray will be about $1 per acre.

Although the small shiny black flea beetle is very hard to see, holes in rapeseed leaves are a sure indication that it is present. This loss of leaves causes many of the seedlings to die.

THAT — Election promises are not kept because the present political system does not hold the solution to our problems, and as a result push us headlong into the wailing arms of the Welfare State.
THAT — There is not sufficient money in all of Canada to pay off the debt which the various forms of government owe.
THAT — The economic problem of today is one of distribution.

"Where do we go from here, Mr. Mayor?"

Alberta's phenomenal expansion has led to the development of new townsites, has created planning problems for existing towns, villages and municipalities. Intelligent long range planning to meet this expansion requires help of trained technicians. Because few of the small communities are in a position to retain their own planning staff, assistance is supplied either through the Planning Branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs or through the Regional Planning Commission.

The Department of Municipal Affairs encourages the orderly development of municipalities through the formation of Regional Planning Commissions, and pays 50% of the operating costs of these commissions. Technical assistance is provided on request to any municipality for problems ranging from road alignment to zoning hygiene. In 1964 all Alberta Regional Planning Commissions received 2,000 applications for sub-divisions, while the Provincial Planning office received over 1,000 applications.

JUNE 5TH To 11TH

The new conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, Seiji Ozawa, who takes over his duties in the fall for a three-year period, is a lean, keen Japanese 30-year-old Japanese who looks like a spry undergraduate. But he is something of a boy wonder whose work on the podium is invariably described with adjectives such as electrifying, dynamic, breath-taking and dramatic. In the second of "Our Concert in Prism of Great Performers" CBC-TV's FESTIVAL will present an intimate study of Ozawa, and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra will be seen in rehearsal and in a performance of Symphony No. 2 Rachmaninoff by Berlioz, a work which was first high praise during Ozawa's three years as guest conducting debut with the London Symphony Orchestra.

The TV week's agenda for the weekend includes major league baseball and the Belmont Stakes horse race. The last game should be a dandy, pitting the Los Angeles Dodgers' great pitching against the Milwaukee Braves' great hitting. The game, from County Stadium in Milwaukee, starts at 11:30 a.m. in Alberta.

The third jewel in U.S. racing's Triple Crown, the Belmont Stakes, will be run over a distance of 1 1/2 miles at Aqueduct Race Track, New York. This 97th running of the Belmont has a $125,000 purse attached. In addition to the five telecast of the Belmont, the telecast will present video-taped re-runs of the Kentucky Derby won by Lucky Debonair and the Preakness, won by Tom Rolfe. Telecast time is 2:30 p.m. in Alberta.

The incomparable Danny Kaye starts with Pier Angeli in the musical comedy "Merry Andrew" on Great Movies Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Kaye is a teacher in an English Naval Boys' school who becomes involved with a travelling circus and falls in love with Pier Angeli, the beautiful trapeze artist.

The Gemini rocket, to be sent into orbit Tuesday morning, Dec. and is expected to make its descent sometime Monday, June 7th after orbiting the earth for a record four days. When the space craft descends its return and pick-up will be televised "live", interrupting whatever regularly scheduling programming the network is carrying then.

Accepting the Queen Mother and Frank Sinatra, if you asked ten comedians who their favorite comic was, nine of them would say George Burns. Show people hold Burns in very high regard, liking and admiration such to find out why Burns is so highly thought of by his fellow funny men, Monday June 7 at 8.00 p.m. on the last of their "Affection-ate Look" segments on SHOW OF THIS WEEK.

George Burns has had a long and distinguished career in show business beginning 61 years ago at a 7 year old in the Pee Wee Quartet, ranging through a roller skating act, a comic song and dance partnership and 45 years of the great Burns and Allen team with his wife Gracie.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

INVENTIONS OF PAST YEARS

Quack, or Couch Grass, as it is commonly known here in the west, has posed a serious problem to the prairie farmer for many years. When couch grass takes over a field pleving it under just encourages it to grow, as many farmers who have had any experience with it will readily agree.

During the thirties one farmer in southern Manitoba with a more inventive mind than some, felt confident a machine could be built that would rid the fields of this obnoxious weed. He, like hundreds of other farmers across the country felt that if something wasn't done to eradicate it, this couch grass would soon take over the fields entirely.

To look at a field of luxuriant growth of couch grass one would wonder if it wouldn't at least make good pasture for cattle and horses. But such was not the case. It is a coarse, wide blade which, as summer progresses, becomes as dry & tasteless, the stock just do not relish it. So it isn't even put up for winter feed.

However, the farmer of whom I spoke had been turning over in his mind the possibility of making some sort of an attachment for a plow that would dig down deep bringing the unbroken roots up to the surface. They could then be raked up and burned.

This was during the depression; money was practically nil, and it would take considerable cash to develope such a machine. By this time some of the machine companies had put a cultivator on the market which they claimed would clean up a field of couch grass. However, a field would need to be gone over several times before the farmer would obtain the desired results.

Nothing daunting, this farmer went ahead and made an attachment for a plow, which, if it worked satisfactorily, would clean up a badly infested field with ONE operation. Just one time of going over it, that field would be ready for the seed, eliminating discing and harrowing. This alone was quite a consideration, as it would save not only time but gas as well.

The first machine was built for horses — a single bull-wheel drive outfit.

I still smile when I recall one incident which took place when he first tried it out. He hadn't bothered to put a fender on this first machine. The later models did have one attached to one side.

It was potato digging time. With our consent, the machine was pulled out into our potato patch. The whole family waiting to see the potatoes dug the easy way. The horses were young and full of pep, chomping on the bit and routinely prancing from side to side. Finally everything was ready to go.

As the machine was put into gear the horses fairly leaped ahead. Those rotating arms dug down into the ground, and potatoes were thrown into the air in every direction. Naturally the horses didn't know what it was all about and as a shower of potatoes began hitting them on the back, away they tore. They bit out across the field pell-mell, ears back and running like the wind. The driver managed to stay on the plow, taking the machine out of gear before any great damage was done.

When he returned to the buildings we all agreed that the machine might dig up grass roots, but it definitely was NOT a potato digger. Even after a fender was attached, those rotating arms were far too vicious for the job of digging potatoes, as it cut them up badly.

When it was known the machine was to be demonstrated on a certain day, farmers from near and far came to see just what it would do.

After several demonstrations they agreed that, with a few adjustments it looked as if it would do the job.

The do-it-ope a machine of any type takes money. This was during the hard years — 1930 to 37 — so it company had to be formed. As the machine was being demonstrated in various fields in and around his district, the inventor proved it to be ever more successful than he had ever dreamed.

Therefore, a few retired farmers who had "Made their wad" during the good years decided to invest in the project, thus a company was formed. A new and even better machine was then made. By now the inventor claimed this machine could be taken into a field of virgin sod which was badly infested with couch grass and with one operation would clean it of from 90 to 100 percent of couch grass roots and prepare it for sowing. Of course these roots would have to be raked up and burned later, especially if it happened to be a wet year. Even some of the tactiturn down-eastern farmers who saw what it could do, were favorably impressed.

You might well ask what became of this wonder-worker. Just when things seemed to be going well and the machine might have been made a reliable company, the second world war broke out. The machine was then dis-assembled, and in the worries and concerns of the war, it was forgotten. I believe the family still have the blue prints as well as the Canadian and U.S. patent papers.

One thing we know is the fields which were demonstrated on in our immediate district produced wonderful crops for years after — until the surrounding fields of couch grass gradually closed in on the cleaned-up fields, taking over again.

The inventor passed away some years ago, but the memory of those days still stands out in our minds. We wonder, if circumstances had been different and that machine had been put on the market, if there would be in many fields of couch grass today. There is no question but that couch grass is still a major enemy of the farmer today.

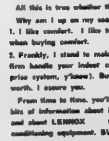
NO GOSSIP

BY BERT ODLAND



If there is one thing this world doesn't need, it's another gossip column. This isn't.

It's sort of an advice column, but not to the lovelorn. (Unless of course, you happen to be lovelorn when your sole advice of me in my field [illegible] comfort).

In my home and travels, I've come across a good many conceptions and misconceptions of what is essential to true indoor comfort.

Why are some homes a pleasure to be in, while some others have an unpleasant atmosphere? It can not be talking about the human element, which is a whole subject in itself) but rather about the physical atmosphere.

Experts agree that the condition of the air in a home is the key to indoor comfort. The air we live in must be at the right temperature, but that's not all. It must be clean. It must be fresh. It can't be too dry or too moist — and it must circulate to avoid settling in stuffy layers.

All this is true whether the home is being heated or cooled.

Why am I up on my soapbox about this? Two reasons:

1. I like comfort. I like to see others get their money's worth when buying comfort.

2. Frankly, I stand to make an honest buck when you have my firm handle your indoor comfort needs. (Good old free enterprise system, y'know). But you'll get more than your money's worth, I assure you.

From time to time, you'll be seeing my columns with little tidbits of information about indoor comfort, about you, about me, and about LENNOX the leading brand of heating and air-conditioning equipment. BUT NO GOSSIP.

The Achievement Day for the students taking shop and fabrics and dress is being held in the school gym on Thurs., June 10th.

Wendy Saunders is going to show slides and give a talk on her trip to New York on June 1 in the projection room.

There were only a few pupils from Central entered in the Provincial Track Meet at Stettler this year, as Central didn't have the chance to get very far. Next year however, we hope to get more entered from the school.

A. P. Crop Report

Rain of 1 to 3 inches has again stopped seeding operations. Seeding of wheat varies greatly through the area, being completed at some stations in the vicinity of Edmonton and just under way in other localities. Wheat averages about 95 percent seeded, but only a small percentage of the Oats and Barley has been sown.

General Alberta: The southern half of Alberta received timely rain during the past few days restoring good moisture conditions. While seeding has been delayed, operations had been well advanced and will be completed in about a week. The northern half of the province received 1 to 2 inches of rain, causing excessive moisture in some localities. Dry weather is needed to allow completion of seeding. In the Peace River District, warm and dry weather has prevailed for a few days and seeding is now in full swing.

Harry Hays Reports

The speech from the Throne that outlines broad legislative intentions of the Government for the current session of Parliament, includes plans for a major effort to improve the position of the less fortunate in Canadian society — the elderly, the ill, the unemployed, the victims of blight and poverty in our cities and in our countryside.

One aspect of the government's effort to eliminate poverty among all Canadians is a more adequate housing program, to encourage conservation and rehabilitation of our cities and to eliminate the urban blight.

We are also working on redevelopment programs for our rural areas, and I will discuss them in a later column.

The Government's attack on the housing problems is being ably led by my good friend Jack Nicholson, the Minister responsible to Parliament for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. A few weeks ago he introduced legislation to provide the following increases in housing finances:

A 3 4 billion dollar increase to be used for purposes of making direct loans to borrowers to assist in construction of homes and housing projects, 300 million dollar increase to be used for urban renewal; 100 million dollar increase for joint projects of the provincial government and other agencies; 25 million dollar increase for university housing projects; 2 1/2 billion dollar increase in the maximum amount of all loans in respect of which insurance policies may be issued under the act.

When the legislation goes into effect, these new funds will provide a very important part of the war on poverty. They will allow more citizens to own their own home, better provide for rehabilitation of blighted areas, help provide adequate houses for those in the lower income groups, provide more accomodation for senior citizens, provide more accommodation for handicapped, and more accommodation for university students.

This is only one aspect of our program for social welfare but is is an important one and I am pleased that we were able to proceed with it as quickly as we have been.

Good Weather For Stampede

HARDISTY — Some 18 years after the inauguration of "Stampede Days" at Hardisty, the Association in charge is still chalking up annual successes. On Thursday, the day before the Stampede, with rain pelting down and atmosphere cool, no one would have given "two-bits" for the success of the event. Friday dawned bright and clear, with the committee breathing sighs of relief.

A real fine crowd was on hand to view the parade which annually "kicks off" the Stampede, and the applause was long and loud as the various entries passed by. While not as large as usual, the entries in the parade made up for this lack.

The Stampede Queen was Mrs. Wilda Rose, one of Hardisty's old-

HERE COMES THE PARADE! These two horsemen and their flags led the parade which kicked off the 18th annual Hardisty Stampede on June 4th. This year's parade drew the usual large number of spectators, and the previous day's rain, which threatened to wash out the two-day event, probably helped make it one of the most successful in the days of the Stampede.

Rev. Christopherson Attends Workshop

The rite of confirmation, traditional for hundreds of years in Lutheran congregations around the world, was re-examined by some 130 Lutheran pastors from churches across Canada. The re-appraisal took place in a Confirmation Workweek held at the Banff School of Fine Arts May 10 to 14.

Guest speaker at the daily 10-hour sessions was the Rev. Herbert Brekering of Minnesota, author of a new three-year course of confirmation instruction ready to be introduced among Lutheran congregations in North America this fall.

In the insights into work with adolescents who normally make up a confirmation class, Mr. Brokering emphasized the importance of dialogue between teacher and student and between student and their congregation. He also emphasized the place of confirmation instruction as but an integral part of the entire life and work of the church.

Rev. R. J. Christopherson, pastor of the Sedgewick Lutheran Parish, attended this Workshop and upon his return commented, "The example of the new Confirmation Material that we examined convinces me that this is one of the finest develop- ments in our church in many years. The course should prove stimulating to the student and challenging to the pastor, or whoever else teaches the course. It embodies the Scriptures and the Confession in a new and interesting format that should be most helpful".

Parliamentary Rule Change!

"Time limits on debates and discussion of estimates will infringe on the rights of MP's and fetter parliament," so says M. P. Marcel Lambert, Conservative.

Mr. Lambert goes on to say, "You can get away with murder now." To this we can only say "Amen".

So far as infringing on the rights of MP's is concerned, we must add that the MP's have long since lost any rights they should have, by their very behavior in the House of Commons. To the people of this country the past few years of parliament have been an adolescent farce, and it would appear obvious that corrective measures must be undertaken if ever parliament is to regain the high dignity it once maintained. Even grown-up people, like children, may become asinine, without proper control.

Mr. Lambert, as a member of the opposition should realize that at present the House of Commons is controlled by the Opposition, and that under such conditions parliament can move only as fast as the Opposition will permit. There is now no time limit on debates. The need for such limitation is more than obvious.

Of course there would be little need for such parliamentary reform if members were imbued with the proper sense of duty and devotion to country and stripped of the insatiable desire to put party first above all things.

Whose For A Good Samaritan?

From time immemorial men of good faith have pointed to the Biblical Story of the Good Samaritan as a fine example of man's humanity to man, and have used it as a guide to their relations with their fellow men. The ancient story given as an object lesson by the Greatest Man who ever lived, has been "messed" with by modern man, until today some are not sure whether it pays to be a good samaritan or not. According to law in Canada, charity is heavily stacked against the do-gooder. This distasteful fact has been revealed by Professor Allen Linden, of the Osgoode Hall Law School.

He says for instance: You try to rescue a drowning man. Now the law makes it plain that you'd better not fail, for if you do and it can be proved that you were negligent in your attempt, you may be liable for civil damages. In other words, the law makes it clear it prefers the man who does nothing to rescue a neighbor in distress, to the man who tries and fails. Perhaps the law should put more stress on the man who fails to do the correct thing, than on him who tries, but fails. Most people however will ignore the law in this respect and continue to act rightly, trusting that even law-makers may eventually are the light.

Who's Grateful To Who?

If not distasteful, at least bemusing, is the attempted revelation from some quarters in Canada, that we should be eternally grateful to Red China and the other Communist countries for boosting the economy of Canada by purchases of grain. The basis for over gratefulness is supposed, that without these sales our economy would be pretty sick. Of course this is true, for without these sales our surplus would be depressingly high.

All this notwithstanding, we fail to see the need for our being grateful for the pure fact that these people purchased our grain, for deduced to its proper perspective the whole thing comes out to a simple matter of economics.

Red China, Poland and the other Communist countries, are unable, or have at least been unable to meet their needs by local production, and forced by circumstances to seek basic food requirements elsewhere. Canada earned attention in this area as a large grain producing country, anxious to rid itself of surplus stocks, and willing to consider quite lenient terms in the process. It was only logical that the two should meet in some amicable agreement. On the one hand is need, on the other two wherewithal. It's just as simple as that.

Should we be grateful that a starving people need our food?

Does anyone suppose for a moment that Canada would be selling grain to countries without the need for it? Without out that need this country's surplus of grain stocks would be staggering, but we should be grateful only that we had the stocks to fill the orders. It is not only true, that to him who has shall be given, but also to him who has not should be given. We owe no debt of gratitude to these countries for buying, but we do owe a debt of gratitude to Providence that we had the supplies.

Cancerphobia!

A prominent Canadian surgeon remarked recently, "There is possibly as much suffering from the fear of cancer as from the disease itself."

Cancerphobia, or the fear of cancer, is in a sense a hangover from ages past when cancer was considered a visitation from an evil spirit or a punishment inflicted by the gods for wrong-doing. It is also in part the result of a widespread misconception that there is no cure for cancer, that to be told one has cancer is equivalent to a sentence of death.

"We cannot hope to eliminate this fear," says Dr. Robert A. Mustard, the chairman of the national education committee of the Canadian Cancer Society. "We can only hope to reduce it to a reasonable level compatible with the actual risk involved, in other words, to make it a rational fair." What are the actual risks involved?

While it is true that cancer is the second leading cause of death, it actually kills half as many as does heart disease. For a person under the age of 20, the chances that he will develop cancer is only about one in four. And more than a half of all the people who develop cancer live at least five years after treatment is commenced.

The Cancer Society takes advantage of every opportunity for contact with the public to disseminate facts about cancer. It is right that it should do so because if it is true that unreasoning fear can be dispelled by the truth, then the more often these facts are presented, the better.

Fear of cancer is a contagious disease which spreads from mouth to ear, but fortunately the cure of cancerphobia is readily available and inexpensive. It consists simply of making known to the victim facts such as:

Some cancers can be prevented, many can be cured, and all patients with cancer can be helped. The earlier cancer is diagnosed and treated, the more effective the treatment can be. In research lies the ultimate solution of the cancer problem.

Potholes and Pitfalls

OTTAWA — The way of co-operative federalism is potholed with political pitfalls.

The strange thing is that it is the provinces with Liberal Governments that, on the whole, have been creating the most embarrassment to the Federal Government and particularly, perhaps to its Finance Minister.

Two very frequent visitors to Ottawa in the pre-budget period were Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan. Premier Smallwood pushing his Churchill Falls (formerly Hamilton Falls) power development had proposals for Mr. Walter Gordon's ear regarding a return of the privately owned utilities taxes in that to the provinces which would have opened the door to provincial assistance to the development. The federal government will almost as anxious as Premier Joey Smallwood to get that Churchill Falls development started and hopes were high that Mr. Gordon would do something about it. But budget night came with no fulfilment.

Saskatchewan's representations were of longer standing and may, in the end, prove more embarrassing. A full year ago Mr. Thatcher first approached Mr. Gordon with the proposal that the three-year exemption given now to shaft mining be extended to solution mining. Mr. Thatcher was given little encouragement but returned to his province full of hope.

The section of the Income Tax Act which excludes solution mining from the exemption was incorporated 10 years ago. Up to that time the tax concession had been extended from one type of mining to another. The Government decided that a line had to be drawn somewhere even if it were arbitrary. Section 83 (6) was designed to do this. It specifically excludes oil wells, gas wells and brine wells. The brine well, used at that time only for the mining of sodium and potassium chloride, still its chief use, consists of drill holes. Minerals are pumped to the surface in solution. So long as this solution mining was confined to such things as salt the section appeared to be satisfactory to all. The oil and gas industry had its own set of tax concessions. There were a few established salt mines in Ontario that would not have benefited in any event.

Then came the discovery of potash deposits in Saskatchewan, and the prospect of a new and rich industry to an industry starved province. The biggest potash mine operator, Kalsem Chemicals Ltd., developed and patented the solution process and has been using it successfully. It has invested some $50 million in the province. Others have been mining potash by conventional methods but now two groups are planning an investment of foreign capital between them estimated at about 150 million in solution mining.

When Mr. Gordon's April budget appeared with no tax concession for solution mining Mr. Thatcher exploded. The trouble was that Ottawa was not ready for it. First questions in the House were answered by Mr. Gordon with an explanation that there was a distinct line to be drawn between solution mining and shaft mining. This was as good logic as it was bad politics.

Prime Minister Pearson's explanation after a trip to Regina was slightly better, since it held some hope that the door was not closed. He said nothing could be done until the Carter Royal Commission studying the federal tax structure reported in the fall. But on the face of it Mr. Pearson's explanation was not too convincing. No fundamental principle is involved in extending the tax concessions to a new process of extracting minerals from the ground.

In any event it has failed to satisfy Mr. Thatcher who, on his last visit to Ottawa, was complaining bitterly that no one could expect him to win back Saskatchewan for the Federal Liberal party so long as Mr. Gordon stayed in the saddle. In 1963 Mr. Pearson drew a blank in Saskatchewan with the entire province standing firm with John Diefenbaker. Mr. Thatcher is probably even more interested in winning his own by-election in Moosomin on June 30 resulting from the retirement of his ex-Minister of Agriculture Mr. A. H. Macdonald.

There is more logic than appears on the surface in Mr. Gordon's decision to await the Carter report. No one is suggesting that the Commission will recommend in favor of extending a tax concession to solution mining or against it. But the report will take a long look at the whole question of tax incentives as a means of developing industries and it is on the cards that it will be unfavorable on the ground that they are not only discriminatory but ineffective.

The same consideration influenced the decision to do nothing about corporation sales or estates taxes in the April budget. In both cases the budget makers asked themselves whether any serious harm would result from delaying action to the Fall or even to the next budget.

In the case of potash they looked at one Company already operating and marketing its potash at very competitive prices. They saw two companies, both foreign controlled, ready to come into the field and planning production soon. Aside from tax concessions these plans are dependent on success in obtaining potash sales prices which at the moment were all held by Kalsum. But the decision to wait may have created a situation like the extent of Mr. Thatcher's impatience.

TIME NOBBLES ON

I'll be 45 this week. It's one of those rather lackluster birthdays like 13, 21 and 30. Only 10 years before I'll be middle-aged. A good time to sum up.

One thing that strikes me is the amount of junk a fellow can collect in such a brief span. I came into the world without a stitch or a nickel. And in only four and a half decades, I have acquired a number of stitches, about 400 nickles, house with two mortgages, a car with 13 payments to go, 2 teenagers to put through university, and a wife currently tidying up the glories of an automatic dishwasher.

Not to mention a household of furniture that's all due to be replaced, a basement full of empty beer bottles, a wobbling set of golf clubs and broken bicycles, and an attic full of black squirrels.

But I have no complaints about life. I was the runt of the litter in our family, but I've grown into a magnificent physical specimen, towering five foot eight on hot days and tipping the scales at a strapping 128 in my winter overcoat.

And what a beating that meagre machine has given me in 40 years. I've been sea-sick and air-sick and love-sick. I've rolled over in the car, crash-landed in an airplane and smashed into a steel bridge at top

The first game was received the Edmonton Arrow Ball Club will compete at Sedgewick on July 2nd when the season opens.

Not bad for an old chap, eh? But please don't think I'm bragging. What I'm doing is singing a paean of thanksgiving for my very good health, and a note of consolation for you birds who are creeping up on 40.

A lot of people burble, "If I could only live it over, knowing what I do now." Not me.

I wouldn't trade my childhood, romantic, shy, imaginative, for any I've seen since. The thrill of sport as a teenager, falling in love half a dozen times; first job, on a steamboat; university and fraternity and new friends; air force and kicks as a fighter pilot; prison camp and hunger and fear; wife, marriage and kids; weekly newspaper editor; high school teacher. And be hanged if a few hairs didn't offer me an interesting new job just last week.

spend on my bike. I've been beaten into unconsciousness by a gang of Cavmen, and had my wife threaten from a telephone to a plate or roast beef by my wife. Yet there's hardly a scratch on me. Outwardly.

I've broken fingers and toes and nose (three times). I've had hemorroids and hangovers. I've had my head stitched by a hockey stick and a horseshoe. I've had the measles and mumps and chicken pox and the trots, scarlet fever and bursitis, and pink eye and dysentery.

And yet, somehow, the old carcass presses on. Right and hearing are sound as a bell though wrestling is gone completely, appetite is unimpaired, and the old guts can still digest any thing but Brussel sprouts. Hair and teeth are thinning and have changed color, but are still original models.

Endurance isn't what it used to be. I couldn't run 300 yards at top speed now to save my immortal soul, or me, with a red-hot pitchfork. But be rarely chases on Sunday School picnics, so why worry?

I can still swim a few hundred yards, and tramp a trout stream or golf course from nine to nine miles a day. I can still sit up all night and argue about politics or women or golf.

I can still get excited about an idea or a song or a poem or a play. I can still thrill to the sight of a beautiful breed, or a big fish, or a full moon, or a blueberry, or a bonfire.

I enjoy loafing and hard work, short stories and novels, thunderstorms and trees, good movies, and little children, old friends and new fashions, fishing and golf, and all these combinations.

Traffic Safety Essays

(By Norma Denham, Lougheed)

"Hi everyone! My name is Jim, and although I hate to brag over my born, I'm a pretty fine truck. If I do say so myself. Just one short week ago, I was just as big as any on the highways and byways doing what all good trucks should do. Now, because of an accident, my owner, Joe Kupperman, can't bear to drive me and I sit deserted and unwanted while he travels everywhere on foot. He feels so guilty about the tragedy which he thinks a fatal error, and will have prevented that he considers himself too irresponsible to drive. Let me tell you in my own words all about it.

"One day as I was tabing a snooze, Joe came out and told me to get mobile. As I slowly proceeded out the gate, thinking we were going to get bundles, we turned to the east. Right away I knew we were going to see our neighbor Dick McKenzie. He is married to Julie, and they have four children, Billy, Jody, Carl and Mary.

"Soon we were at Dick's and Joe went in to talk. Billy, Jody, Carl and Mary were clambering all over me. I didn't mind it. In fact I loved every moment.

"After awhile Joe came out and jumped into my cab, calling to his friend, Dick, to come with us. I remembered I left the water turned on and the water tank will be running over.

"With that he turned my key and roared away. Our first stop, seemingly of my tires I could hear Julie call to the children to get back out of my way. As I backed out backwards, then started to swing out towards the gate, when suddenly he slammed on my brakes. Something was lying just where I had been sitting and Dick, Julie and three of his children were kneeling beside it. Joe jumped out with an anguished cry and I felt my motor leap up into my headlights. We built realized that one of the children hadn't heeded mother's call to get out of my way. Poor little Mary lay unconscious while her mother sobbed pathetically.

"Mary will live but she will never climb on my hood and jump around on my back again; she will never even walk again.

QUALITY IN KIDDIES' SHOES!

Did you know that the average 2-year-old takes about 30,000 steps daily, which adds up to considerable mileage — about ten miles per day or about 60 miles in 6 weeks. Is it any wonder, then, that children's shoes lose their new look so quickly and always seem to be needing repair or replacement? Following are the questions most commonly asked by parents about quality in children's shoes.

Question: Some children's shoes cost less than $2.00 a pair, others as much as $9.00. Since they look alike in color, material, construction and style, why do prices vary?

For many reasons. First, there are the materials that go into the shoe. Components of a high-priced shoe will almost always be better in quality, hence more expensive. You can expect a leather upper for example, to be a better grade or quality than a substitute one. Or a leather shoe. The same may be true of other components, many of which are hidden. Materials used in the innersole, sock lining, lacing, heels, soles, counter, shank and toecap all greatly affect a shoe's quality and price.

Also factors in cost are the work and time involved in making the shoe; the care taken in stitching, or joining and finishing the various parts, the method used to attach the sole to the upper, and the thoroughness with which the shoes are inspected. A more expensive shoe usually repays your investment many times in lasting looks

Anglican W.A. Ladies Honor Mrs. Bloom

SEDGEWICK —The June meeting of St. John's W. A. took place in the church hall, taking the form of a dinner meeting in honor of Mrs. Bloom, who, together with Captain Bloom will be leaving shortly for Toronto. A welcome guest was Mrs. Bloom Sr., who together with her husband and Capt. Bloom's brother Peter, is visiting with Capt. and Mrs. Bloom, from Montreal.

After dinner Mrs. Chapman spoke in praise of Mrs. Bloom, acknowledging the great help she has been in all phases of work with the W.A., and also as a wonderful helpmeet for her husband. The regular W. A. meeting followed the dinner. A prayer was given for the holiday season, followed by the members' prayer. The prayers to Pierre Berton's Comfortable Pew was read.

It was interesting to note that all members of W. A. were present.

Mrs. Chapman gave a report of the Deanery meeting held at Wainwright, and Mrs. Richmond thanked the members for her Life Membership and Pin; also the corsage, all gifts of the St. John's W. A.

Capt. Bloom said that Rev. A. Katurasoo, and African Missionary, from Uganda will speak in the St. John's Church on the first Sunday in July.

An invitation which had been received from the Camrose School for Retarded Children, was read, asking any interested members to attend their official opening. A letter from a W. YOUNG SOCIAL CREDITERS

NOW IS THE TIME TO STOP AND THINK!

Our young people's group may seem but a very small wheel in a huge machine. We are maybe but one of many such small wheels, but unless we function with the huge lodge and skill of which we are capable and to the best of our ability, we hinder the effectiveness of our fellow 'wheels' and cut down greatly on the efficiency of the huge machine of which we are so small a part.

In my opinion we have had a very successful preceding year. The highlight of the year our Robert Thompson Night, was a big success. We managed to win the Aberhart Memorial Sports Trophy; we were able to buy two gran rents memberships to help the whole Social Credit organization; we published "Do You Know" columns in our local newspaper, plus starting a number of other projects which help make our group more interesting.

One word is the key to success of any club or organization, that being Co-operation. Without this working together of all members our group could never thrive as it has. It has been a real privilege to me to have held the office of President this past year and I wish to take this opportunity to thank you.

If I am elected this year I plan to keep this small wheel of ours running as smoothly as possible.

My platform for the coming year is more study groups, more publicity, and a trip to the Provincial Parliament to help us learn more about our government and how Social Credit works. I would also like to see special activities planned to encourage new memberships.

I believe in the Social Credit Philosophy.

The individual is the most important factor in organized society. As a divinely-created being, he has inalienable rights which must be respected and preserved.

The major function of democratic government is to give people the results they want in the management of their public affairs, as far as these are physically possible and morally right.

The individual must be guaranteed economic security without sacrifice of his personal freedom. Economic security is a means to increase personal freedom. It is not an end to be achieved by restricting it.

That which is physically possible and desirable, and morally right, can and should be made financially possible.

KEEP THIS MACHINE RUNNING

In Memoriam

LAUGHLIN — In loving memory of Joseph Edward Laughlin who passed away June 16th, 1962.
Time takes away the hurt but leaves the never more would return,
That he in death so soon would leave us.
And leave us here alone.
Friends may think we have forgotten him,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
And the sadness hide the while.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by his loving wife Hilda and family. 3 1 p

OILERS WIN TWO FROM SHAMROCKS

SEDGEWICK — In last Sunday's baseball double-header at Sedgewick, the local Oilers won both games from the Viking Shamrocks.

It was a cold, windy day, but a fairly good crowd turned out to watz bthe two teams in their first meetings of the season.

The first game, which started at about 1:00 p.m., saw the Oilers win by a score of 6 to 5, after taking an early lead and never looking back.

In the second game neither team was able to score until the fourth inning, when Sedgewick got one. The Shamrocks came right back to score three in the next inning. When the Oilers came up for their last at bat, the score was still 3-1 in favor of the Shamrocks, but the locals pushed across three quick runs to edge out the win 4-3.

There is an education opportunity for everyone in Alberta

Albertans have education opportunities second to none in Canada. In addition to a broad, general, academic system, Albertans enjoy the services of specialized educational programs — schools for retarded children, education for the blind, night-owing classes, instruction for the hard-of-hearing, and residential schools for children who are totally deaf.

The Correspondence School Branch offers courses for credits towards an Alberta High School diploma, and special adult matriculation programs may be arranged. Courses are also available for Grades 1-12.

Alberta maintains Institutes of Technology in Calgary and Edmonton, Agricultural and Vocational Colleges in Olds, Vermilion and Fairview. These schools are the most advanced of their type in Canada. They provide students who have left, or graduated from, the regular schools system with technical, agricultural, pre-employment or apprenticeship training.

The Provincial Assistance Board provides scholarships, grants and loans under the authority of the Students Assistance Act, the Queen Elizabeth Education Scholarships Fund and under the Canada Student Loans Plan. Scholarships, grants and loans are made available to students attending university, vocational, agricultural and nursing schools, to high school students and to those attending junior colleges and the Banff School of Fine Arts.

To Albertans, education has assumed a position of great importance, as is evidenced by the large sums of money spent in the province to build and maintain our schools and colleges.

Education opportunities don't just happen in Alberta — they are made!

Rev. Glen Ogren, Conference Missionary to Brazil, who is home on furlough, was guest speaker and showed slides at a special meeting on Thursday night.

On Friday night John Kvill spoke to the Young People's Group on a very timely subject.

One of the personal jokes that goes the rounds of offices and factories at this time of year (start of summer) concerns vacations. When a person who has been enjoying his sojourn from his desk or cable returns and asks a fellow employee "Did you miss me?" the rejoiner is usually, "Why, were you away?" There is more truth than just in this annual incident. For far too often people are not really missed. However this does not apply to our Sunday School. If you were not in Sunday School last Sunday YOU WERE MISSED. Our attendance dropped to 84 which meant there were 50 absentees. 336 hours may elapse before many of these students will again hear or read the Word of God.

The Pastor ministered at the Sunday services.

BAKER — BAUER

Francis Eugene Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Baker of Edmonton, and Marlene Felicia Anne Bauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bauer of Olds, were united in holy matrimony at the Assumption Catholic Church by Monsignor W. Gross, on May 1st, 1965.

Attending the bride was Miss June Ortwein, the bride's friend, and former roommate. The groom's attendant was his brother, Dick.

The bride wore a lovely white, wide-skirted floor length gown of satin and chantilly lace. Her single crowned veil hung softly to her shoulders. To accessorize her ensemble, the bride wore a set of dainty white pearls, a gift of the groom. Her beautiful bouquet was a cross-shaped arrangement of pink roses and white daisies.

The bridesmaid wore a pastel mauve bell-shaped street length dress. Her accessories were of matching pastel mauve. She carried a white carnation bouquet.

The mother of the bride wore a navy and white suit with white accessories. The groom's mother chose a light turquoise suit with white accessories. Both mothers were presented with corsages of white roses.

The reception was held at the Riviera Motor Motel in Edmonton. After the reception there was open house at the home of the bride's sister. More than 80 Edmonton guests and out of town people were present to make it a very enjoyable evening.

After the gifts were opened, the bride changed into her two-pieced going away suit of white lace. Her lovely apparel was completed with white accessories and pink corsage.

The happy couple left on their honeymoon to B. C. and later will return to Edmonton where they will make their home.

SHOWER HELD FOR LEONA LINDSETH

(Mrs. Doug Kisner)

KILLAM — A bridal shower in honor of Miss Leona Lindseth was held in the Elks Community Hall on Monday, May 31st. Mrs. Mabel Grant was M.C. for the evening. She called the bride-to-be and Miss Lorna Sorenson and Miss Karen Lindseth to the head table, where she pinned a red and yellow corsage on the bride elect.

Miss Bev Larson played a piano solo, and Miss Pat and Linda Morgan sang "My Best To You." A soup contest was enjoyed by all.

The gifts were passed around, and Leona graciously thanked everyone for the lovely affair and invited all to open house and dance. The ladies of the Royal Purple served a most tasty lunch.

QUESTION: How can I tell if the children's shoes I buy are well made and of good quality?

Whatever the price, make sure the shoes you buy are well finished inside and out, with no bulky seam or wrinkles. The innersole, a layer of leather or other material inside the shoe, should be flat and fit the shoe perfectly.

A shoe should be firm but resilient under the arch. The shank, a hidden piece of steel or wood that extends under the arch, provides this type of support. Shanks are missing in some shoes.

Also look for flexibility where the foot bends. To check this, bend the heel and toe toward each other.

The sole may be leather, rubber or a man-made material, but must be firmly attached to the upper, by stitching, cementing or molding. If cemented, an allowance should be visible on sides of upper.

The toe should be rounded, not pointed; the heel low, broad and cushioned to absorb shocks.

MY QUESTION: Do you know when your child's birthday is?

Next week we shall print the answer to this and other common questions about children's shoes.

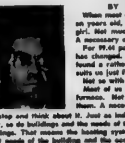
The Truth About Gaps

BY BERT ODLAND



When most of us boys were six or seven years old, we figured a girl was a girl. Not much difference between 'em. A necessary evil we must accept.

For 99.44 percent of us that thinking has changed. In fact, most of us have found a rather special girl — one that suits us just fine.

Not so with furnaces.

Most of us still figure a furnace as a furnace. Not much difference between them. A necessary evil we must accept.

But stop and think about it. Just as individuals differ from each other, so do buildings and the needs of the people who live in those buildings. That means the heating system must be designed to the exact needs of the building and the occupants . It must be carefully selected and installed. Just "any kind" of a furnace or installation won't do. (As with a wife, you usually select it for a lifetime).

A good furnace dealer has to be ready with all sizes and models of furnaces (air conditioners, too). Only then can he custom tailor the right system for any given building. That is one of the reasons why we are Lennox Dealers. The sensational new Lennox furnaces and air conditioners are modular — flexible — so that several different capacity components are available. It fills the bill where other brands, with gaps in the line, can't come close. And that's the truth about gaps.

A. P. Crop Report

Local — Intermittent rain continues to interfere with seeding but steady progress has been made since last report. Average amount secured is: Wheat 60 p.c.; Oats 40; Barley 30. Operations are somewhat further advanced in the northwest half of the area. Warm, dry weather is needed to permit completion of seeding.

General — Rain in varying degrees was received in all parts of Alberta during the past week, mainly taking good seeding conditions, but interfering with seeding operations. In the southern half of the province seeding of cereal grains is almost completed. In the Northern half and the Peace River, wheat seeding is 80 percent completed but less than 50 percent of the oats and barley has been sown. Dry weather is needed to allow completion of seeding and warmth to promote the growth.

Bumper Crop Indicated For Local Farmers

The almost perfect condition of the sub-soil moisture content, plus copious rains since seeding operations finished, along with an abundance of warm sunshine, indicates a bumper crop in the area.

Grain crops are advancing rapidly, and as one farmer put it, "You can almost see the stuff growing".

The percentage of wheat seeded this spring is down somewhat from last year, due, no doubt, to the interest of spring, and this will be made up by a larger percentage sown to coarse grains, and urea left to summerfallow. The hay fields are showing exceptional growth and yields are expected to be heavy. This condition will be welcome by stockmen, who found their supplies depleted after the severe winter.

A great many of the farmers are taking out crop insurance this year, indicating they are taking no chances on a possible loss of what looks like a good yield.

LAYING TELEPHONE CABLE — We have heard a number of people ask how the underground telephone cable would be put in. Here's the machine that does the job at up to 20 miles per day, depending on the ground conditions. The crew is just changing the reel and the new reel can be seen on the front of the machine. Cable is fed back over the top into the hollow "J" shaped tube which is behind the plow which cuts the trench. When in operation this rear assembly is lowered into the ground three or four feet, and automatically lays the cable.

Daysland Plans Community Centre

DAYSLAND — A meeting was held in the Elks hall Wed. night for the purpose of discussing a proposed Daysland Community Centre. The Centre will be sponsored by the Daysland Lions Club and will house the Canadian Legion and any other organization wishing to participate and support the proposed project.

The stucture will be made of cement blocks, one level size 80 by 120 ft. designed with multiple club rooms, modern banquet room facilities and a dance hall. The estimated cost will be $80,000 on. The project will be financed through the Federal Municipal Development and Loan Act. If this project is not self supporting when it is in operation, so as to leave no burden on the tax payer the Lions Club has pledged use take on the obligation for the Daysland Community as an annual project.

The Lions Club are to be commended on the money they have raised in the four years they have been working as a club. They have raised the sum of $22,881.57 and have $8,428.39 in the bank to start this project.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Pryce and he turned it over to George Cramton who acted as Chairman. The first speaker was Edwin Ericsson who outlined the proposed Centre. Arthur Ginter spoke on behalf of the town. Mr. Jack Riddell from the Recreation Branch and Mr. Bill McKay Deputy Fire Commissioner for Alberta from Edmonton were present and both men spoke of the advantages of a good hall for Daysland. Following this a question period was held with many taking the opportunity to find out more about the project. No decision was made at this meeting to go ahead with the project. The Lions Club had the proposed plans drawn up and were on display for anyone to look at.

YOUNG SOCREDS TO HOLD ELECTION

Activity is increasing as the Young Social Creditors prepare for their annual meeting and elections to be held at the Sedgewick Legion Hall on the evening of June 18th. President Daniel Lewis is seeking a second term — while opposing him is Barry Gascoyne. Both candidates have been waging a brisk but clean campaign as they go all out for votes. They will be interviewing their final speeches on the evening of the election. President of the Alberta Young Socreds, Lee L. Anderson of Medicine Hat, will be addressing this public gathering. One of the items of business likely to come up for discussion will be a fund for the July 1 celebrations.

Seek Wanted Man Locally

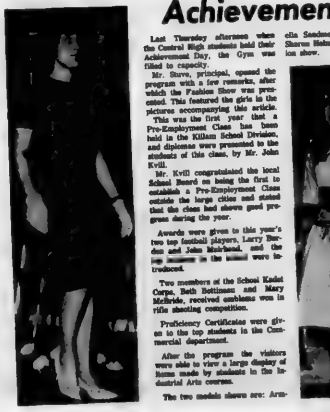
Robert Desjarlais, wanted by the R.C.M.P. and Edmonton city police for the alleged slaying of Rosalie Weiting, nee Johnson, was reported to local police as having been seen in the local area Monday night. Police checked the story just as they do all reports, but as far as the local report was concerned, no trace of the wanted man was found.

The man wanted in the alleged slaying is dangerous according to police and the public is asked to take no chances with him.

Mrs. Rosalie Weiting is the daughter of Mr. Ervid Johnson and the late Phoebe Johnson of Lougheed. Rose's sister Linda is in hospital in Edmonton suffering from wounds, allegedly inflicted by the same Robert Desjarlais. Residing in the same house in Edmonton were Anna Bakken and Darlene Freeman, both of whose parents live at Lougheed. Linda Johnson is reported recovering from knife wounds.

According to reports, Desjarlais is not a stranger to this area, he having visited around on previous occasions. The public is asked to report any possible clues to the police. The wanted man is about five feet and three inches tall, weight 125 pounds, and dark complexioned, aged 23 years.

Gym Crowded For Central's Achievement Day



Last Thursday afternoon when the Central High students held their Achievement Day, the Gym was filled to capacity.

Mr. Suave, principal, opened the program with a few remarks, after which the Fashion Show was presented. This featured the girls in the pictures accompanying this article.

This was the first year that a Pre-Employment Class has been held in the Killam School Division, and diplomas were presented to the students of this class, by Mr. John Kvill.

Mr. Kvill congratulated the local School Board on being the first to establish a Pre-Employment Class outside the large cities and stated that the class had shown good progress during the year.

Awards were given to this year's two top football players, Larry Burden and John Strickrood, and the top scorer in the school were introduced.

Kinsmen Working To Improve Facilities

SEDGEWICK—For several years now the Kinsmen Club has been working to improve the grounds at Sedgewick Lake, and this spring the club is working as hard as ever.

The swimming pool has been now pumped dry and cleaned out, and is ready for swimming as soon as the water is warm enough.

A tremendous amount of work has been done by the club on the lake grounds, to improve the facilities for picnics, etc. Five places have been built and the picnic tables repaired. A complete set of playground equipment is now ready for use by the youngsters, including swings, slides, teeter-totters, etc.

At the present time work is going ahead on a football diamond which will be available for use in a couple of weeks.

Six hundred trees have been planted this spring under a program of tree planting that has been going on some four years, and will continue until the plan is completed.

A caretaker has been employed by the Club to keep the grass mowed, provide fire wood, and to generally keep the grounds in repair.

Kinsmen Club sponsored swimming lessons are scheduled for the first week in July to 31, and a Red Cross instructor has been hired.

Jobs For 1970!

We have been informed any number of times that jobs will have to be found for a million and a half more Canadians by 1970. Of course this figure was projected on past and present statistics, and with a pretty fair intimation of human social behaviour. However, our problem is not the above figure, for a few thousand here and there in any realm today has little significance. The problem will most likely be as to how these jobs will be found and who will create them?

As a boy I recall my father talking about Technology. Knowing nothing of such modern ideas, I actually couldn't have cared less. But today, technology, the capacity to see new things in social possibilities and to make old things in brand new ways, may be the answer. Technology is very close to the speed and success of a country's economic growth upon which the creation of new jobs depends so highly.

The importance of developing an advanced technology was well emphasized recently by Major Gen. Keefler, at a seminar at Queen's University. Speaking to industry, and to secondary industry in particular, he said that if productivity is to be increased by three percent a year, existing physical plant must be continually re-designed to do more things, to do them faster or to do them better, or a bit of each.

There is a real challenge to industry here, in co-operation with government, our universities and other non-profit organizations to develop the kind of technology which will provide the new jobs of the future, which could easily turn out to be our greatest national resource. If this is done properly, we will coast into 1970 with its Million and a half new jobs right in stride.

Sounds Sensible!

Former Chief Justice McRuer, now conducting the Royal Commission on Civil Rights in Ontario, says that persons taken into custody for an offence not of the serious kind might be released without the formality of providing bail.

The admission of a prisoner to bail is not punitive. It is a judicial power, and the chief consideration is the likelihood of a person to appear for trial. But the inability to provide cash or obtain surety may result in the punishment of being held in jail for some days. Even the minor offender who can provide bail, must have a J. P. present to authorize release. This may be sometimes difficult. A police officer in charge should be able to admit to bail a person arrested on a minor offence, as is the case in England.

Fathers' Day

Writing, said a famous author not too many years ago, is hard work and bad for the health. Actually it is not harvil physically but often one has to rack the brain to choose a subject and then select the right nouns, verbs and adjectives and put them together in the right order with proper punctuation.

The subject of this editorial is Fathers' Day. You will notice we placed the apostrophe after the letter s. We are not going to try to deal with any particular father. There are some fathers who are good and kind and honest with few faults and there are some who are low, mean, and dispicable. Between the two extremes you will find the most of the fathers of the world.

We can be more sentimental over Mothers' Day but we find it hard to shed an editorial tear over Fathers. They have their uses but it is difficult to list them all against their faults.

That's all. Why did we get mixed up into writing an editorial on Fathers' Day. The old cranks! — Brooks Bulletin.

A Change Coming?

Indications seem to point to the fact that the day may not be too far off when Canadian school children will be working out their arithmetic problems in meters, liters and quintals instead of feet, quarts and pounds. This may all come about as a result of a recently-launched Federal government study to assess the problems involved in converting Canada's system of weights and measures to the metric system. The British government has recently announced its intention to convert to the metric system so that British business transactions will be more like those of Western Europe. As far as Canada is concerned, there are so many problems to be worked out, that it may never make the change. Not the least of these problems is that the U. S., Canada's largest trading partner, is not disposed as yet to conaider conversion to the metric system. Yet, there has been some pressure on the federal government to study the feasibility of converting, in the belief that Canada's business interests will be best served by this international system of weights and measures. The conversion might not be as confusing or as difficult as many believe. Perhaps our educational authorities could begin, now to introduce the conversion tables into Canada's school system,thus preparing our youth for the possible change.

Killers In the Back Yard!

From now on until fall, one of the big attractions is to get things out of the house and into the back yard. Enjoyable as this may be, it has its hazards. Right now try sitting in a chair or sleeping on a folding cot, outside, in the evening. You'll wake up a mass of welts and know that the mosquitos have had a barbeque.

That's what we wanted to talk about, anyway. Barbecues. While usually happy occasions a barbecue can become a nightmare. For instance not too long ago, an Edmonton boy died after a red-hot barbecue tipped over on him. He suffered third degree burns to 80 percent of his entire body.

Actually the number one trouble-maker in barbecues is the flammable liquid; yet fires have started from potholders, or other combustibles left on or even near the grills, from hot coals that fell through to wooden floors, and from hot coals dumped into cardboard cartons. Another mistake some persons make is taking the grill indoors, for here enters a new villain — carbon monoxide. A low smoking form of charcoal does not render it safe for burning inside, for anything which burns produces carbon monoxide, a tasteless, invisible, odourless but deadly gas. The first warning you will have of this gas effect will be a tightening across the forehead and throbbing headache, followed by drowsiness, nausen and unconsciousness. Get out of the place fast, at the first sign, for further exposure at that point will lead to death.

Become acquainted with the rules for barbecuing. Enjoy your summer.

Western Wrangling

OTTAWA — There is feuding and fighting between the federal Liberal government and Premier Duff Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

The Liberal Premier of the Prairie province is unhappy with the brand of Liberalism that his colleagues in Ottawa are asking to the Canadian people. He contends it borders on socialism.

Mr. Thatcher, once a member of the CCF party, will lead group before the prairie free enterprise. He is a private enterprise and as such he set out to defeat the only socialist government in North America, the CCF provincial administration in Saskatchewan. It was a long and hard fight, but he made it. Now he is dismayed to learn that the left-wing Liberals appear to have taken over control at Ottawa. Privately he thinks the Liberals federally are more socialist than his old CCF foe, M. J. Coldwell.

The Saskatchewan Premier travelled to Ottawa recently to make a public speech. He appealed to his American audience to invest their 15 billion in Saskatchewan. He was asked by one informed member of his hardboiled American businessman's audience how it was that he was appealing for American investment in Saskatchewan when the Federal finance Minister, the Hon. Walter Gordon, was endeavouring to reduce the scale of U. S. investment in Canada.

That was a good question said the Saskatchewan Premier, one that he would leave to the end of the meeting to answer. But the effect he told his audience that regardless of what Mr. Gordon might say at Ottawa, as a Premier of Saskatchewan, he wanted more American dollars invested in Saskatchewan. He wanted capital investment to help develop industry in that prairie province which at one time was a one-industry area — wheat.

Having made his pitch for more US dollars the Saskatchewan Premier travelled to Toronto. He conferred with Revenue Minister E.J. Benson and Industry Minister C. M. Drury. He also met with several of the Federal Government officials. Noticeably he did not see Premier L. B. Pearson, Finance Minister Mr. Gordon and Agricultural Minister Harry Hays.

The Premier's battle with Mr. H. Hays has become so bitter that efforts are made to ensure that they do not come face to face. The argument began shortly after the Premier was elected in Saskatchewan. He wrote the Federal Agriculture Minister and got a reply which he did not like. Another, this time tougher letter followed and brought an equally tough reply. Mr. Thatcher and Mr. Hays and they apparently did not get along. Now, they don't see each other, at least efforts are made to keep them from meeting.

Spokesmen for Mr. Hays contend the differences developed because the Premier wanted a section of road built that Mr. Hays refused to authorize. They also claim that the Premier wanted certain appointments made to the Prairie Farm Assistance administration. Mr Hays said "no".

On the road question it appears that a decade ago several miles of a road near Reed Lake, close to Moose Jaw, was washed out by a flood. The flood is said to have been due in part to a drainage project 25 miles away substantiate by the PFRA, a Federal government agency. Moose municipality thought the road should be built with PFRA funds. Premier Thatcher, when he was campaigning in 1952 promised one of the things his friends in Ottawa would do for him would be rebuilding the road. When he was elected he broached the subject to the Federal Agriculture Minister but the Federal government argued the road was the responsibility of the Saskatchewan highways department. The Premier contended that PFRA has a responsibility to rebuild the road. The exchange of correspondence became more friendly. Mr. Hays said flatly and firmly, "no road".

Premier Thatcher said it was not "patronage" it was a case of correcting a wrong that had resulted from another federal project. But he could not budge Mr. Hays. He could not make good on his election promise and he was naturally more than miffed.

The Premier is also annoyed because he had expected that the Federal Liberals would accept his recommendation for the appointments of PFRA inspectors. He assumed that the Liberals in office meant what Liberals could expect to get posts. But not so far as Mr. Hays was concerned.

The Agriculture Minister once again has laid down the line that there will be no appointments that smack of patronage.

Liberals in Saskatchewan are accustomed to the pattern of politics as practiced by the late Rt. Hon. James G. Gardner. They contend that when the CCF was in office it made sure that many of its good supporters got good jobs. Now the Liberals are in power it was their turn.

The Saskatchewan Premier is disillusioned. He worries that if the Federal Liberals carry on with the policies that have put forward that they will antagonize western Liberals.

Even now he thinks Federal Liberal stock is so low that in many constituencies Liberal Federal candidates might place third in a general election. Not only has he said this in private, but worse, insofar as Ottawa Liberals are concerned, he has made such comment in public.

Mr. Thatcher has also laughed publicly with Finance Minister Gordon. His fight with Mr. Gordon is over his demand that Ottawa grant identical tax concessions in solution mine operations as are enjoyed by the shaft potash mining up ercttons in Saskatchewan. So far Mr. Gordon refused to budge on the demand. By this refusal the Premier claims Mr. Gordon has discriminated against potash mines from setting up in Saskatchewan.

From public platforms the Liberal Premier has bitterly attacked and criticized Mr. Gordon and Mr. Hays. Naturally they don't like his tactics. In fact Mr. Hays has been represented as having trouble privately himself in check, has privately threatened to go into Saskatchewan and retaliate by attacking and criticizing the Saskatchewan Premier in his home territory.

With provincial Liberals fighting Federal Liberals the Conservatives, New Democratic Party and Social Crediters are delighted. Prairie Liberals realize it is a thoroughly bad situation. But several do not have a high regard for the policies of the Federal government which they say is long on socialism, or the social welfare state.

Already there is talk of forming a new Liberty Party of the West dedicated to promoting private enterprise and less to the development of socialist welfare policies. There are mutterings in Manitoba and West of the keystone province that the Federal Liberals are too concerned about Quebec and Ontario, not concerned in the West. This could lead to a new Liberal party appearing that is keyed to the political thinking of Liberals on the prairies and in B. C.

Home-Owners Signing Up For Natural Gas

Much day that goes by sees the number of householders signing up for natural gas increasing. Village secretaries are busy getting the necessary forms completed, as individual lines will soon be dug and installed.

The main lines from the wells are now being laid, as well as the lines in Killam and Sedgewick, and it is anticipated that long before the end of the year, the residents of the two towns will be using the gas in their homes and businesses.

While the debentures are not being picked up too rapidly by the local citizens, no trouble in disposing of them is anticipated. Those who wish to invest in this six percent deal, are advised to get in on the ground quickly, as the issue could be sold out at any time.

An ounce of prevention... $126,000,000 a year

Preventive care and treatment is a major contributing factor to the high standard of public health Albertans enjoy. Your Department of Public Health maintains diagnostic and treatment clinics for cancer, cerebral palsy, mental health, rheumatoid arthritis, social hygiene and tuberculosis.

The Department co-operates with, and assists financially, local Health Units and city Health Departments throughout the province to provide services to infants and pre-school children . . . school health programs . . . immunization of all age groups . . . and provides for educating people in the importance of periodic medical examinations.

The estimated cost to maintain this program of preventive care and treatment this year amounts to $126,336,000 — 15c per day for every man, woman and child in Alberta. A small price to pay compared to the high cost of care.

And when illness does strike, Albertans find it comforting to know that they can receive the finest hospital care for a maximum of $2.00 per day.

BLACKLEG CONTROL!

Dr. G. A. Chalmers, Pathologist with Alberta's Veterinary Services Branch, strongly advised cattlemen to vaccinate young animals against blackleg before turning them on to spring pastures.

He says the vaccination of all cattle between four months and two years of age is very cheap insurance against loss of these animals. The saving of only one animal will much more than offset the cost of the bacterin for all the others.

Dr. Chalmers recommends vaccinating two or three weeks before the cattle are turned out. In areas where the incidence of blackleg has been high, calves of one month old should also be done. These younger animals should be revaccinated in six months to ensure maximum protection. Since immunity takes from 10 to 14 days to develop, deaths may continue to occur during an outbreak for several days after the cattle have been vaccinated.

Blackleg is most prevalent in the young, rapidly growing cattle on good feed. Usually the first indication of trouble is a dead animal in the field. Occasionally, an infected animal may be seen showing depression, marked lameness and a swelling on the upper part of its limb. Sometimes it will have a high temperature but more often its temperature will be subnormal. At this stage the condition develops rapidly and the animal usually dies within 12 to 36 hours.

To prevent further contamination of pastures, Dr. Chalmers stresses that the carcass of dead animals should be completely burned or else deeply buried in the ground.

Since blackleg is not the only disease which causes sudden deaths in livestock, a veterinarian should be consulted immediately there is a suspicion of it. A laboratory test will soon confirm the presence or absence of the causative bacterium.

Dr. Chalmers feels that the significance of blackleg is too often underestimated. This is indicated by the number of farmers who do not vaccinate against this rapid killer and who subsequently suffer high financial losses.

BRUSH CONTROL!

The amount of brush growing in pasture land is increasing and also spreading. In some cases over 70 percent of the pastures are covered with buckbrush or western snowberry. Buckbrush and Silver Willow are the worst offenders but poplars and willow are also spreading.

These robbers can be effectively eradicated with chemicals. 24D has proven to be economical and very effective if used properly. The important thing is to obtain good coverage of the foliage with solution. The taller and denser the foliage, the greater the quality of water required to get good coverage.

If one uses from 30 to 50 gallons of water along with 16 to 32 ounces of acid of 24D per acre, and gets good coverage, one should get good results. Foliage spraying should be done in the spring as soon as the leaves on the new growth are fully expanded.

CANADA'S NEW LABOUR CODE/Hon. Allan MacEachen, Minister of Labour, answers some questions:

"Our new Canada Labour Code has been called a 'first,' Mr. MacEachen. Would you agree?"

"Yes, and it is one of the most all-embracing. Canada has a right to be proud of it. It sets higher standards than have been set for any other country I know. Other countries are taking note of the way Canadian Parliament is enacting that more workers share in this country's growth."

"Briefly, who does this new Code apply to?"

"It applies to industries which fall under Federal jurisdiction—and may well prove to be a guide for other industries. The Government itself, which is a large employer in its own right, will take the lead by applying the Code's standards to its own federal employees."

"Let's get down to specifics. What, exactly, does it promise to those employees who are affected by it?".

"As we said, it sets minimum standards—and I stress that these are minimums, because, of course, a lot of workers already enjoy higher standards than the Code sets.

First, it sets a standard 8 hour day and a 40 hour week, with overtime limited to 8 hours a week, and paid for at time-and-a-half.

Second, it sets the minimum wage rate for all men and women over 17 years of age at $1.25 an hour.

Next, it provides for two weeks' annual vacation with pay, after one year's service; or 4% of wages as vacation pay for those with from 30 days to a year's service.

Finally, it stipulates that each employee shall get eight statutory holidays with pay a year—or get a full day off in lieu of the holiday."

"You said the new Code applies to industries under Federal jurisdiction. Would you name them?"

"The Code covers interprovincial or international rail and highway transport, primary fishing where the fishermen work for wages, air transport, radio and TV, shipping, banks, uranium mining, grain elevators, flour and feed mills and warehousing, seed cleaning mills, interprovincial or international pipelines and ferries, interprovincial or international telegraphs and telephones, most Crown corporations and one or two other smaller industries."

If you are not sure whether you are covered by the Canada Labour (Standards) Code, write to Department of Labour, Ottawa.

SOME WOES ON WOMEN

There is something deeply disturbing about the attitude toward life of the modern North American woman.

Men haven't really changed much, basically, since Julius Caesar and his boys crossed the Rubicon. They still like to make war and make love; they still drink more than is good for them; they still like playing games better than improving their property; they still have some romance and illusion in their souls; they still loathe facing up to family problems in little "talks" with their mates.

Take a modern politician, drape him in a toga, and he'd be right at home in the senate of ancient Rome. Take a modern general, hang a suit of armor and a helmet on him, stick him on a horse, and you wouldn't know him from a Crusader of the middle ages.

But take a modern woman out of her modern kitchen, away from her wall-to-wall broadloom and dump her in a thatched-roof cottage with outside facilities and no detergents, and what would you have? A screamingmeemie; that's what you would have. Even if Mr. and Mrs. Will Shakespeare lived in the thatched cottage next door.

This comment is written more in sorrow than in anger. I don't put all the blame on the creatures themselves. I think their greedy materialism, relentless reality, and total lack of appreciation of the finer things in life — like their husbands — are a result of the stresses of the age. Too much farmed-over psychology. Too much hard-sell advertising.

They all want to look like Paris models. But they don't do enough physical work and they eat, and much. So they get fat. There's a stress right there.

They all want their children to be handsome and brilliant. So they spend thousands of dollars straightening the kids' eyes and teeth and pushing them at school and nagging them about music lessons and comparing them unfavorably with kids who are handsome and brilliant. Their own kids, naturally, respond by getting fat and pimply, reading brocco and glosser, growing neurotic, and failing their exams and their stress.

They all want their husbands to be a combination of Richard Burton, J. P. Morgan, and Casper Milquetoast. That's a tough order to come by these days, so they take it out on the poor Adam they got out of the grab-bag: frustration and guilt. Two more stresses.

They crave security. More and more of it. So they push their men harder and harder to build up a bigger and bigger estate, and more and more insurance, in order that they can join the hordes of lonely widows in Florida, sitting around telling each other what a grand chap poor Harman was before he worked himself to death 30 years ago.

They all want to be loved and cherished. And they spend all their time complaining about their health, their children, their husbands and all the things other women have and they don't. Who's going to love and cherish a whining bitch with a built-in whine?

They all want to be beautiful. And they all go around with lips pressed tight, mouth turned down, and a big scowl. When was the last time you heard your wife singing, Jock?

There's only one solution, of course, for the girls, and it would not be a popular one. The answer is back in the scrub board and the sewing-machine, and the vegetable garden and the preserving kettle.

I would not have you think these few observations are offered in an unkindly spirit. They are merely the result of overhearing a conversation today between my old Battleaxe and her sidekick across the street.

For half an hour, they vied with each other in relating, with chapter and verse, what useless articles Bill and John (incidentally, two of the sweetest guys in town) turned out to be.

And when they had run out of steam, they all got around with lips pressed tight, mouth turned down, and a big scowl. When was the last time you heard your wife singing, Jock?

Jean May Anderson Married In Red Deer Presbyterian Church

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Red Deer was the scene of a pretty wedding on May 15th at 2:30 when marriage vows were exchanged between Jean May Anderson and Harold Gardiner Haight. Rev. Warren Mabb performed the ceremony for the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Anderson of Killam and the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Haight of Vancouver, before an altar decorated with bouquets of spring flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white floor length gown of organza over taffeta. The bodice was designed with a scoop neckline trimmed in lace and sequins and lily-point sleeves. The bustle back skirt featured a large bow at the waistline. Her headfast chapel veil of tulle misted from a headpiece of tulle centered with tiny white flowers and seed pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses and fern with streamers of satin caught with rose buds and fern.

Mrs. Donald McKinnon was her sister's matron of honor and was dressed in a pale green Egyptian brocade dress topped with a fitted jacket with three-quarter length sleeves. A matching wedding ring headpiece and white accessories completed her outfit. She wore a necklace of pearls and crystal, gift of the bride, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and fern.

Ernie Foss of Calgary attended the groom and ushering the guests to pews marked with white satin bows and lily-of-the-valley were, Donald and Malcolm McKinnon.

Soloist, Mrs. Lois Gilmour, sang the Wedding Prayer prior to the ceremony, and I'll Walk Beside You during the signing of the register. Mrs. McArthur was organist.

The mother of the bride wore a two piece dress of royal blue crepe trimmed with sequins, with white hat and accessories. Her corsage was of red sweetheart roses. The mother of the groom chose a navy blue suit with white hat and accessories. A white sweetheart rose corsage completed her ensemble.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with pink roses, surrounded by pink carnations embedded in pink tulle. Pink candleabra flanked the cake which was made by the mother of the bride, and decorated by Mrs. W. Wilson.

Rev. Mabb said grace and the best man proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom fittingly replied. In the evening open house was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKinnon.

For travelling the bride wore a navy blue dress trimmed with white collar, with white and navy accessories. A pink carnation corsage complemented her ensemble.

Following a honeymoon through the States and Vancouver the couple will reside in Calgary.

Is This A Good Advertisement?

If your advertising could be printed in a special kind of invisible ink that became visible only between 5:00 and 5:01 Thursday, and then disappeared, the chances are you wouldn't think such an ad was worth much. You'd only reach a small fraction of the total newspaper's audience—those who happened to be reading the newspaper on Thursday afternoon at precisely the time your ad appeared, and who in fact happened to be turned to the page your ad was on at the precise moment.

And yet this is what happens to advertising in media other than newspapers. A recent survey showed that 75 percent of all shoppers check the newspaper ads before making their main shopping trip.

Newspaper messages are available at the convenience of the customer. He doesn't have to be at a certain place at a particular time of day or night to hear or see the message.

Perhaps equally important — he looks at newspaper advertising because he wants to.

It is never an unwanted interruption.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

What nostalgic memories are buried in the recesses of his mind. Some humorous, some sad, some factual, but all are interwoven in the beautiful, intricate tapestry of memories, to the oldsters, memories of the yesteryears.

As the milestones slip by, each one more quickly than the one before, we become a bit slower in our movements, a bit more unsure of our steps. When even our sight begins to fail us, then is when we can afford to take time to indulge in the reminiscent pursuit of the past.

Wherever two or more old cronies or acquaintances get together, almost invariably the topic of conversation turns, sooner or later, to the time-worn phrase of "I remember when" or "I can re-call." Some folks of this age are apt to feel sorry that these same older ones are not physically able to take part in the active sports of fishing, swimming, golfing and so on.

They neither need nor want your sympathy. They have had their day of active work and play. Now they can live in the narrow of their memories, enjoying themselves in doing as much or possibly more than these so-called sports at their chosen type of activity.

Go into any Senior Citizen Home, or where several elderly folks are gathered together for a time of re-creation. What are they talking about? Specials? Automation? Unemployment? Delinquency? Well some may possibly skim over these topics more or less to open the conversation. But eventually their talk will turn to the inevitable remarks of, "I remember when I was young" ... or "When I first came to the country" ... and so on. Watch the expression on their faces as they talk. See their faded eyes light up as memories unroll like a scroll before their eyes.

Pity them? NEVER. Chances are they wouldn't exchange the opportunity of talking of these yesteryears to some equally enthusiastic old-timer, with the most ardent sportsman in the country.

I, too, can claim the honor — yes, I said honor, of being classed in the category of an old-timer. And I might add I am proud to belong to this venerable army of back-liners. We are the "Voice of Experience". We are mellowed and softened by sorrow and hardship. True, some of our more thoughtless young people might term us as old fuddy-duddies, — I believe the more modern word is "square." They do not mean to be cruel or unkind I am sure. They just cannot imagine anyone deriving pleasure from re-calling those to them unpalatable hard times.

In this day and age when things are done automatically, when the very idea of doing without most of the essential things of life seem absurd, HOW, they argue, can anyone enjoy living of these hard times?

Thus my friends is the focal point of our topic "Memories". We oldsters have gone through the mill. We know the rough places on life's checkered pathway. We know sorrow and gladness, peace and war, plenty and penury, and have come through it all, I hope, better men and women because of these never-to-be-forgotten experiences.

So as we oldsters are nearing the top of the last hill, let us bask in the memories of those good old days. We hope this generation too, will have wonderful memories of their younger years.

We know their path too has been made smoother by our scientists who, by their tireless labor are coming up almost daily with better and easier ways of coping with life's problems. These same young folks will, I presume have memories as nostalgic to them as ours are to us. So we will continue to treasure our memories and welcome every opportunity given to us to talk of them to our kindred spirits.

Lady Of Fatima C.W.L. Meets

(By Mrs. J. Butler)

STROME — The monthly meeting of Our Lady of Fatima C. W. L. took place in the Parish Hall on Tuesday June 8th. Mrs. J. Spohn was hostess, with 17 members present. The ladies will be catering for Fr. J. Kroetch's ordination dinner, also at the reception in the afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30 in Memorial Hall. It was also decided to have a shower for Diane Benoit in the Legion Hut.

Forty-five pounds of clothing was sent to the Marian Centre. The ladies decided to give the church a good cleaning before the first Communion and Ordination. A meal will be offered for Mrs. Slavik, Mrs. Kasker, and Mrs. Flore, who are in hospital.

For study period Mrs. J. Kalpeter read an article entitled, "What Should I Wear?" The president Mrs. Lorenz gave an interesting report of the Cwl annual convention which she had attended at Red Deer. She thanked the CWL for sponsoring her to the convention.

BAGGY PANTS

By BERT ODLAND

A good many of us suffered through a "hand-me-downs" phase when we were kids — inheriting, whether we liked it or not, the clothes of larger brothers and sisters. And remember the baggy feeling of Dad's old cast-offs, pants? While all this might have helped the family exchequer, it often put a sag in the wearer's morale — as well as the back-side of his lap.

What I'm getting at, in my devious way, is that "hand-me-downs" and "make-do" materials are usually not the best for the job to be done.

This also applies to heating and air conditioning for your home or business. Just as individuals vary in their sizes, needs and desires, so do buildings. Then, the heating and air conditioning systems must be tailored to the building for best results. When you have a system, not only should you ask the price, but more important, find out what you are getting — insist on seeing the proposed heating layout. Insist on knowing the heat loss or gain of each individual room to be heated or cooled. Make sure the ductwork pipes, fittings and registers are adequate to handle this load, and then insist on it being installed accordingly. We all know that the proper sized furnace or air conditioner must be used, but only by a proper survey of the building can this be done. There is no magic number that can be multiplied by the number of outside thin information.

My Lennox line of equipment gives me hundreds of choices to select exactly the right unit for your building. Then I take over and engineer the right system for your particular building. That is why I am (ahem) called a Comfort Craftsman. You won't get any "happy parts" heating or cooling system from me. It will be designed to fit whether you live in a residence, a commercial home or a converted dairy barn. That goes for all commercial buildings, too.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantion, Hardisty, Alberta)

What nostalgic memories are hoarded in the treasure of his mind. Some humorous, some sad, some factual, but all are interwoven in the beautiful, intricate tapestry of memories, to the oldsters, memories of the yesteryears.

As the milestones slip by, each one more quickly than the one before, we become a bit slower in our movements, a bit more unsure of our steps. When even our sight begins to fail us, then the years we can afford to take time to indulge in the reminiscent scenes of the past.

Whenever two or more old cronies or acquaintances get together, almost invariably the topic of conversation turns, sooner or later, to the time-worn phrase of "I remember when" or "I can re-call." Some folks of this age are apt to feel sorry that these same older ones are not physically able to take part in the active sports of fishing, swimming, golfing and so on.

They neither need nor want your sympathy. They have had their day of active work and play. Now they can live in the nurses of their memories, enjoying themselves in doing so as much or possibly more than those so-called sports at their chosen type of activity.

Go into any Senior Citizen Home, or where several elderly folks are gathered together for a time of recreation. What are they talking about? Spaceships? Automation? Unemployment? Delinquency? Well some may possibly skim over these topics more or less in open the conversation. But eventually their talk will turn to the inevitable remarks of, "I remember when I was young" ... or "When I first came to the country " and so on. Watch the expression on their faces as they talk. See their faded eyes light up as memories unroll like a scroll before their eyes.

Fity them? NEVER. Chances are they wouldn't exchange the opportunity of talking of these yesteryears to some equally enthusiastic old-timer with the most ardent sportsman in the country.

I, too, can claim the honor — yes, I said honor, of being classed in the category of an old-timer. And I might add I am proud to belong to this venerable array of has-beens. We are the "Voice of Experience". We are mellowed and softened by sorrow and hardships; but, some of our more thoughtless young people might term us as at least "queer," I believe the more modern word is "square." They do not mean to be cruel or unkind I am sure. They just cannot imagine anyone deriving pleasure from re-calling those to them impossible hard times.

In this day and age when things are done automatically, when the very idea of doing without most of the essential things of life seem absurd. How, they argue, can anyone enjoy recalling of those hard times?

That my friends is the focal point of our topic "Memories". We oldsters have gone through the mill. We know the rough places on life's checkered pathway. We know sorrow and gladness, peace and war, plenty and penury, and have come through it all, I hope, better men and women because of these never-to-be-forgotten experiences.

So as we oldsters are nearing the top of the last hill, let us bask in the memories of those good old days. We hope this generation too, will have wonderful memories of their younger years.

We know their path has been made smoother by our scientists who, by their tireless labor are coming up almost daily with better and easier ways of coping with life's problems. These same young folks will, I presume have memories as nostalgic to them as ours are to us. So we will continue to treasure our memories and welcome every opportunity given to us to talk of them to other kindred spirits.

BAGGY PANTS

By BERT ODLAND

A good many of us suffered through a "hand-me-down" existence when we were kids — inheriting, whether we liked it or not, the clothes of older brothers and sisters. And remember the baggy lasting of Dad's old cut-down pants? While all this might have been the family exchequer, it often put a sag in the weaver's morale — as well as the back-side of his lap.

What I'm getting at, in my devious way, is that "hand-me-downs" and "make-do" materials are usually not the best for the job to be done.

This also applies to heating and air conditioning for your home or business. Just as individuals vary in their sizes, needs and desires, so do buildings. Then, the heating and air conditioning systems must be tailored to the building for best results. When you have a system, not only should you ask for price, but more importantly, find out what you are getting — insist on seeing the proposed heating layout. Insist on knowing the heat loss or gain of each individual room to be heated or cooled. Make sure the ductwork pipes, fittings and registers are adequate to handle this load, and then insist on it being installed accordingly. We will insist that the proper sized furnaces or air conditioner must be used, but only by a proper survey of the building, can this be done. There is no magic number that can be multiplied by square feet to obtain this information.

My Lennox line of equipment gives me hundreds of choices to select exactly the right unit for your building. Then I take over and engineer the right system for your particular building. That is why I am (about) called a Comfort Craftsman. You won't put any "baggy pants" heating or cooling system from me. It will be designed to fit whether you live in a one-room cabin, a commercial locker or a converted dairy barn. That goes for all commercial buildings, too.
